A local survey shows that five out of seven houses are in need of some kind of repair or modernization to bring them up to date in appearance and utility. Whether the work needed is the reshingling of a roof, the painting of the exterior, the papering and refinishing of the interior or the construction of a small addition, the easy payment plan is available.

In fact, by corporation of the manufacturers, the supply houses and the contractors the building industry is planning to give the home owner just as aggressive arguments about the need of having his real estate kept up to date as the automobile, radio and electric refrigerator salesmen have used in selling this equipment in such great numbers.

As outlined, the plan appears to be one that will benefit not only the dealers and tradesmen but also the home owner who heretofore has neglected to have necessary work done because of the cash requirements. With the public responding to the advantages of the plan a general increase in building activities and consequently an increased measure of prosperity is evident.

Due to the fact that there has been a decided slump in the building of new homes it is evident that many tradesmen will have to turn their efforts to other fields unless some substitute for new houses is found.

MONTVILLE

The foundations have been completed for a coal conveyer system which is being installed at the Montville power house of the Connecticut Light and Power company. The new conveyor will provide for the transfer of coal direct from the power house wharf to the big bins over the boiler room. At present the coal is transferred by car to a pit on the west side of the power house and then conveyed to the coal bins by an old conveyor there, requiring double handling of the coal after it is unloaded from boats.

50 DEGREES TEMPERATURE NEEDED IN REFRIGERATOR

Two factors govern food preservation. One is constant temperature, which should range between forty and forty-five degrees; the other is dryness. An atmosphere that is warm and moist is ideal for breeding bacteria. Bacteria, yeasts and molds are the most insidious of all causes of food spoilage. Growth of these, like all plants, is influenced by temperature, moisture and light. These are the reasons why the refrigerator, if it is to be a health guard, must provide dry, cold air and exclude light.

Because the mechanical refrigerators, whether operated by electricity, gas or oil, do this, their appeal is one primarily of health. One can test their equipment by placing a reliable thermomenter in the food chamber. If this at any time indicates a temperature above fifty degrees, there is danger of food spoilage and danger to health, particularly if food for small children is kept in the refrigerator.

LIGHTING FIXTURES OFFERED IN PORCELAINS

Long life and permanent beauty are two qualities claimed for porcelain lighting fixtures. The fine china porcelain from which these fixtures are made is said to be proof against chipping, staining, tarnishing and peeling; lustre and colors are "fired" and cannot fade.

Beside ceiling units and wall brackets, this line of lighting fixtures includes closets units, graceful in design and operated by means of a cord pendant from the switching mechanism; door switches may be used to operate these lights. Wall brackets for the bedroom may be had with an inconspicuous convenience outlet, permitting the use of curling iron, violet ray attachment or vibrator.

Two men and a boy were rescued from Long Island sound off Noroton harbor when their sailboat capsized a long distance from shore.

NEW COTTAGE ON ST. REGIS AVENUE

The newly built house of Michael D'Atri, located on St. Regis avenue, is one of the most attractive constructed in that section of the city and contains all of the latest appointments. The building, which was constructed by a Taftville contractor and beautifully finished, is pictured above.

The front of the first story is finished in Colonial clapboards, while the exterior of the second story is in gray stained shingles, Colonial shutters being used on all the windows there. The trim is in Colonial green and copper flashings and drain pipes are used. Running across the front of the structure is a large airy porch with a combination of cut granite and wooden pillars holding up the roof.

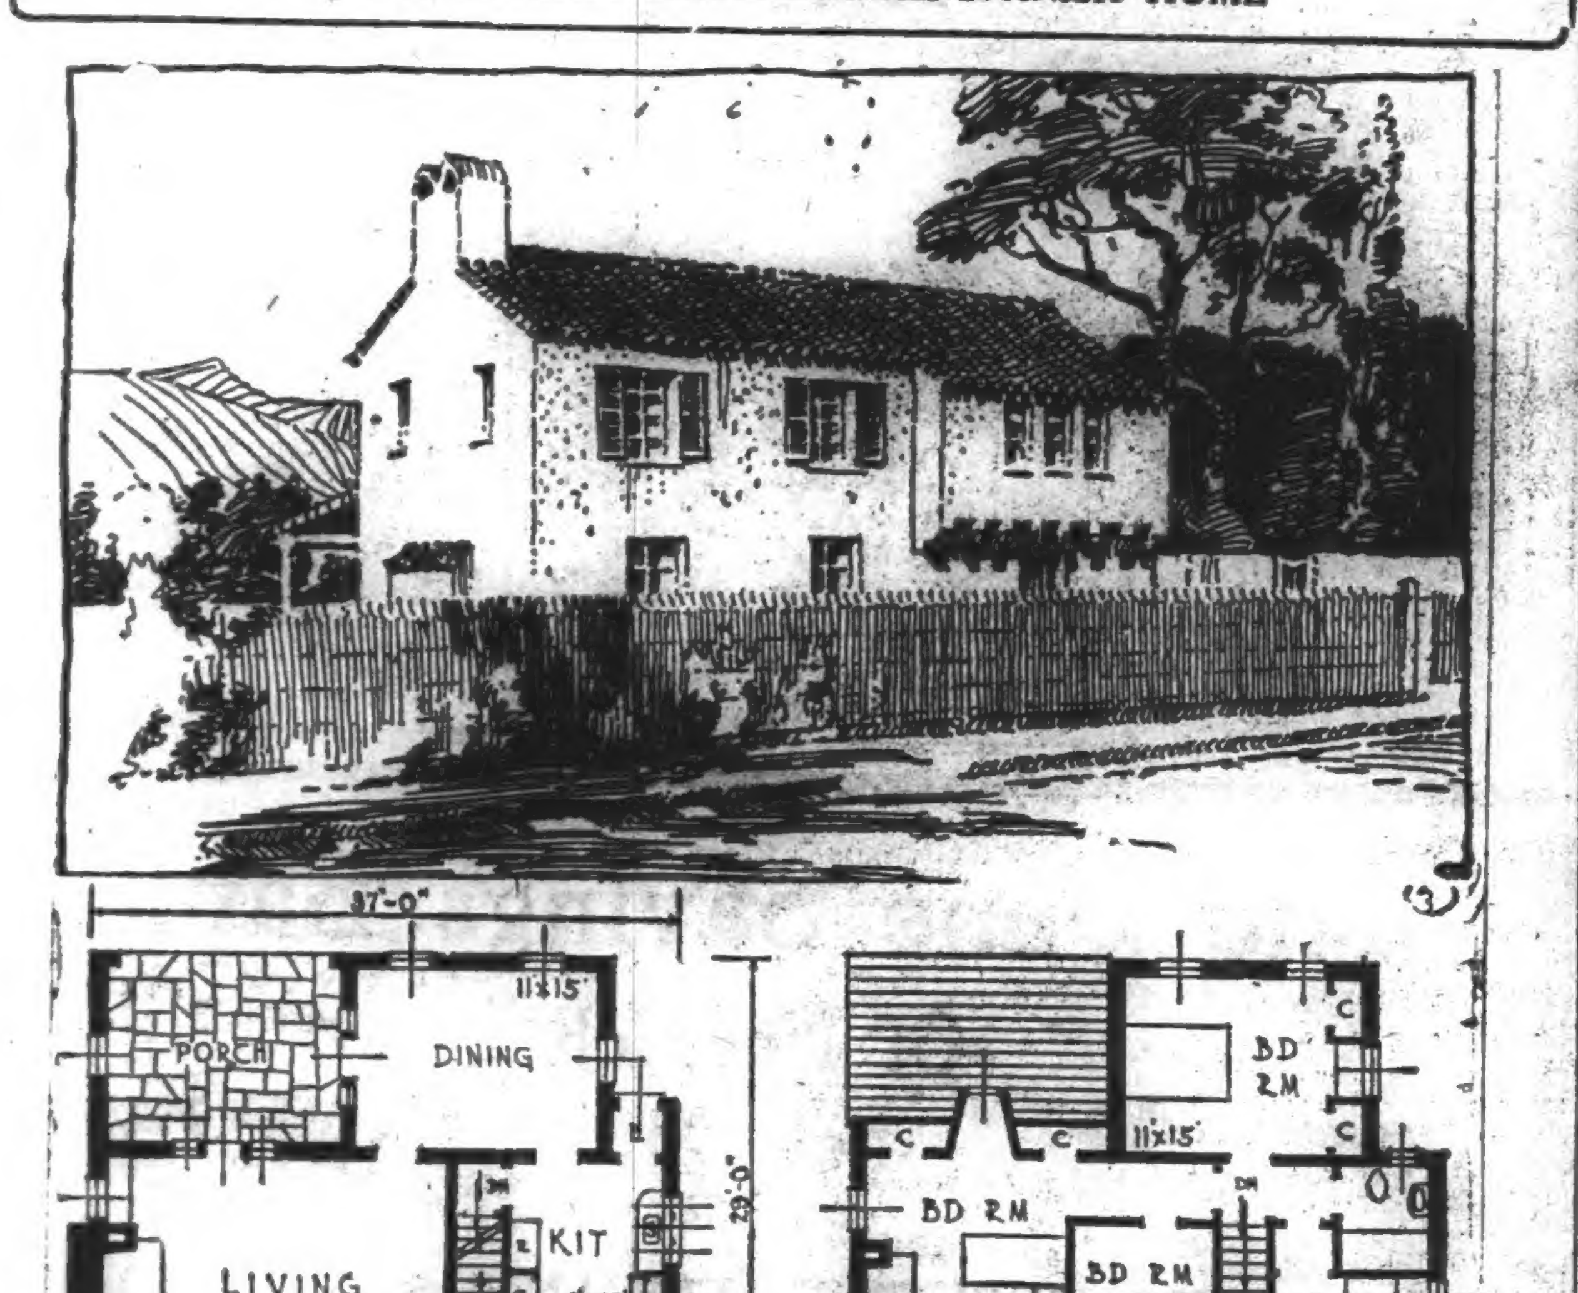
Entering the building one finds a large and spacious reception hall, to the right of which is a large living room, where is located a beautiful open fireplace, done in hand cut Westerly granite. The fireplace chimney is located on the east side of the building and is also constructed of cut granite. To the left of the reception hall is the dining room and to the rear is the kitchen, which is finished in white tile half way up the sides. There is a white porcelain sink, a built-in ironing board and a recess for an electric refrigerator.

On the second floor are two guest rooms and a master bedroom, which are all finished in oak flooring and oak trim. The bathroom there is in white tile flooring and sidewalls with black tile trimming. There are black tiled bathroom fixtures.

The furniture in the various rooms are in harmony with the furnishings in the rooms.

There is a cement floor in the basement, where is located an adequate heater. Brass plumbing is used throughout.

LIBERAL SPACE CHARACTERIZES SPANISH HOME



Liberal space inside and outside characterizes this house of Spanish design.

This structure of four bedrooms, a large living room, a large dining room and a porch achieves adequacy in a comparatively small amount of space, although the house would not be complete without a wall or fence surroundings.

Such a house of 25 x 37 feet would leave a comfortable outside space on a lot 60 x 100 feet, and the surplus land could be devoted to lawn cultivation or gardening to add to the general attraction of the property.

The living and dining rooms open onto the south-side porch and face the garden, while three of the bedrooms on the second floor overlook another part of the garden. Two of the bedrooms each have three windows, and a third has four, three of which overhang the garden. The smallest of these bedrooms is 9 x 12 and there are six bedroom closets.

Five openings—the door to the porch and four windows—and a fireplace are among the features of the spacious living room. In fact, approximately half the lower floor is devoted to this living room and the porch. The kitchen is conveniently located in the west end of the house, and has a handy door to the second floor.

Every room in the house is quickly accessible via a staircase located in the center of the structure. Each of the bedroom opens on or near this staircase, the base of which is merely a turn to left or right to the kitchen or the living room.

The outside finish is of stucco with a red tile roof, light blue green shutters, and a front door of weathered gray. A hooded chimney with two vents adds to the attractiveness of the design which may be made a picturesque silhouette within economical range.

The cost would range from $10,000 to $12,000, taking account of the variance in materials and the communities where they are bought.

BEAR DRIVE CONTINUED IN MARKET WITH SALES REACHING 8,212,800 TOTAL

NEW YORK, May 5.— (P) — The stock market took another hard tumble today. This time, however, it landed on the resistent ground of short covering and organized support, rebounding sufficiently from the bottom to bring moderate net gains to a sizeable list of representative issues.

Sales totaled 8,273,260 shares, the largest volume since the 9,212,800 share day on last October 28. The ticker was slightly more than two hours late at the close.

The full force of the powerful bear faction was felt just at the beginning of the final hour. Warnings of this intensive effort by the short interest had circulated generally through the street and rater extensive preparations were made to meet it. There was a report that powerful banking interests were preparing to support the market, but this was denied in authoritative quarters.

When the blow fell quoted values dropped off alarmingly. U. S. Steel sank to 166 1-2, half a point above its 1930 minimum, and many other pivotal shares dwindled to new lows for the movement or for the year. Unlike the sessions of last Friday and Saturday, when the market closed virtually at its low, the bears met opposition in the form of concerted buying and scurried to cover their commitments.

Under support from two sources Steel snapped back to 174 on a few sales and then eased to 171 1-4, up 1 1-2. Vanadium Steel which had dropped 15 points to 87, rushed up to 103 1-4, the closing price up 2 points. American and Foreign Power fell to 65 before rallying to finish at 73 3-4 where it was off 2 7-8. Such volatile shares as J. I. Case, Auburn Auto, Columbian Carbon, Diamond Match, Worthington Pump, A. M. Byers, and Houston Oil dropped 11 to 24 points at the height of the decline, but several were able to show small net advances on the day.

The market had made cautious attempts at an advance during the morning and early afternoon, feeling its way carefully after the sweeping declines of last week. Early selling of weakened margin accounts was well absorbed on a scale down and the presence of some short covering helped many of the leaders show small improvement by noon. Commission house letters advised clients to use extreme caution in taking a trading position on either side.

The advance was rather half-hearted, however, and as the market worked into afternoon the undismayed bears mustered anew their ammunition of declining commodity prices, unfavorable earnings statements and the dullness of business for the head-on assault that started about 2 p. m.

When the smoke had lifted closing prices disclosed a rise of about a point in the index of 90 stocks, and there were net gains of one to four points in American Telephone, American Can, General Electric, Johns-Manville, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Atchison, Southern Railway, Public Service of New Jersey and others. Westinghouse, which had been pushed down to 160, closed 6 3-4 higher and Eastman Kodak gained 8 3-4. There remained, nevertheless, a long list of one to ten point declines, with even larger losses in a few cases.

One of the most important items, where there is news, from a business standpoint, was the reduction of a cent a pound in copper for domestic delivery, bringing the price to 13 cents. The cut from 18 cents to 14 cents around the middle of April, it was recalled, coincided with the start of the current decline in stock prices.

Commodities were easy. May sugar went to a record low, while May wheat touched a minimum for the year on bearish weather reports and the weakness of the share market. Cotton closed irregularly higher.

Money was in plentiful supply. Call rates repeated their performances of late last week, renewing at 3 1-2 and falling to 3. Term loans eased in the longer maturities.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, May 5.—(P)—Trends in the curb market closely followed the pattern of the big board in today's spectacular backing and filling of prices, but the late rally in curb shares lacked the vigor of that of the big board, and closing quotations were irregularly lower. Total sales exceeded 2,500,000 shares, a new 1930 record for this market.

Utilities sold off rapidly for a time, but rallied in the last half hour and generally closed steady. Electric Bond and Share was off about 2 points, having sold down 10. American Superpower, Middle West Utilities, United Light and Power A and American Light and Traction new closed a point or more higher. American Light, old stock, in which the market is now thin, dropped 13 points to a new low for the year at 269.

Several of the oils likewise showed considerable strength late in the day. Humble sold up about 6 points, but its gain was cut in half. Gulf closed a couple of points higher. Cities Service rallied mre than 3 points. The Indian Territory shares tumbled about 8, then regained approximately half their losses. Cosden dropped 5 points to a new low at 45.

Deere, new, was an active and spectacular feature of the industrials, dropping about 17 points, then cutting its loss to about 4. Aluminum Co. lost 15 points in quiet trading. Welch Grape Juice, a comparatively inactive issue, lost 11 points despite announcement of an extra dividend. In the investment trusts, Securities Corp. General, new stock, was a soft spot, dropping 9 points to a new low.

Closing quotations were not available. Those printed are as given by the ticker up to 4.30 p. m.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, May 5.—(AP)—Bonds on the New York stock exchange today felt the depressing effect of the stock market. Despite the easiness of credit, bonds failed to respond and the trend was generally downward.

Closing prices showed net changes ranging from an advance of 2 points to a similar recession. Sales were considerably under the past few days and in the face of the somewhat apathetic attitude toward even prime bonds, the averages for 30 issues sagged two-tenths of a point. Industrials showed the greatest resistance.

The decline was in the face of a favorable money market. Call loans were cut to 3 per cent after renewing at 3 1-2 and time loans eased in longer maturities.

Railroad bonds were moderately active. The greatest firmness in the group was displayed by the high grade issues. Erie Refunding and Improvement 5s were the most active, gaining 3-8ths. Atlantic Coast Line 5s 1st 4s, Baltimore and Ohio Refunding 6s, Boston and Maine 5s, Chicago and Eastern Illinois 5s, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific 5s, were firm.

Most of the utility group showed fractional losses. Utah Power and Light 6s with warrants touched 86 1-2 a new low; Chicago Gas Light and Coke 5s lost 2 3-4 points on seven bonds.

Montana Power 5s sagged two points, American Telephone debenture 5s, Detroit Edison refunding 5s, International Telephone debentures 5s were firm.

In the industrial list the largest recessions were made by Armour and Co. 5 1-2s and Lorillard debenture 5 1-2s. Humble Oil and Refining Co. 5s equalled the year's high at 102, Texas Corporation 5s lost 1-2 on a heavy turnover. Bonds of Standard Oils of New York and New Jersey, American Sugar, National Dairy 5 1-4s held around Saturday's closing.

Convertible issues made some attempts to rally but with the exception of the telephone issues, generally were unsuccessful and most of them ended the day in low ground. American Telephone and International 4 1-2s showed wide fluctuations but ended the day a shade above Saturday. Losses of from one to three points were made by Baltimore and Ohio, Chicago and Northwestern, General Theatres, Missouri and Pacific, Philadelphia Coal and Iron, and Atchison. Warner Brothers Pictures 6s touched a new low at 106, St. Paul Adjustment 5s also sank to a new minimum.

United States governments were dull and prices were down fractionally from one to 15 thirty-seconds.

European governments were the most active in the foreign group. British 5 1-2s equalled the year's high at 105 1-8 but lost 1-8 at the close. South American bonds sagged.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, May 5.—(AP)—Dollar-a-bushel prices for wheat finally overtook the market here today owing in large measure to fresh wide-open breaks of quotations on stocks. Wheat, corn and oats all outdid bottom-price records heretofore touched this season. Auspicious practical completion of seeding of the United States spring but little above the day's lowest level, its effect on the wheat market, and so likewise did improvement of crop [illegible] for domestic winter wheat.

Wheat values closed unsteady at wheat crop had a contributing bear-1-4 1 1-8c under Saturday's finish. Corn closed 1 1-4c off to 3-8c up, oats 1-1-8c down, and provisions unchanged to 7c decline.

Lowest prices of the day and the season were reached in the wheat market during the last few minutes of trading and despite announcement of a liberal decrease of 2,332,000 bushels in the United States wheat visible supply. To a noticeable degree, however, the visible supply decrease had an evident steadying effect on the market, although the total supply is still materially above last year's aggregate at the corresponding time. Meanwhile, Kansas reports were current putting special stress on beneficial rains over the week end and all through the southwest section of the state, and Nebraska advices said wheat was showing a good stand and color, with plants nearly all jointing and expected to be heading soon.

On the other hand, a falling-off of 490,000 bushels in the amount of wheat on ocean passage was noted, but was more or less offset by the fact that world shipments were much larger than a week ago. Word that the locust plague had spread into Rumania attracted attention also, but likewise failed to check the declining trend of the market. Around the dollar-a-bushel level for wheat, nevertheless sellers evinced but little disposition to become aggressive, and particularly as the fact was made known that farm board allies had completed the sale of all wheat owned by them at Gulf of Mexico and Atlantic ports.

Corn and oats were influenced by the downward course of wheat. May corn, however, was relatively strong, and was about the only exception to generally lower prices for grain.

Provisions were responsive to grain weakness, although hog values were steady.

Closing Indemnities: Wheat —May 98 1-4, 1.02 1-4; July 98 1-4; 1.04 7-8; Sept. 1.02 1-8-1-2, 1.06 3-4; Dec. 1.06 7-8, 1.11. Corn—July 78 7-8, 81 1-8-1-4; Sept. 79 7-8-80, 82 1-8-1-4; Dec. 74 1-4, 76 1-4-3-8.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

Windflowers

Windflowers that speak to me,
From the long past;
Fresh from a cottage wall,
Where memories last.

Green vase hold them tenderly,
Lest they might go,
Tumbling down on my table top,
Like drops of snow.

Pure white in their frailty,
With tender leaves green;
Green like a gentle lake,
In morning's sheen.

Like stars of hope white,
In clusters falling;
Harbingers of springtime,
I hear a brook calling.

Calling through leaves green,
And petals white glow,
Calling to brooksides,
Where melts the late snow.

Calling to hillsides,
Where young lambkins play,
Where odors of springtime,
Fill the warm day.

Green vase hold them tenderly,
Graceful and free,
Lest falling like snowflakes,
My dream breaks for me.

The Starry Night

Ten thousand warriors on those fields
Lift up their spears and flash their shields.

Ten thousand warriors on those plains
Halt their swift steeds with silver reins.

Their tents are pitched upon the slope
With silver pegs and silver rope.

When heaven shakes I am afraid,
For thunder is their cannonade.

And when the lightning cracks the night
'Tis their ten thousand spears in flight.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES.

Animal lovers can tell numerous stories illustrating the devotion of animals to their human protectors. Stories of one animal risking its life to save another animal are rare but are still sufficiently numerous and authentic to leave no doubt as to occasional existence of a deep love between animals.

However any close observer of nature will know that there exists throughout the brute creation a sort of rough moral system which, in the case of domestic animals, translates itself into what really amounts to a code of etiquette.

The old proverb, "The dog with a bone has many friends," is nothing else than a recognition of canine etiquette. It does not matter how small is the dog with the bone. It may be a Pomeranian surrounded by mastiffs. The mastiffs will still remain friendly. They will hover round the Pomeranian, perhaps whining for a morsel (which is never offered), and eagerly picking up any splinter that may be dropped, when nothing would be easier than to bowl the little dog over and seize the bone.

You will notice, further, that the little dog becomes filled with a new courage, presumably in the moral consciousness of the justice of his claim, and will growl and even snap at a dog he otherwise fears if the latter should come too close.

But the moment a dog drops his bone a new rule of etiquette operates, for it becomes the property of the first dog who cares to pick it up. True, a dispute will sometimes arise as to whether the bone has actually been dropped "within the meaning of the act." But once this is clear the law of the bone will be observed by all save the exceptional "hooligan" dog, met with occasionally, who outrages all the laws of dogdom, even to the biting of his master.

Another rigid social law is that no gentleman dog must ever, in any circumstances, offer violence to a lady dog. It is not the slightest use to plead that "she began it." If a female should so far forget herself, as not infrequently happens, the mere male has no alternative to enduring her snaps save seeking safety in flight.

Of course a dog, being only canine after all, will sometimes, under severe provocation, break this law. But if he is one of a pack it is ten to one that the other males will set upon him and mete out severe punishment for his grave offence.

Moreover, although a dog is quite entitled to rush suddenly upon a foe and take him unawares, he may not do so if the other is eating or drinking.

Dogs are by no means the only animals that have a distinct sense of property. The squirrel regards his tree much as the dog regards his bone. He has a definite right to it, both as a dwelling and a means of subsistence; and on the rare occasions when another squirrel disputes the right or blunders accidentally on his tree, he will fight fiercely in defence of that which the law of the woods allows him to regard as his own.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

A Mistake In Cooking

Dear Uncle Jed: This week I am having a vacation so I have plenty of time to write you a letter. My letter is about a mistake in cooking.

Every Monday morning my class at school has a cooking lesson at our state trade school, which lasts from eight o'clock to ten o'clock. On this particular morning the class was having a test, from which our report cards are to be marked. Our task was to serve a luncheon, which was to consist of cheese sauce with celery on toast, fruit salad, muffins and chocolate cornstarch pudding. I made the pudding, following, as I supposed, the directions. After I had finished it I put it into molds to cool and set it in the frigidaire.

When it was nearly time to serve it I took it out of the refrigerator and put it into sherbert glasses. Before I set it on the table, I tasted it, and it tasted queer. I took another taste and then I was sure. I had used salt in place of sugar.

It was so very salty that it couldn't be eaten, and I hadn't time to make another as I was supposed to serve it in ten minutes. I went to the teacher and confessed my careless mistake, and she told me that there was nothing for me to do but take a lower mark on my report card. I have not seen my report card yet.

The Chipmunk's Escape

Dear Uncle Jed: Once again do I submit one of my stories, and I hope it will meet with approval. The Chipmunk's Escape: I was sitting in the woods one autumn day when I heard a small cry and a rustling of leaves amid the branches of a tree a few rods beyond me. Looking thither I saw a chipmunk fall through the air, and catch on a limb 20 or more feet from the ground. He appeared to have dropped from near the top of the tree.

He secured his hold upon the small branch that had luckily intercepted his fall, and sat perfectly still. In a moment more I saw a weasel—one of the small red varieties—come down the trunk of the tree and begin exploring the branches on a level with the chipmunk.

I saw in a moment what had happened. The weasel had driven the squirrel from his retreat in the rocks and stones beneath, and had pressed him so closely, that he had taken refuge in the top of the tree. But weasels can climb trees, too, and this one had tracked the frightened chipmunk to the topmost branch, where he had tried to seize him.

Then the squirrel had, in horror, let go his hold, screamed, and fallen through the air, till he struck the branch just described. Now his bloodthirsty enemy was looking for him again, apparently relying entirely upon his sense of smell to guide him to his game.

How did the weasel know the squirrel had not fallen clear to the ground? He certainly did not, for when he reached the same tier of branches, he began exploring them. The chipmunk sat transfixed with fear, frozen with terror, not 12 feet away, and yet the weasel saw him not.

Round and round, up and down, he went on the branches, exploring them over and over. How he hurried lest the trail get cold! How subtle and cruel and fiendish he looked! His snakelike movements, his tenacity, his speed!

He seemed baffled; he knew his game was near, but he could not strike the spot. The branch upon the extreme end of which the squirrel sat ran out and up from the tree seven or eight feet, and then, turning a sharp elbow, swept down and out at right angles with its first course.

The weasel would pause each time at this elbow and turn back. It seemed as if he knew that particular branch held his prey, and yet its crookedness each time threw him out. He would not give it up, but went over his course again and again.

One can fancy the feelings of the chipmunk sitting there in plain view, a few feet away, watching his deadly enemy hunting for his clew. How his little heart must have stood still each time the fatal branch was struck! Probably, as a last resort, he would again have let go and fallen to the ground, where he might have eluded his enemy a while longer.

After five or six minutes the weasel hurried away, leaving the chipmunk half frightened, but safe on his perch.

A Premature Celebration

Uncle Jed: In two days Johnny was to celebrate the 153rd anniversary of our Independence. July fourth was near! All of Johnny's firecrackers were in a box under the table. Sky rockets, cones, bombs, guns, caps, bullets, cannons, etc., were all piled into the box.

Johnny was not a good boy. He was fourteen years old, but he was spoiled. He often carried matches in his pockets. This day Johnny had gotten under the table, unnoticed by his mother. He lit a match to look into an obscure corner of his "precious" box. The match burned and burned and finally the fire reached Johnny's fingers. He dropped the match into the box with his firecrackers.

He immediately ran out of the house to get his mother who was hanging out clothes. Bang! Bang! Johnny got to his mother, but she waited for no explanation from him. She ran into the house just to have to run out again because of the choking smell of that dark gray smoke. Neighbors, hearing the noise, ran to the rescue of Johnny and his mother. The men went into the house and put out the fire which was not a very difficult task because all te firecrackers had exploded and only the table and wall were burned.

When the fire was completely out, Johnny, his mother, and many other neighbors went in the house. A look of sorrow, then shame, covered Johnny's countenance as he gazed upon the ruins. "Mother," said he, "I shall never again carry matches in my pockets or even light them. Here are all the matches I have left."

The Sahara Desert

Dear Uncle Jed: I hope you enjoy reading my letter about "The Sahara Desert." The Sahara desert, as large as United States, supports only one fourth as many people. They live near the oases where natural springs are found. This great desert stretches from Atlantic ocean to the Nile river and from the Mediterranean Sea to French West Africa. It belongs to the French. Between the Mediterranean Sea and Sahara rise the Atlas mountains.

An Original Story

Dear Uncle Jed: Little May was going down the street when a dog came out of an alley and barked at her. It frightened May so she began to run. The dog ran after her thinking she wished to play. May, exhausted, sat down to rest. The dog also stopped and sat down. May's home was near now so she got up and began to run again. The dog followed her. May, after reaching home, ran up on the porch. She was startled then by her mother saying, "May, how did you know Pete was our dog? I am pleased you've gotten over your foolishness about dogs." May, bewildered, answered nothing, but went to her room to puzzle it out. From that day to this she has never been afraid of dogs.

The Class Meeting

Dear Uncle Jed: I haven't written to you for a long time. Last week all the eighth grades of Colchester had a class meeting, to elect class officers for graduation. The results were: I was elected president; Robert Hoxie, vice president and Mary Marcinka, secretary. Our class was very proud of having two members, Mary Marcinka and I, as class officers. After the election the meeting was adjourned and the pupils returned to their respective homes.

Argentina

Uncle Jed: Argentina is located in South America. It has a population of about nine million. The capital is Buenos Aires which means "Beautiful Air." It is the largest city in South America and is called the New York of South America. The chief products are meat, hides, cattle, wool, horses and wheat. Buenos Aires is located on the Plata river and the southeastern part of Argentina. The pampas is a large grassy plain, extending over hundreds of miles. The gauchos ride over these like the cowboys of our western plains. I forgot to say the pampas are like our western plains.

Spring

Dear Uncle Jed: I have received your book for which I thank you very much. I will now try to get another. The name of my composition is "Spring." Spring, one of the most beautiful of the four seasons, begins March 21st. As it is very beautiful we all long for it. At this time nature begins to show its beauty and the withered grass becomes green, the flowers begin to bloom and the trees begin to blossom. The coming of the warm spring sun melts the ice and snow and the rivers rise. The farmers start their work on the garden, plowing it and sowing the seeds. Many vegetables begin to ripen.

The leafy trees and the green meadows are the beauties of spring. The birds arrive from their winter quarters and fill the air with their sweet melodies. Many sports are enjoyed during spring, such as baseball, tennis, fishing, etc.

ADAM LABENSKI, Age 13.

Spring

Dear Uncle Jed: As this is my first letter to you, I hope you enjoy yourself reading this letter. The coming of spring is so beautiful because all the birds come back and the flowers peek out of the ground. Spring comes in March, April and May. The changes that occur in spring are as follows: Sometimes it is hot or sometimes cold. This is the first year spring is so cold. The snow and ice melts in spring and the pure water shows up again so children can go swimming. The farmers plow their gardens and plant all sorts of vegetables. The trees lost all their leaves in winter and now they bud out, and all the flowers are in bloom such as tulips, and dandelions. The green grass is up again in the meadows.

My First Accident

Dear Uncle Jed: I have never written to you before. I thought I would tell you about my first accident. One Sunday morning my friend asked me for an automobile ride. I asked my mother if I could go, she said yes. We got into the car and went to Webster. I said let's turn back. We turned around and started home again. Just then another car came along. We tried to get out of his way, but our car tipped over on the side of the road. The man stopped his car and opened the door and we got out. We were not hurt. So we tied a rope around our car and his and he pulled the car up.

Dug 30 Clams

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have ever written to the Wide Awake circle, and I hope you will enjoy my story. One day last summer another girl and I took our bathing suits and went swimming. When we were nearly there we heard someone running in back of us. Both of us turned quickly to find it was only our dog! After we had been swimming a while we stepped on something hard. We put our hands in the water and found the "hard thing", a clam. We dug in the sand and found many clams. When we were ready to go home we counted the clams and found there were 30 of them.

All Good Automobile Insurance Is Not the Same—

If you have that idea, it's costing you money.

Here are the things that well informed car owners now demand when they insure their cars:

1. Complete protection.
2. Prompt, capable service when needed, not only at home but anywhere in this country and Canada.
3. A share in the welfare of their company—a return of whatever part of their premium is warranted at the end of the year.

If you are not getting these things, you owe it to yourself to find out more about automobile insurance written in the American Motorist's Insurance Company.

American motorist's policyholders have always received a substantial dividend saving on each year's automobile insurance premium. Phone Norwich, 3636 NOW and secure further details.

VICAR-GEN. DUGGAN WRITING HISTORY OF DIOCESE

The vicar-general of the diocese of Connecticut, the scholarly editor of The Catholic Transcript, Rt. Rev. Msgr. Thomas S. Duggan, is writing a history of the diocese. During the current year a century of existence has been completed by this diocese, the first Catholic church in the state having been dedicated in Hartford only 100 years ago.

Now the great diocese has more than 200 churches, with over 400 priests to minister to the 600,000 church members. It is to permanently record events during this century of amazing progress that Monsignor Duggan of St. Joseph's cathedral, Hartford, is writing the volume, to be titled, "The Catholic Church In Connecticut."

The work has received the approval of Bishop Nilan and its able and painstaking author has the co-operation of the clergymen who labor in the various parishes of the 168 towns of the state in securing data which will make history accurate and complete. It is to be illustrated and will be brought out in two editions, de luxe and popular.

NEW LONDON COUNCIL HEARS PLAN TO SEND OUT JULY TAX BILLS JAN. 1ST

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 5.— Twenty-three applications for buildings, alterations and additions were granted at the council meeting this evening.

The Thames Towboat Co. was awarded a contract for $248 to extend the pier at Ocean Beach. Inquiry was made as to whether boats using the pier paid any rental there and it was said that they did. The council ordered the payment of $2,000, a portion of $20,000 for land purchased by the city from Lawrence hospital on Pequot avenue.

The city voted to buy 300 lengths of 16-inch water pipe.

The A. E. I. petitioned for appointment of an electrical inspector. The petition was signed by six parties. Referred to the public safety committee. The police department applied for the purchase of a new electroscope to be used in detective work at a cost of $328. The application was denied, as interfering with the budget already made up. The application had already been rejected at a meeting of the budget committee. Councilor May wanted it to be considered as it might be a saving to the city for photographic work done for the police department. The city manager was authorized to hire an expert to check up on the land records of the city as in the town clerk's office as a new system has been introduced with which no one here is familiar.

The public utilities commission gave notice of the denial of the petition of Mrs. Mary Curtin for a taxi license on the grounds that it was not a matter of necessity to increase the number of taxis now operating in New London. A petition of the Yellow Cab Co. for increasing their cabs by six was not decided. The petition of Samuel Bisconti was voided, for non-appearance. The application of the Demont Marine Taxi service was referred to committee after the city manager reported from the N. E. Insurance exchange that there could be no increase in fire menace to adjoining property. It was voted to extend the sewer on Ocean avenue, 644 feet north of Gardner avenue, at a cost of $7,000 or about $3 a front foot for the property owners to pay. The tax collector reported the collection of $40,608.19 in April.

Seven property owners gave notice of appeal from assessment on value of their property— Samuel Prentice, Joseph Birenbaum and wife, Dr. Emanuel Henkle and wife and four others. Referred to director of law.

Councilor May wanted to arrange for the payment of taxes in two instalments, claiming it would be a convenience to debtors. Councilor Miner of the finance committee said that matter had already been taken care of and it was proposed to change the time of preparation of the budget so that the tax bills might be in the hands of taxpayers the first of January and they would have until July 1 to pay, without added interest.

Permisison was given J. A. Prince post, A. L., to sell poppies on the streets May 25, Murphy Rathbune post, V. of F. W., to sell buttons from the 6th to the 14th of May and to the woman's auxiliary to Lawrence-Memorial hospital to have a tag day June 10.

Four applications for signs at business places were referred to the city manager with power.

A bill for insurance on the ferry property for $412.90 is in dispute between the lessees, E. W. Crandall and David Sheehan and the city. The council voted to pay one-half the amount, subject to the approval of the director of law.

The council is to meet next week Thursday evening to consider various matters, among them one providing for a safe and sane fourth of July. Last year it was proposed to put this into effect but merchants claimed that they had already bought their stock and they were given a chance to dispose of it. This year it is proposed to give abundant notice by making the decision next week.

Councilor Miner claimed apparent injustice was done automobilists in tagging their cars and ordering them into court for trivial infractions of the ordinance. He said the city courted the business of these people from out of town and when they came here they were taxed for violating parking ordinances. He said it left a bad taste in the mouth. This matter is also to be taken up next week Thursday.

Albert Frenniere, 28, a laborer, residing at 51 Hempstead street, was in the police court this morning, charged with indecent exposure. He was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to jail for three months.

Joseph W. Stryker, lieutenant, stationed at the submarine base, was presented on a charge of reckless driving, the original charge being that of driving while under the influence of liquor. Stryker pleaded guilty to the complaint as amended and was fined $50 and costs. Stryker was driving on Pearl street at 2 o'clock Sunday morning and as he guided his car into Bank street and attempted to drive north, the car collided with a machine driven by Joseph G. Delehanty of Southington. Both cars were damaged. When the officer's car was searched a gallon jug was found which originally had contained bacardi rum, but the greater part of the contents of the jug had been consumed.

Brantley L. Holland, 23 Preising street, Jamaica Plains, Mass., was charged with violation of the state motor vehicle laws. He is employed by the Grey Line Bus Co. and on Bank street he was stopped by State Police Officer John Smith. It was then revealed that the driver did not possess a Connecticut public service license nor was the truck supplied with interstate markers. The case was continued to Monday next.

Drove Past Standing Trolley Car

Louis Schewell, Montville, employed by Mrs. Ralph H. Melcer as chauffeur, was charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in passing a motionless trolley car that was receiving or discharging patrons. He pleaded guilty and was fined $25 and costs.

Was Hitting the High Spots

Raymond Morgan, 83 Squire street, charged with speeding and driving while his license is under suspension, was fined $15 and costs on the former charge and on the second count a fine of $100 and costs was imposed, but the court ordered $75 of the fine remitted. Morgan was arrested Sunday night by Patrolman Carlos Stone when the automobile was being driven at a speed of approximately 60 miles an hour.

William Good, 55 Shaw street, charged with breach of the peace, upon complaint of his wife, was fined $25 and costs.

Lawrence Rodtk, 95 Greeneville street, Norwich, wasc fined $10 for passing an automatic danger signal, corner of Glenwood and Ocean avenues.

Edward J. Murray, 21 Lincoln street, Hartford, was charged with speeding. His case was continued to Friday next. Murray was arrested on Broad street at 3 o'clock Sunday morning and at a time when the automobile was doing about a mile a minute.

Edward Niederman, 333 West Thames street, Norwich, charged with passing an automatic danger signal on Bank street, he having been arrested Saturday night by Patrolman George Laboue, had his case continued till tomorrow.

Hollock, Springfield, Mass.; Charles H. Kimball, 50 Phillips street; George Kauchias, United States coast guard; Frank M. Jefferson, 176 Jefferson avenue; James Austin, Norwich; Charles W. Novitch, 151 Thames street; Warren Sebastian; M. J. Sabagh, 42 Faire Harbour place, and MacDonald Dunfare, Elizabeth, N. J., were charged with various infractions of the automobile law. All failed to appear in court and forfeited bonds of $2 and $5.

Norwich Patient Recovers

HEAVY BAIL IS EXACTED FOR CREW OF RUM RUNNER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, May 5.—The crew of the rum runner Marianne, seized in Long Island sound several weeks ago by the crew of a U. S. coast guard patrol boat, were given a hearing before United States Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran this afternoon. Probable cause was found and they were held for trial before the United States district court. The bail of the master, Patrick Ryan, was fixed at $7,500, while the other members of the crew were held in bonds of $2,000 each, excepting the engineer, whose bail was fixed at $5,000. Illicit Love His Undoing

A State street business man is missing from his business and home and all because of his alleged intimacy with another woman, not his wife. Recently the husband of a woman residing in the southern part of the city detected the love affair between his wife and the merchant. The wife of the latter was informed of the unfaithfulness of the husband and rather than face disgrace and humiliation the business man departed from the city. His business is now being conducted by men whom he formerly employed.

City Manager William A. Holt today informed Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney of the promotion of six officers. Supernumerary Louis Tooker is advanced to Grade C patrolman and Lawrence Fardy, Louis Wheeler, Cornelius Moriarty, Arthur Feeley and Albert Iverson, Grade C patrolmen, are promoted to Grade B. All of the promotions become effective May 1. The appointment of Supernumerary Tooker is to fill the vacancy caused last month by the death of Patrolman John P. Foley.

An automobile owned by Roy Street, 61 Denison avenue, was stolen from Huntington street, where it was parked near Church street, last night by the owner. No trace of the Maxwell touring car has been obtained.

Children Set Garage Fire

A small garage, rear of a residence, Crystal avenue and Grove street, and owned by William Porter, was practically destroyed by fire this afternoon when children playing with matches ignited it. The building was small and was not valuable. An alarm was rung in from Box 131, corner of Crystal avenue and Grove street, four companies responding. The fire was quickly subdued with chemicals.

Trouble At Trail's Corner

Louis Vetelino, Westerly, was in Groton town court today, charged with speeding and was fined $10 and costs, the latter amounting to $12.55. Vetelino was driving from Groton to Westerly Sunday night and did not know the road with the result that when the car, which was being driven at a high rate of speed reached Trail's corner, it went off the road and over an embankment.

More violaters of the city's parking laws tonight were ordered to present themselves in the police court tomorrow. These included Cecil Cunningham, 7 Bishop court; James Casey, 5 Grand street; Dana A. Tallman, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Alfred Chalifaux, Providence.

ATTEMPT TO SET FIRE TO OCEAN BEACH COTTAGE

What is believed to be an attempt to destroy a summer residence at Ocean Beach by fire was discovered this afternoon. Deputy Fire Chief Calvin Edmunds, who received a report that such an attempt had been made, went to 10 Ocean View place where he found a pile of kindlings biult around a candle and against the residence. The candle had been lighted, but was extinguished before the quantity of wood had ignited. Edmunds reported his finding at headquarters and Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh was assigned to the case. The cottage, which is unoccupied, is owned by Max Weiner, Market street, Hartford.

COMMANDER C. H. HULL TENDERED K. T. BANQUET

A banquet tendered Right Eminent Grand Commander C. Hadlai Hull and the grand commandery at the Hotel Mohican tonight, was attended by about 250 Knights Templar, who represented the 12 commanderies in Connecticut as well as numerous knights from the eastern part of the state. The 103rd annual conclave of the grand commandery will be held tomorrow. Today, Mayor Cornelius D. Twomey issued greetings to the visitors and welcomed them heartily to the city. Prior to the banquet tonight, the knights marched from the temple, corner of Starr and Green streets to the hotel, headed by an escort of state police motorcyclists and the Bulkeley high school band.

ROSE HAWTHORNE LATHROP CHARITY EXPANDING

A former distinguished resident of New London, Rose Hawthorne Lathrop, has been dead several years, but her influence does not die. It was announced last week that a branch of her hospital for the care of incurable cancer patients is to be opened in Philadelphia. "The Servants for Relief of Incurable Cancer Among the Poor" have taken possession of property once a Lutheran home for the aged, the new foundation—the only one outside of New York state—to be known as the Sacred Heart Free Home for Incurable Cancer Patients. The home will accommodate seventy patients, and according to the rule of the congregation, only those will be accepted who cannot afford to pay. No distinctions of race, color or creed are drawn, also no contributions are accepted from patients. The servants of relief were founded by Mother Mary Alphonsa Lathrop, as she was known, following the death of her husband, in 1898. She was the daughter of Nathaniel Hawthorne, America's famed novelist. She was of the Unitarian faith, when, in 1871, in London, she became the bride of George Parsons Lathrop, writer, also a Unitarian. In 1891, both renounced that faith and were baptized Roman Catholics in the Paulist church, New York. When left a widow, Mrs. Lathrop established her home for cancer patients in a dingy tenement house in New York, then as the work expanded she was able to secure her own house, finally with four companions she was enabled to open a cottage where seventeen were under care. Her noble efforts won the attention of charitable people of all denominations; eventually she started her Rosary Hill home at Hawthorne, on the Hudson. The years before her death were devoted to securing a fireproof structure to make her tenderly cared for poor secure from hazard. She did not live to see this project quite completed, but her associate Sisters carried on her work. In 1899 she had taken the veil as a nun and was known as Rev. Mother Alphonsa. In the chapel of the New Philadelphia home Sunday last, May 4, Cardinal Dougherty, celebrated the first mass. It is announced that the new foundation will soon be opened for public inspection. While residing for a time in New London, Mrs. Lathrop became a member of the D. A. R. chapter and with her distinguished husband, was prominent in literary circles and society.

NORWICH TOWN

The meeting of Troop 3, Boy Scouts, connected with the Methodist Episcopal church, was held Friday evening out of doors. Following the opening ceremony held at the headquarters, the troop marched to Huntington Green. The new inter-patrol contest began with the meeting. The Stag patrol, under Patrol Leader Arthur Bennett, scored the largest number of points, making a total of 50. The Stags won the points for inspection 10, opening ceremony 10 and three tests passed by members, 30. Wolf patrol, under Patrol Leader Leon Ladd, scored 5 points on drill, 10 on song period and 20 for tests, a total of 35. The Flying Eagles under Patrol Leader Clayton Rose, scored 5 on drill and 10 on patrol meeting. The meeting was in charge of the scoutmaster, Rev. George Warren Potter.

Jordan Wins Cub Contest

The meeting of Wolf cub pack of scouts, connected with the Methodist church, was held Saturday morning on Huntington Green, in charge of the cubmaster, Rev. Mr. Potter. Announcement was made that the contest which ended May 1 was won by Drummer Frank Jordan with a score of 755 points. He will be awarded a gold medal. The second prize, a silver medal, will be awarded John Gibbs, who scored 715 points, and the third prize, a bronze medal, will go to Robert Barber, who scored 635. Bugler Ellis Bentley and Drummer Frank Jordan were a great help by their music during the marching period. Two new games provided diversion—airplanes and submarines. It was voted that a Cub who does not attend the meetings from now until Memorial day will not be permitted to march that day.

"The Second Best"

At the Methodist church Sunday morning the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter, preached on "The Second Best," text Numbers 10:29-31, "We are journeying unto the place which the Lord said, I will give it you; come thou with us, and we will do thee good; for the Lord hath spoken good concerning Israel. And he said unto him, I will not go; but I will depart to mine land and to my kindred. And he said, leave us not, I pray thee: for as thou knowest how we are to camp in the wilderness thou mayest be to us instead of eyes." The choir, under direction of Mrs. Lewis E. Irish, sang an anthem, "Follow Thou."

The C. E. society of the Methodist church is to hold a meeting at the vestry this (Monday) evening at 8 o'clock. The session will be followed by an Old Hat social, the price of admission being an old hat. These hats are to be auctioned off and later a hat parade held. Prizes will be awarded for the funniest and the best looking hat. Games and refreshments are to round out the evening. The social will be in charge of Mrs. Richard Carter, chairman of the social committee.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

Like "ham-and-eggs" or "Amos 'n Andy," the thoughts of George Bancroft and strength always go together, and his latest production, "Ladies Love Brutes," closing with tonight's performances at the Broadway is no exception, for he typifies a structural steel contractor, a real "he-man," to whom a lovely society woman, Mary Astor, is attracted, first by his brute strength, and then by the sheer force of his character. Tomorrow, a different type of man is presented on the Broadway screen, when William Powell, polished man-about-town, suave, dignified, never ruffled, portrays his favorite role of Philo Vance, amateur criminal detective, in S. S. Van Dine's most enthrilling story "The Benson Murder Case." More subtle than any other author, Van Dine has an uncanny habit of developing suspect after suspect in his mysteries, and "The Benson Murder Case" is no exception, as the finger of suspicion swings in a wide circle, involving friends, servants, even clients of the ill-fated stock broker, who is killed within sight and sound of his friends, with no apparent clue to the killer. Powell is at his best as the canny amateur sleuth who finds clews that apparently mean nothing to the regular detectives, but which all blend into the perfect fabric leading to conviction. Eugene Pallette is again the noisy and belligerent Sergeant Heath, E. H. Calvert the grim district attorney, and Paul Lukas, William Boyd with Natalie Moorhead are new faces in the Van Dine lineup, and have prominent roles. The usual program of talking comedies, Vitaphone specialties, one of the latter featuring the beloved James Barton, and Fox movietone news complete the bill.

Palace Theatre.

"Spring is Here" starring Alexander Gray and Bernice Claire and "This Mad World" with Basil Rathbone and Louise Dresser are the two pictures which have been combined on the double-feature bill which will be presented at the Palace theatre tomorrow, and which will be shown through Friday.

"Spring is Here" has been adapted from the stage success of the same name which it follows in song and story. It deals with young love in its emotional and disturbing stages and without attempting to point a lesson the story is true to certain phases of life as it is being lived today.

"This Mad World" was also adapted from a stage play and among the members of the cast are Kay Johnson who made her screen debut in "Dynamite." Veda Buckland and Louis Natheaux, all of whom have had wide stage experience. This picture was directed by William de Mille.

According to de Mille, most of the picture was filmed from a stage point of view, 80 per cent of the action being carried out by three members of the cast. The picture is said to further resemble a stage play inasmuch as the entire action takes place between 4 p. m. and 10 o'clock the following morning. The plot of the film revolves about the conflict between love and patriotism.

"Mammy," Al Jolson's greatest success will be shown at the Palace for the last times today. The story and songs for the picture were written by Irving Berlin and the plot has been drafted from Jolson's early experiences when he was an end man in a minstrel. Supporting him are Lois Moran and Louise Dresser who plays the part of Mammy exquisitely.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Company, Hartford

The Pratt & Whitney Aircraft company, a division of the United Aircraft & Transport corporation, was formed in 1925 by a group of men of many years experience in the design and manufacture of aircraft engines of all types. Operations were begun in a small shop with approximately 8,000 square feet of floor space with 25 employes.

The company since its inception has concentrated on the manufacture of high-powered big displacement air cooled radial engines. Three models; the Wasp, Wasp, Jr., and Hornet are built. The success of the Wasp and Hornet models is well indicated by their extensive use in all types of aircraft operation in the Western Hemisphere as well as in Europe and the far east. The Wasp, Jr., is a comparatively recent development which is already being used in many smaller types of planes.

The first engine, the Wasp, shortly after its introduction was adopted by the United States Navy and Marine corps and is now employed as standard power-plant for their single and two place fighting aircraft and is also used in amphibian observation planes. The Wasp installed in the two former types has established seven world's records. The United States army as well is using this engine extensively in its latest pursuit types.

The success of the Hornet, a slightly later development and a larger engine for heavier weight carrying planes, is parallel to that of the Wasp. It is used by both the United States army and navy for heavy bombers, torpedo planes and patrol boats. Installed in this latter type the Hornet has established six world's records.

The popularity of both engines has made their commercial application widespread. At present Wasp and Hornet engines are installed in no less than 60 different types of commercial and military planes; they are used by the majority of the large transport operators in North and South America and in the United States air mail services they carry approximately 50 per cent of the mail flown. Ninety per cent of the charter air lines operating scheduled routes in this country are employing Pratt & Whitney powerplants.

The company now occupies a new $2,000,000 plant in East Hartford having a floor space of 300,000 square feet and facilities for producing 400 engines a month. The building is of the latest monitor type, brick and steel construction now used extensively in the automotive industry. Wasp and Hornet engines as well as being produced in large quantities for domestic use are also manufactured in Canada by The Canadian Pratt & Whitney Aircraft company, Ltd., and the B. M. W. company of Munich, Bavaria, are manufacturing the engines under license for use in Continental Europe.

The present officers are: F. B. Rentschler, president; G. J. Mead, vice president and technical director; D. L. Brown, vice president in charge of manufacturing; C. W. Deeds, secretary and treasurer; A. V. D. Willgoos, chief engineer.

GREENEVILLE

FUNERAL

Mrs. Edward Frechette

The funeral of Mrs. Leona Deloge Frechette, wife of Edward Frechette, was held from her late residence, 229 Prospect street, Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock, followed by a solemn requiem mass at St. Mary's Memorial church, with Rev. George J. Donahue as celebrant, Rev. Omer T. Mandler as deacon and Rev. John Carey of Voluntown sub-deacon. The musical program of the mass was in charge of Mrs. Michael J. Farrell organist. At the offertory Mrs. Farrell rendered Pie Jesu, and as a waiting hymn she sang, Our Lady, Della Strada, Chopin's Funeral March was played at the recessional. The burial was in the family plot in St. Joseph's cemetery. The bearers were Romeo Paquette, Noe Lucier, Leon Molleur, Louis Adams, Edward Gladue, Eugene F. Mercier. In the large attendance were mourners from Worcester, West Warwick, R. I., Versailles, Moosup, New Bedford and Fall River, Mass. The floral tributes were both numerous and beautiful, speaking a mute testimony of the high esteem in which the deceased was held. Undertakers Dougherty Brothers had charge of the arrangements.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Greeneville Congregational church will hold their monthly meeting Wednesday evening in the church parlors.

THREE PLACES BURNED AT BEACH POND

The Beach pond section of Voluntown fought a devastating forest fire all day Monday which started at the southeasterly end of the pond and jumped to the other side when the high wind carried blazing leaves across the pond. It was reported that two cottages belonging to Providence people were burned and the George Phillips place was also in the track of the fire and was burned to the ground.

From a dozen to 15 volunteers worked to hold the fire and three Rhode Island companies responded to the call for help. When the flames crossed the pond they threatened the summer home of Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt of this city, but the fire fighters managed to stop them at the Bliven farm.

MERCHANTS WANT BELL STOPPED AT WAUREGAN CORNER AND OTHER CHANGES

Traffic suggestions to be made to the city authorities in connection with the situation at the intersection of Broadway, Main and Shetucket streets were voted upon Monday evening at a meeting of about a dozen interested merchants, which was held in the chamber of commerce rooms.

Some criticism of the present operation of traffic regulation there was voiced and the opinion prevailed that the views endorsed at the meeting be forwarded to the city authorities as suggestions for their consideration.

J. F. Fleming called the meeting to order and C. Edward Smith was elected chairman with John Richardson as secretary.

Eliminate The Bell

One of the things upon which there was unanimous agreement was that the ringing of the signal bell, when the traffic lights change, should be discontinued.

To Help Pedestrians

To correct what was considered the present poor conditions for pedestrians crossing at the intersection it is suggested to change the present cycle of red, green, amber, in which the lights show, to red, green, red green, amber, red, green, red, green, amber, each on for 30 seconds. This will provide that there will be no vehicles moving at all when the amber light is on for pedestrians, and no pedestrians crossing when the red and green lights are on for vehicles.

It was suggested that the sign reading "Turn Right on Red" should read "Turn Right on Red and Green." It was said that some drivers now wait for the red before they make a right turn and do not seem to sense that they can also turn right on the green light.

Some expressed the view that they didn't think much of Shetucket street as a one-way street and they were prepared to see the traffic policeman run over at any minute, while others thought it ought to be given longer trial before condemning it.

Several merchants present were strong in condemnation of the firemen making a run through a one-way street (Main street) in the opposite direction to the allowed traffic. One merchant said he saw the fire department apparatus when it knocked over the Plaut-Cadden clock and it was only by good luck they didn't seriously injure a woman on the sidewalk at that time.

Overstaying Parking Limits

One merchant called attention to the overstaying of limits in 40-minute parking places and declared that some of the business men themselves were the worst offenders in this regard, as they park their cars for a whole afternoon or morning in a restricted area.

The question was asked why the time limits on parking were not enforced, but it went unanswered.

The question of possible parking places brought out a strong expression against the action of the New Haven railroad charging for parking in the space around the depot, while it was giving the community "nothing" in return in the way of service.

The suggestion was made that the yard in the rear of the Elks' home on Main street made a suitable spot which visitors to the city might utilize.

Both Ways On Church St.

The suggestion was made to change Church street from one-way to a two-way traffic so that automobiles could go either east or west on it, but have parking only on one side. Which side that would be was left to be worked out.

It was suggested that the present signs at Broadway and Washington street, at the upper end of Chelsea parade, ought to be changed. The signs suggested are one pointing down Broadway and reading "To Norwich Business Section," and the other pointing down Washington street and giving directions to New Haven and New York. Another sign at Washington square, directing to the business sectio., was also suggested.

Besides those already named the merchants attending the meeting were Clifford E. Wilson, Joseph Alexander, Charles Barker, John J. Morley, Joseph M. Lahn, J. B. Caron, Carl W. Brown and J. Lincoln Crawford.

PATIENTS IN HOSPITAL MAKE BUDDY POPPIES

Disabled veterans in government hospitals throughout the country have been manufacturing thousands of poppies during the past several months in anticipation of the ninth annual V. F. W. buddy poppy sale by the Veterans of Foreign Wars posts during the week previous to Memorial day, May 30. Wearing of the poppy has become a fixed custom in connection with Memorial day, significant of the sacrifices made by America's dead in all wars. Distribution of the buddy poppy has been based on the slogan to "Honor the Dead by Helping the Living." Proceeds of buddy poppy sale receipts are used exclusively for the care of disabled and unfortunate ex-service men and their dependants, regardless of color, creed or affiliation. The government hospitals are filled to capacity with these disabled men.

Every V. F. W. Buddy Poppy Relief fund is administered by a committee of members and makes possible service bureau liaison work, military funerals for deceased comrades, hospital and medical treatment in emergency cases, acquisition and maintenance of burial lots for ex-service men.

In addition, a portion of the proceeds is diverted toward development of the V. F. W. National home for orphans of veterans at Eaton Rapids, Michigan.

ADDITIONAL COMPENSATION FOR EYESIGHT LOSS

A supplemental finding and award in the case of Daniel R. Dennis of 279 North Main street for partial loss of eyesight has been made by Commissioner Albert J. Bailey. Dennis is an employe of Patrick F. Sweeney.

On May 2, 1930, a finding and award was made, giving Dennis compensation at the rate of $16 per week for five per cent loss of vision of Dennis' right eye, amounting to $124.80, but since that award was filed a report has been submitted to the commission by Dr. A. L. Prince an eye specialist of Hartford. Dr. Prince in his second report deals specifically with the percentage of loss of vision in the injured eye, and estimates same as 7 1-2 per cent, which is 2 1-2 per cent more than estimated by the attending eye doctor and as awarded on May 2nd. In view of the evidence, the commissioner stated that the claimant, Dennis is entitled to the benefit of this larger estimate as to permanent injury now. He therefore orders the respondents to pay to Dennis the sum of $62.40 for 2 1-2 per cent loss of vision or 3.9 weeks at the rate of $16 per week, in addition to the original award.

CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN THIS WEEK IN THE CITY

Persons having an accumulation of rubbish which they would like to have removed may notify Street Commissioner H. B. Wightman and a truck will call for the material to be removed, but the request is made that it be placed at an accessible point near the street or on the sidewalk.

The firemen are also conducting inspections to remove fire hazards.

MADE REPORT AS SUGGESTED BY BISHOP JAMES CANNON

E. C. Jameson, New York Capitalist, Told the Senate Lobby Committee That In His Report of His Contributions to the Anti-Smith Campaign In Virginia He Had Followed Information From Bishop Cannon, Although It Did Not Correspond With His Own Records—As Requested, All Checks Were Made Payable to "Cash."

WASHINGTON, May 6—(AP)—Opening its investigation of dry organizations the senate lobby committee today received testimony from E. C. Jameson, New York capitalist, that he had contributed $65,300 to Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church, South to be used in the 1928 anti-Smith campaign in Virginia.

Jameson was called as the result of testimony before the lobby committee by Representative Tinkham, republican, Massachusetts, who charged that Bishop Cannon had reported receipt of only $17,000 of the $65,000. Bishop Cannon, who is president of the Board of Temperance and Social Service of his church, will be called later.

Questioned concerning the amount contributed to Cannon, which was a part of $172,800 the witness said he donated to anti-Smith organizations in 1928, Jameson produced a report he made last year to Senator Steiwer, republican, Oregon, chairman of a senate committee investigating campaign expenditures.

The report said Jameson had been advised by Bishop Cannon, who was chariman fo the Virginia anti-Smith committee, that the "headquarters committee" of anti-Smith democrats used $17,300 and that the official records showed the Virginia committee of anti-Smith democrats used $48,000.

Chairman Caraway then read a telegram sent to Jameson by Cannon that purported to suggest how the contributions should be reported. The telegram said:

"After careful examination records think statement should be:'Paid headquarters committee anti-Smith democrats $17,300. Paid Virginia committee anti-Smith democrats $48,000, making total $65,300.' This will correspond exactly with our official reports."

"Now, it seems you made this report, not at your own volition, but at Bishop Cannon's suggestion," Caraway commented.

"My report says that I am informed, and that I followed the information", Jameson replied.

"You followed the information from Bishop Cannon?"

"Yes Sir."

"Although it did not correspond with your records at all?" Caraway demanded.

"Well, it doesn't seem to correspond with them now, does it," Jameson said. "At least, they say it doesn't."

"Well, you said it," Caraway asserted.

Jameson gave the committee a number of cancelled checks which he said were for Cannon. Caraway, after looking them over, said they were made payable to "Cash."

"Were they asked for in that form?" he asked.

"Yes," the witness replied.

"Did he tell you why he wanted them marked cash?"

"No."

The witness said he also had contributed from his personal funds $50,000 to the national constitutional democratic committee; $30,000 to the republican state committee of Virginia; $20,000 to the republican state committee of North Carolina; $5,000 to the republican state committee of Indiana, and $2,500 to the republican national commitee of New York.

In addition, he said he had given $3,475 to the Anti-Saloon league during the last three years and that $18,000 had been donated by about 4,000 persons employed by insurance companies in New York. Jameson is head of a New York insurance company.

The committee adjourned until Thursday when F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, will testify.

Billion Dollar Ten Year Naval Program

Bill Has Been Drafted By Chairman Britten of House Naval Committee

WASHINGTON, May 6.—(AP)—A bill to authorize a ten year naval construction program to cost $1,000,000,000 was being drafted today by Chairman Britten of the house naval committee who said the "enormous expenditure will be necessary to place the American navy on a parity with the British navy under the terms of the London naval treaty."

Britten announced after a conference with Secretary Adams that he would introduce the bill. He said he obtained confidential figures from the secretary which showed new construction requirements necessary to place the American navy on a parity with the British fleet at the expiration of the treaty in 1936.

In addition to the 75,300 tons of six-inch gun cruisers allowed the United States under the treaty, the Illinois member said, the program would call for 150,000 tons in new destroyers, 52,700 tons in submarines and 69,000 tons in aircraft carriers.

Britten plans to introduce the bill tomorrow. At the same time the senate foreign affairs committee will meet to outline its program for hearing members of the American delegation before the treaty is placed before the senate for ratification.

Britten predicted the section of the London treaty providing for the light cruisers carrying six-inch guns "undoubtedly will be a subject of attack by naval experts as to their practicability, during the hearings before the naval committee."

ONE BANK BANDIT KILLED, HIS COMPANION WOUNDED

DAYTON, Ohio, May 6—(AP)—An unidentified bank bandit about 35 years of age is dead and his partner in crime, James Royal, 21, of St. Louis, lies in a critical condition in a hospital here tonight from many bullet wounds in his body, as the result of the futile attempt on their part to hold up employes of the Xenia avenue branch of the Union Trust company here today.

Beyond stating that he met the dead bandit in St. Louis several days ago, Royal refused to discuss the bank holdup or to aid in the identification of his companion. Finger prints of the slain robber are to be taken and dispatched to police in St. Louis in an effort to identify him.

No sooner had the pair entered the bank, and covered Phil J. Kloos, manager,and several other employes with revolvers ordering them to "Stick 'em up," than a volley of lead was fired at them by Patrolman W. T. Dempsey, who was secreted in a rear room stationed there in anticipation of such a robbery.

Taken completely by surprise, the bandits, one of whom was struck in the face by a bullet, returned the fire and then fled from the place. Failing to get their own automobile started, the pair ran through an alley to an adjacent street, and seeing Urban Thobe, driver of a truck about to start his machine, attempted to get him to drive them away. Suspecting something wrong, Thobe purposely stalled the engine of his machine. By this time Patrolman Dempsey, armed with a repeating rifle came upon the pair, who started running again. Another volley from the officer's weapon brought both to the ground.

ROYAL RECEPTION IN N. Y. FOR GOLD STAR MOTHERS

NEW YORK, May 6—(AP)—Mrs. Laura B. Hammers of Canton, Ohio, never thought that into her life would come a day like today.

By the slow movements of her worn hands, by the bend of her rounded shoulders, by the patient expression on her pale, tired face, one may know with what silent fortitude she received in the autumn of 1918 one of those war department telegrams that engraved new lines of pain on the faces of so many American mothers.

But for her today, in the world's greatest city, flags were unfurled, soldiers stood at attention, bands played the half-forgotten tunes of 1917, and speeches were made.

For her and for 231 other mothers who tomorrow, on the 13th anniversary of the beginning of "the big parade," will sail for France as the guests of their government to visit the battlefields where their boys died and the graves where they now sleep through eternity.

Through lines of soldiers and sailors and marines, these distinguished guests of New York were escorted today into the city hall, where high ranking officers of the army and navy and officials of the city waited to greet them and wish them godspeed.

CONVENTION OF COTTON MANUFACTURERS' ASS'N

PINEHURST, N. C., May 6—(AP)—Discussion of problems which the textile industry must solve in an effort to end the period of depression which has been troubling the manufacturers for several years featured the opening sessions of the convention of the American Cotton Manufacturers' association here today.

These problems were described by the speakers as development of new outlets for production, fitting production to demand, and merchandising the products the mills manufacture.

The bankers' viewpoint of the industry was described in the leading speech of the morning session by F. W. Shibley, vice president of the Bankers' Trust company of New York.

Mr. Shibley said present conditions should not be blamed on the industry but are due to the way the industry is being operated. He urged that unorganized forces be harnessed and controlled and that something be done to make production and demand balance. This is the one step forward which must be taken in order to get the industry on a better basis, he said.

GOV. TRUMBULL URGES PRECAUTION AGAINST STARTING FOREST FIRES

HARTFORD, May 6—(AP)—Warning that unless the present forest fire menace is abated within a few days, stringest emergency regulations will become necessary, Gov. John H. Trumbull appealed to the people of the state to take every possible precaution against starting forest fires in a proclamation issued tonight.

The proclamation follows:

"Confronted by an unprecedented season of drought which has resulted in over 700 forest fires in Connecticut since the first to March, and tremendous economic loss to the forests of the state, I therefore appeal to all residents of Connecticut and to all visitors to take every possible precaution against starting fires. Since the contributing factors to this menace include the burning of brush and rubbish, camp and picnic fires, carelessness with matches and smoking materials, I strongly urge everyone to avoid such causes and to co-operate with the state forestry department in its effort to save our forests.

"In the event that the present menace is not abated within a few days, I will feel it my duty to issue more stringent emergency regulations, which, however, I believe will not be necesary, having implicit faith in the public spirit of our people."

SENATE TO VOTE ON PARKER NOMINATION AT 1.30 TODAY

Confirmation of Judge Parker As Justice of the U. S. Supreme Court Is Believed to Hinge On Three Senators Still In the Doubtful Class — Discussion Yesterday Teemed With Excitement—Estimates Last Night Ranged From Rejection By Three Votes to Confirmation By One Vote —In Case of Tie Vote Friends of Parker Are Confident That Vice President Curtis Will Vote For the Nominee.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—(AP)—The senate will vote at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon on the severely contested nomination of Judge John J. Parker of North Carolina, to the supreme court, with the result believed tonight to hinge on three senators still in the doubtful class.

The agreement to vote tomorrow was reached after the senate had made its own investigation of the charge by Senator Ashurst, democrat, Arizona, that federal judgeships were being offered in return for votes for Parker.

In a session tense with excitement and teeming with angry exchanges, Senator Ashurst named Senator Dill, democrat, Washington, as the senator who he said had told him he had been offered a judgeship if he would vote for Parker.

Senator Dill, calm and dispassionate in contrast, said Senator Ashurst had misunderstood him, and told the senate the whole thing was "ridiculous." He said a personal friend from Washington had urged him to vote for Parker but he did not consider the friend had made any offer. A reference had been made to judgeships, he said, but he did not take it seriously.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader, then withdrew his request for a senate investigation.

The senate agreed unanimously to a proposal by Senator Fess, republican, Ohio, for a vote at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and opposing leaders again set to work to determine their strength.

At nightfall the foes of Parker claimed they still had the votes to reject him. Friends of the nominee, however, were hopeful and estimates of the outcome ranged from rejection by three votes to confirmation by one vote.

There were some who believed a tie might result. In that event friends of Parker were confident Vice-President Curtis would cast his determining ballot in favor of the nominee. It was believed every one of the 96 senators would be accounted for on the roll call.

Administration republican ranks still were divided tonight by the two-fold opposition of organized labor and of the National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People. Likewise, the democrats were split, but Senator Overman, democrat, North Carolina, who is leading the fight for confirmation, said tonight "We have a chance."

Senators Allen, Jones, of Washington, Shortridge, of California, and McCulloch, of Ohio, all republicans, joined in Parker's defense in the debate today, the proponents carrying on an all-day campaign.

The examination of Senator Ashurst by his colleagues was the high spot of the ten days of senate consideration.

Senator Allen made a severe attack upon the Arizonian for his statements of yesterday:

"I have known many instances," he said, "in which senators inclining toward the front page have attacked the president of the United States but I have never read an attack upon the president of the United States as unbridled and unconscionable as this one. The mere fact that the senator from Arizona now says that he did not mean to include the president of the United States does not in any sense soften the real meaning of that which he said."

The Arizonian then read from the Congressional Record what he had said yesterday, denying that he meant the president in his charge of vote buying.

Other senators then joined in questioning the Arizonian, quoting some of his language of yesterday and asking that he explain it.

The Arizona senator held his ground, making the final concession that perhaps there were some "slight inaccuracies" in his words of yesterday.

"I do not retreat one inch," he exclaimed in conclusion, "from the position that enormous pressure, sinister and improper, has been brought to bear on senators. Make the most of it!"

The chamber roared with laughter and the senate considered the incident closed.

Ashurst previously had assured the senate that he had told all the "legal evidence" he had when he related what he understood Senator Dill had told him at a luncheon conference on Saturday at which Senator Bratton, democrat, New Mexico, also was present.

Senator Bratton told the senate that he considered the story told by Senator Dill as accurate in all details.

SEARCHING FOR BODIES OF COAST GUARDSMEN

PORT CLINTON, O., May 6.—(AP)—Coast guard officers here tonight were preparing to resume tomorrow the intensive search of Lake Erie between Detroit and Toledo for the body of Jack Hay, a chief motor machinist, who is missing after a mysterious lake tragedy that cost the lives of two of his companions.

The bodies of Captain Gardner D. Young and Motor Machinist Mate William Pratt were sent by train under escort today to their former homes in the east.

Without announcing their intended destination, the three guardsmen put out from a coast guard cutter in a speedboat last Thursday from near Detroit. Three days later, the bodies of Young and Pratt were found in life preservers, floating in Maumee Bay near Toledo.

About 20 coast guard boats patrolled the lake between here and Toledo yesterday and 37 guard boats and other lake craft patrolled near Monroe, Mich., today without finding the missing speedboat or discovering what kind of a tragedy occurred.

DISTURBANCE IN INDIA IS BECOMING WARLIKE

BOMBAY, India, May 6—(AP)—An almost endless list of outbreaks today marked the turning of the imprisoned Mahatma Gandhi's campaign of civil disobedience from peaceful into warlike progress.

Bloodshed occurred in a dozen cities where hostile actions of the "holy one's" followers were met with armed force.

The home and Indian governments strengthened with troops and armored cars the hands of local police authorities.

Outstanding among the day's disorders was a clash at Delhi in which two natives were killed and fifty or more seriously wounded. A half mile procession of Gandhi devotees filed into the city's principal thoroughfare.

With this group the authorities grappled for several hours, finally seeking the aid of cavalry troops, who emerged this afternoon in control of the situation.

DRY BUREAU PLANNING AN INTENSIVE CAMPAIGN

WASHINGTON, May 6.—(AP)—Armed with a favorable supreme court interpretation of the first of a series of controversial questions submitted to it by Attorney General Mitchell, the prohibition bureau today laid plans for an intensive campaign against manufacturers who furnish bootleggers with containers and other paraphernalia used in violating the prohibition law.

The decision of the court yesterday that the bureau might seize casks, bottles, corks, etc., that were displayed to attract purchasers who intended to use the materials in the manufacture of intoxicants was described today by Prohibition Commissioner Doran as furnishing the weapon his forces needed.

Every offensive angle afforded by the decision will be utilized, he said, and the bureau will proceed at once against every person or firm where the case is similar to that decided by the supreme court.

Doran said the big dealers would be the first objective. Later the campaign will be "carried down the line," to chain stores and small dealers who display bottles, corks, kegs and other supplies to be used by liquor manufacturers.

CHOSE LIFE IMPRISONMENT RATHER THAN TRIAL BY JURY

NEW HAVEN, May 6—(AP)—Orazio Maltese, gang chieftain, today chose life imprisonment instead of gambling with his life at the hands of a jury for ordering the death of one of his "mob."

A crowded superior court was taken by surprise as he stepped before the bar and entered a plea of guilty to a reduced charge of murder in the second degree for the death of Dominick Zito, 16 year old racketeer, last November.

Judge Edwin C. Dickenson accepted his plea and sentenced him to life in state's prison.

Arthur D. Brown, who confessed police say, to taking Zito "for a ride" and shooting him for $15, will go on trial May 20, State's Attorney Samuel E. Hoyt announced.

Zito's body was found in a field in Orange three weeks after he had been shot through the back of the head. After six weeks of investigation Brown was located in a Trenton, N. J., workhouse where he had been committed for stealing an automobile after the murder.

OBITUARY

Joseph Bosse

Joseph Bosse, 59, died at St. Joseph's hospital this forenoon after an illness of some three months' duration. He was well known here, having recently retired from partnership in a furniture and undertaking business. He was born in St. Pascal, Canada, November 15, 1870, a son of Joseph and Luminda Charrette Bosse. He leaves one brother, William A. Bosse; a niece, Miss Jeannette Bosse: and a nephew, Arthur Bosse, all of this city. He was a member of Willimantic lodge, No. 1311, B. P. O. Elks, Willimantic lodge, No. 1440, Loyal Order of Moose and San Jose council, No. 14, Knights of Columbus.

The presence of a one-half mill on the rate tax of 4 and one-half mills levied by the selectmen of Windham Monday afternoon, was explained today with a statement that the one-half mill would be used toward paying for the examination and auditing of the town books as recently voted at a special town meeting and for which an appropriation of $10,000 was made. The four mills will be added to the eight mills voted by the electors, making the total town tax for this year one of 12 mills. On the grand list of the town 12 mills, plus outside income will meet the budget of $402,700. The special levy ordered by the selectmen overcomes the deficit of $117,547 which the town faced in meeting its budget provided that the eight mill budget provided that the eight mills prevailed and that taxes were collected 100 per cent, which incidentally, is far from proving to be the case with only one more day of grace allowed in which to make tax payments. The special tax levy will be made payable either May 26 or June 2.

With Wednesday as the final day for making payment of taxes of eight mills on the town grand list, Collector Albert J. Piche stated about midday that a balance of $43,319.93 yet remained to be collected within the next 36 hours. The amount collectible is $185,152.48.

One of the largest whist crowds to gather here in some time attended the second annual public whist given by James J. Shea post, No. 19, American Legion, in the town hall tonight. Over 100 tables were in play and 16 prizes were given away. The prizes were donated by various merchants as follows: One-half ton of coal, A. Sussman Coal company; one-half ton of coal, Parker-Elliott Coal company; ladies' silk umbrella, Tubridy-Weldon company; smoking stand, Jordan Hardware company; ladies' shirt waist, A. Butleman; box of chocolates, Hallocks, Inc.; porcelain dog, Willimantic Art & Gift shop; electric toaster or flatiron, Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company; broadcloth shirt, H. E. Remington, Inc.: men's umbrella, Church-Reed company; two pair of silk stockings, Rhode Island Textile company; Brownie No. 2, camera, Curran & Flynn; man's soft hat, Ben's Toggery shop; string of pearls, Smith-Keon; ladies' satin slippers, Union Shoe company; set of men's rayon underwear, Cohen & Rothblat. Chairman Levi Goss of the entertainment committee of the post was in charge of arrangements.

Cases of local interest to be taken up at the short calendar session of the Windham county superior court at Putnam Friday are: Margaret Alice Shea, appeal from probate, estate of Dennis Shea; and Oliver L. Willard vs. Leander Wright. The uncontested divorce case of Ernest J. Bernier versus Ellen C. Bernier is also scheduled.

An excellent program of entertainment was provided at the regular meeting of the Woman's club held in the Model school auditorium this afternoon. Artists who were heard were: S. B. Terry of Hartford, baritone; Miss Ruth Ray, violinist; of Springfield, Miss Grace Gilliott, also of Springfield, Mass., was accompanist.

Local men who attended the reception to the grand commander of the Knights Templar of Connecticut, C. Hadlai Hull, at New London Monday evening were: Past Grand Commander James P. Mustard, Louis B. Tenney, Albert B. Smith, Russell W. Potter, C. Arthur Taintor, Harry W. Avery and Harold S. Maine.

While engaged in a friendly wrestling match with his brother Monday afternoon, George Burnore, 13, of 20 Milk street, received a fracture of the arm. He received treatment at St. Joseph's hospital.

At a naturalization session of the Windham county superior court to be held here Tuesday, May 13, there are 23 continued and 32 new cases to be heard. Judge Arthur F. Ells will preside.

Dr. Arthur E. S. Casey of Philadelphia, Pa., with his guest, John Mallon, also of Philadelphia, is spending a few days with relatives and friends in town.

The training school for nurses at St. Joseph's hospital is one of the 23 accredited in the state. Only those graduating from such schools will be allowed to take the examination for registration.

Frank McCarthy of Longmeadow, Mass., has been a visitor in town this week.

The application of L. J. Fitchern of this city for admission at the examinations next month in New Haven, will come up for action at a meeting of the Windham county bar to be held at Putnam Friday morning at 9:45 o'clock.

Rumors, some of which fell within the category of "wild", swept the city today as to the alleged drastic curtailment of city expenses to be declared by the common council next Monday night. From some quarters it was said that all street lights would be extinguished at midnight and that members of the police department would be cut down to four or five days a week. There exists a similar belief as to the street, sewer and water departments. While none of these rumors would be substantiated today by members of the council, none were denied pending the May meeting of the council to be held Monday night. Resolutions affecting certain curtailments will be prepared at an executive session of the aldermen Friday night and presented at the regular monthly session. A cursory survey of conditions indicated that the fire department would probably be the only one not affected owing to insurance ratings prevailing in the city and the great danger of fire hazard. The proposed curtailment movement becomes a necessity with the council owing to the vote of the special city meeting Monday night when an eight mill tax rate was levied. The income from this tax rate, plus about $14,500 outside income, falls short of the budget of annual expenses by over $76,000. There was considerable agitation today in favor of another special city meeting in the hope of giving taxpayers not present Monday night an opportunity to appear and vote for a larger tax rate. This agitation was impelled by the fact that the eight mill tax rate prevailed by the small majority of 8 votes, the standing count being 103 in favor of eight mills and 95 against.

Delegates from 19 churches in this vicinity will attend the annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary society of Ashford association to be held at Spring Hill, town of Mansfield, Wednesday morning and afternoon.

COLCHESTER

MISS JULIA M. ADAMS DIES AS RESULT OF A FALL

Miss Julia M. Adams died at her home on Hayward avenue at 2.50 o'clock, Monday morning, following a long illness. July 14, 1929, she broke her hip in a fall on the Congregational church steps and on the sixteenth was taken to Backus hospital, Norwich, for treatment. Twelve weeks later she was dismissed from the hospital but a few weeks after returning to her home here, an X-ray showed that the broken bones had not been united properly but it was then too late to have the bones reset. For the past several months she had suffered intense agony and when recently an infection set in, her condition continued to grow steadily worse.

Miss Adams was a life-long resident here, the daughter of Joseph N. and Rachel M. Adams. She attended the grade schools and Bacon academy and taught for a year at the old Johnson school house in Bozrah. Her father, Joseph N. Adams conducted a large general store on Merchants' Row here for many years and was also cashier for a number of years of the old Colchester Savings bank, during which time Miss Adams acted as the bank bookkeeper. She was an active and loyal member of Colchester Congregational church. Endowed with a home-loving nature and a cheery, cordial manner, she had gained a large circle of friends here and in surrounding towns who have extended sincere sympathy to the bereaved relatives. She is survived by a sister, Mrs. Lucius C. Brown of Colchester and a cousin in Denver, Colorado.

A. teams and a team representing the eighth grade pupils in this vicinity will take part. Samuel Jaffe, manager of the Bacon academy team, is in charge of the track meet arrangements.

From 2 to 2:30 o'clock there will be a social half hour in the new Day hall. Music will be furnished by the academy orchestra.

DANIELSON

NO ACTION TAKEN AT SPECIAL TOWN MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 6.—The flattest of all flat town meetings in Killingly in recent years was that one that endured about 40 seconds tonight and then passed on to be listed among the things that were. It was a special town meeting called to see whether the town would vote to let out such road work as is done by motor trucks to the lowest bidder, who is a resident of the town, instead of letting the selectmen handle that phase of roadwork as they have for many years past.

A little more than a hundred people came out for the meeting. Attorney Harry E. Back was named as chairman. Town Clerk Frank T. Preston read the warning, setting forth the purposes of the meeting. When he had finished no one arose to favor the proposition nor did anyone say anything against it and after a wait of about half a minute, V. H. Wetherell moved that the whole proposition be laid on the table and the meeting so decided, though there were a few scattering and dissenting votes. It has been generally said here for the past week that the selectmen should be allowed a free hand in taking care of the roads, or otherwise tossed out, and other selectmen elected. That idea seemed to prevail at tonight's meeting.

DEATH OF MRS. ALICE M. BACON OCCURRED TUESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 6.—Early this morning the death of Mrs. Alice M. Bacon occurred at the home on Main street where the family has been resident the past 46 years. Mrs. Bacon, the wife of Charles H. Bacon, Danielson's oldest active business man, was in her 82d year. She had been ill for a long time.

Mrs. Bacon was born July 22, 1848, at Ashton-Under-Lyne, England, a daughter of John and Ann Whitehead Lilley. She had spent the greater part of her life in this country, being in her early years a resident of Montville and of Plainfield.

Aug. 1, 1871, here in Danielson, she was united in marriage with Charles H. Bacon, who survives her. She also leaves a son, Edward, and a daughter, Grace, both at home, and three sisters, Mrs. Everett Hyde of Danielson, Mrs. Jennie Smith of Bridgeport and Mrs. Frank Keech of Centerdale, R. I. There are also two grandchildren, Alice Bacon and Charlotte Bacon, of Danielson, daughters of W. Clarence Bacon, who died suddenly Feb. 8, 1929. Mrs. Bacon was a member of the Westfield Congregational church.

TAKEN FROM COUNTY JAIL TO NORWICH STATE HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 6.—Warren Benson of the town of Thompson served just five minutes of a 90-day sentence at the county jail in Brooklyn this morning before he was out in an automobile and away again. With him went State Officer George Martin heading the car toward Norwich and the State hospital in that city.

Benson on three different charges of indecent exposure was sentenced to serve a total of 90 days in jail at a sitting today of a justice's court in Thompson. He was formally committed to jail, but his mental condition was such that it was deemed advisable to transfer him at once to the Norwich institution.

Greeno Bound Over

Frederick Greeno, absent from Goodyear for several years, was bound over to the superior court under bonds of $500 this morning on a charge of nonsupport of his wife and children. Greeno was picked up in New York the past week for the state officers of the Danielson barracks. It was necessary to procure extraditing papers to get him back into Connecticut. It was believed today that his case will get consideration at the present term of the superior court.

The first shipment of asphalt and tar to be used this season on borough streets and highways of the town was expected today to be ready for application Wednesday morning, weather permitting. Sand for doing the covering work already has been distributed. About four and a half carloads of the asphalt and tar will be required to do the work, and it is to be applied by a contractor with equipment for doing the work efficiently and rapidly. First Selectman Charles A. Tillinghast said this morning that the work will be pushed forward as rapidly as possible and with as little inconvenience to the public as possible. He added that while the oiling process is distasteful to some citizens, he trusts they will be patient, for the benefits to be derived from the operation during the course of the year. The surfaces of the borough's oiled streets have withstood wear and tear better since the oiling of last spring than during any like period of recent years, and this has been due in part to the comparatively mild winter.

FUNERAL

Alfred Choquette

This morning the funeral of Alfred Choquette was held from the home in Wauregan with funeral services at the Sacred Heart church in that place at 9 o'clock. Rev. J. H. Quinn, the pastor, was celebrant of the high mass of requiem. There were many relatives and friends in attendance. Burial was in the Sacred Heart cemetery. The bearers were Oliver Lasnier, Edgar Lasnier, George Guilmont, Homer Sabourine, Raymond Doyle and Frederick Hitt. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

Named National Officers

Francis Ingraham and Harold LaBelle, both members of the agricultural department of Killingly high school, have respectively been elected vice-president and secretary of the newly-formed state chapter of the Future Farmers of America, now well organized in many states. A local chapter also has been formed here, with 15 members. The national meeting of the organization is to be held at St. Louis in November, and delegates will be present from all states having representation in it.

The new Connecticut state chapter, organized at Storrs, has four local chapters—At Killingly high, at Windham, at Enfield and at Southington.

In the judging contest at Storrs, Killingly high school's team placed second out of 15 teams composed of 45 boys. Harvey Kimball of the local school placed second on Jerseys and eighth on all breeds. Robert Terwilliger, also of this school, placed third on Ayrshires and fourth on all breeds.

MANY FAVOR PURCHASE OF ANOTHER MOTOR PUMPER

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 6.—The suggestion that Danielson purchase another motor pumper for the fire department is receiving surprisingly strong endorsement from many citizens, the great majority of them taxpayers. They believe that Danielson should act at once to protect itself against a disastrous fire loss such as may occur at any time, as so frequently and sadly illustrated in the eastern states during the present week.

Chief A. P. Woodward of the fire department said this morning that he is in hearty accord with the plan to buy another pumper and relieve a situation under which the borough is almost wholly dependent on the one machine that it possesses. Without that one pumper Danielson would have had a very bad fire loss last Sunday. If it should fail in action, and all motors do at times, the borough would find itself facing a very bad situation.

Chief Woodward said this morning that if a special borough meeting should vote an appropriation for another pumper, a smaller one than is now owned here, at a cost of about $6,000, payment for it could be arranged under the same plan that was used when the first one was bought—laying a special half-mill tax each year for several years. In this manner the cost would be so distributed as not to be a burden on the taxpayers.

Chief Woodward mentioned one type of pumper that is equipped with a 600-gallon a minute pump that can be bought for around $6,000, and added to the local department would make it much more effective against a hard fire than it can possibly be now, no matter how willing and able the men who do such fine work here.

With a gale of wind coming in from the northwest making the conditions for shooting probably the worst ever experienced at a registered shoot held by the Danielson Rod and Gun club, the second registered shoot of the season was held recently and in spite of the conditions some very good scores were made.

H. O. Brigham, Newport, R. I., led the field in the 16-yard target with a score of 94; E. C. Griffith, second with 91, while L. H. Bradley, Hartford, M. D. Roberts, Middletown, and C. F. Peabody, New London, tied for third. In class A. George L. Ingalls won in class B with 86, with Crawfield and Carter tied for second with 84. In the distance handicap, E. L. Carter and George L. Ingalls tied for high with 45, shooting from 19 yards, with L. H. Bradley second with 44 from 22 yards. In the doubles, W. J. Stainton was high with 38 from 50 with Bradley second with 36.

GARIEPY BOY, 9, RESCUES CHILD FROM DROWNING

Quentin Gariepy, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adelard Gariepy, rescued Gerald Aucoin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Aucoin, from the Maanexit river, into which the boy had fallen while playing. The Gariepy boy, attracted by the cries of the playmates who were panic stricken upon seeing the struggles of the boy in the water, ran to the river. The boy was out of reach and in water more than 10 feet deep. The Griepy boy crawled out on a barbed wire fence overhanging the river, hung on with one hand and reached for the child with the other hand. After much effort he succeeded in grasping the boy's collar and worked his way back to the shore, for more than 60 feet.

Gariepy told the boy and his playmates to go home and keep away from the water. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Aucoin were ignorant of the incident until their young son came home, dripping wet and the story was told by the other children. A search for the youthful hero was instituted and he modestly admitted the rescue.

PUTNAM

SIX MONTHS IN JAIL FOR WALTER LOEPA, PLAINFIELD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, May 6.—Rev. James F. English, pastor of the Congregational church of this city, opened the May term of criminal superior court at 10 o'clock this morning by offering prayer. Judge Arthur F. Ells of Waterbury, substituting for Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin of Hartford, who is ill, presided at the session which continued until 5 o'clock this afternoon. The majority of the criminal cases were cleared from the trial list at adjournment and according to State Attorney Howard C. Bradford it will not be necessary for another day to be devoted entirely to criminal business. Other cases will be presented to the bar during the remainder of the May civil term which will open Friday with a short calendar.

The only case of local interest settled today was that of the state vs. Sam Renick of Main street, who was to have been arraigned on a charge of breach of the peace. Following a consultation by Attorney Irving H. Miron, counsel for Renick, State Attorney Bradford and Judge Ells, the case against Renick was nolled. In the city court of Putnam, Renick was found guilty and fined $1 and costs, which he appealed.

Important among the cases tried was that of Walter Leopa of Plainfield who pleaded guilty to charges of resisting an officer and assault with a deadly weapon. He was sentenced to serve three months in the county jail on each count. Attorney Bradford stated that he felt the sentence was extremely mild in view of the fact that Leopa momentarily had intentions of taking the life of State Officer H. Theodore Strand of the Danielson barracks on the morning of March 17, when the officer was about to place him under arrest. Leopa, the state alleged, resisted Officer Strand, wrested his revolver from him and dealt him a fierce blow with his foot, in the officer's abdomen. However the policeman was successful in repossessing the weapon for a period long enough to remove the shells, after which the enraged and intoxicated man, it is alleged, grabbed it and fired the empty gun six times, exclaiming, "I'll kill you, you——". After a struggle Leopa was quelled by Officer George Martin who was with his brother officer, but was engaged at the time in restraining two of Leopa's companions from joining in the attack. Attorney Thomas Shields of Norwich, counsel for Leopa, in a statement to the court, attributed the cause of the conduct of his client to the fact that the officer in carrying out his duties had utterly disregarded the courtesies which an officer usually attributes to a prisoner. Mr. Shields said that he had evidence that Officer Strand in arresting Leopa forgot he was a gentleman, and his rude attitude toward his assailant was responsible for creating the scene that nearly cost the policeman his life.

Given Year in Jail

Dapper Ray Claflin, 45, the man of many aliases who has a chain of police records extending from Schenectady, N. Y., to Great Barrington, Mass. appeared in court this morning and after staging a sob scene, was found guilty of several charges of obtaining goods under false pretenses and was sentenced to serve a year in the county jail.

Claflin has eight police records known to authorities, which extend back over a period of 17 years. He was first arrested in Jersey City, N. J., in February, 1913, and convicted of a bigamy charge for which he served 18 months in the county penitentiary there. He was sentenced from courts in Bridgeport in August, 1926, when found guilty of fraudulent issuance of checks, and again in 1927 was re-arrested in Bridgeport when found to be obtaining goods while impersonating an officer of the U. S. secret service. On March 17, 1929, Claflin was taken into custody in Schenectady, N. Y., on a charge of grand larceny. Here he was going about under the name of Harold Cleveland Cook. Following a conviction, he was sentenced to serve 30 days in the county jail there. Fraudulent issuance of checks in the cities of Milford and Stratford, this state, caused police to issue warrants for the arrest of John Johnson, who, authorities later learned, was Raymond Claflin.

Successful in eluding the police, Claflin in December, 1923, went to Willimantic where he commenced a series of depredations that entailed several hundred dollars, the bulk of which has been borne by numerous Willimantic merchants who were fleeced by his criminal negotiations. Disappearing with a woman, with whom he lived, Claflin attracted the attention of County Detective Rowe H. Wheeler, who was assigned to apprehend Claflin and clear up the case. Trailing him to various cities in New England and finding police accounts of his depredations in nearly every community visited, Detective

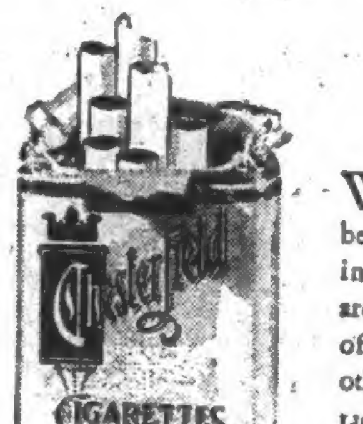
In a debutante it's Charm

in a cigarette it's Taste

MANY FINE QUALITIES make up the "charm" that is Miss America's, but her genuine wholesomeness appeals most of all.

IN A CIGARETTE, TOO, the real appeal is wholesomeness of taste.

WITNESS CHESTERFIELD'S popularity, growing every day. No flash in the pan, but enduring popularity, earned by giving smokers a cigarette of better quality, richer aroma and finer fragrance, blended and cross-blended to just one end . . . "TASTE above everything".



We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield cigarettes are of finer quality and hence of better taste than in any other cigarette at the price.

ONE MEANS OF PREVENTION.

The petition that has been sent to the governor urging the closing of the fishing season until the danger from the forest fires is over must be looked upon as a good one. Action in keeping therewith has been taken in other states and there are good reasons why such protection as would be afforded thereby should be extended to Connecticut.

There is nothing about fishing itself that should cause fires. Those who meander along a brook, dropping a baited line here and there, are not out for the purpose of causing damage and destruction to those through whose property the brook flows. Fishermen are, nevertheless, smokers. They can get plenty of enjoyment out of the weed while they are angling for trout. In fact, it is quite a necessary accompaniment for many a fisherman, and it is because of this fact that there is a recognized value in keeping as many as possible out of the fields and woods.

If there were no fishermen along the brooks it would be possible for fires to be started, but with the suspension of the fishing season it will mean that less people will be visiting the territory which is now in a condition to burst into flame the minute a match is dropped, a cigarette tossed aside or the ashes from a pipe are knocked into the leaves. The suspension idea is for the purpose of prevention, and there is no better reason for prevention than the frightful losses that are being suffered at this time from forest fires. The forest fire record tells its own story in this respect.

Forest fires have been engaging the attention of thousands for the past week and in addition to piling up millions in losses have resulted in many deaths and much effort that could be greatly reduced. If this reduction can be accomplished in Connecticut by having those who might unintentionally be the cause of forest fires keep away from such localities it would be real prevention, and this is the time when prevention means something. Even the fishermen can appreciate that the owners of woodland and other property have a right to seek to keep their property intact, although fishermen are by no means the only ones responsible for forest fires.

MORROW'S ATTITUDE

While the primary in New Jersey hasn't actually gotten underway, it is evident from one or two developments that a start has been made, and the people of that state will be prepared for the developments which appear to be certain.

Some time ago it was announced that Dwight W. Morrow had been looked upon with much favor as republican candidate for United States senator from that state. He had made an excellent impression as ambassador to Mexico. The relationship of the two countries has greatly improved as the result of his ministrations. Mexico would be delighted if he were to return there now that his services as delegate to the London conference have been completed.

According to the plan arranged by New Jersey leaders, Mr. Morrow was to be named as senator to fill the unexpired term of Senator Baird, recently appointed when Senator Edge was made ambassador to France. Senator Baird was agreeable to such action, but on his return from Europe Mr. Morrow puts his veto upon the idea. He will go to the senate if and when he is chosen by the people of New Jersey. He does not want the appointment for any short period. This makes it evident to the Jerseyites that he is going to leave no loophole for the claim to be made that the way has been paved his his entrance into the senate. He doesn't seek any prestige that might come from a short sitting in the upper house of congress. He knows that in such a campaign as he must make he could not be in Washington and New Jersey at the same time, and it is of no little importance that New Jersey should have its representation while his campaign is going on.

Mr. Morrow understands of course that ex-Senator Frelinghuysen will be his opponent, that the latter had recently flopped into the wet column and that the drys are threatening to put a candidate in the field. The contest for the nomination thus promises to be an interesting one, but Mr. Morrow is making a strong impression before the people of his state by his attitude and he is avoiding certain possible claims by the course that he is taking. The candidate who stands on his own record of ability and accomplishment understands the demands of the public.

GANDHI'S ARREST

The situation in India has been attracting attention for a considerable time. The aim of the British government has apparently been to prevent developing a crisis by avoiding the arrest of Gandhi. He has preached and practiced non-violence, but has not been able to entirely control his followers. As long as the government could deal with the situation without causing his arrest it was believed that it would prevent attracting so much attention to his case and would avoid stirring up resentment.

Having stalled on the arrest either until it was ready to deal more effectively with the situation, or until his efforts had reached the point where it could not fail to take cognizance of his personal activity, the government has now invoked a century-old law whereby he has been arrested for actions that may lead to sedition or disorder. It is a law which provides for internment without the necessity of bringing the accused to trial.

The arrest of Gandhi was regarded as the signal for more trouble. Some of it has developed. It was also looked upon as offering the excuse for an uprising as a protest against such action. Developments along that line have occurred in India and in England there are those who are demanding that he be brought to trial.

It would please the government if the arrest would result in calming the situation, stopping the agitation and allowing the movement to gradually die out. With the leader out of the picture the effort becomes more or less headless. He has his lieutenants, but there have been evidences that they were not disposed to carry on the struggle under his policies. They have not been inclined to proceed without violence. Toward them the government has displayed a much different attitude. It appears ready to take measures that will subdue whatever aggression they display, and with Gandhi under restraint there is lacking that influence which has commanded in the past much government respect.

The tactics employed by the British government differ from those of the past. The purpose is evidently to refrain from inflaming the people as much as possible and it remains to be seen whether the outcome will be as successful as expected.

THE ASHURST CLAIM

The desperate efforts that are being employed by the opponents of the Parker appointment is well illustrated by the method employed by Senator Ashurst in trying to convince the senate that underhanded action is being employed in order to secure the vote of some of the democratic senators.

Naturally he expected that there would be a profound impression made upon the senate when he declared that one of the senators had been approached and offered a judgeship if he would vote for the confirmation of John J. Parker as a justice of the United States supreme court. He knew how the senate would react to any such course. He relied upon it as a master stroke to accomplish the defeat of the nominee.

He made a charge that could not be allowed to go unchallenged. He was required to give the name of the senator who had been so approached. He didn't want to give it. He didn't want to have the whole story told. He wanted to hide behind a say-so.

Forced into the open, he said that he had been told this by a fellow senator and when pressed to the point where he had to yield he declared it was Senator Dill, another democrat, who had told him. That would have been only adding support to his tale, but immediately Senator Dill was on his feet. He declared that it was not true. He had not told Senator Ashurst any such thing and if the Arizonan thought so he was mistaken.

Thus the judgeship charge falls flat. There isn't anything to it. Senator Ashurst stands discredited in his efford by the fellow democrat in the senate who couldn't permit his name to be attached to any such thing, although he was willing to let the Ashurst claim stand so long as his name wasn't connected with it.

Such desperate efforts to influence action on a nomination for the United States supreme court picture all too well the situation in the United States senate today.

SPEEDING INSPECTIONS

More or less complaint has been registered at the port of New York because of the delay occasioned in getting through customs. There have been charges of partiality and a general feeling that much might be done to avoid the delay if more consideration were given to the travelers by introducing more efficient methods or providing more inspectors, at least during the busiest times.

It was only a short time ago that the idea was again advanced of placing inspectors aboard steamships that they might make inspections while the vessel was enroute to this country. That would obviate much of the delay after a ship lands, would overcome a lot of confusion and would end most of the trouble and misunderstanding. It would likewise mean that passengers would not have to be kept on ships hours longer than necessary after docking.

As if in response to this suggestion, the treasury department has announced that inspectors will be placed on seven of the large ships sailing during this month. They will have offices on the ships, be at the service of passengers for the giving of instructions, spend ten days in the capitals of Europe with the idea of aiding those making out declarations and return on other ships. It is expected that they will be in possession of information upon their return that will aid in simplifying the declarations and it is possible that their experiences will be such as to bring about the adoption of the idea of having certain inspections carried out on shipboard during the trip to this country.

When several large ships arrive in New York, or any port, at the same time delays are inevitable. It is necessary for the inspectors to be thorough and yet the passengers chafe at being held up a half day or more when such work could be carried out in most instances during the course of the passage across the Atlantic.

LOVE ME, LOVE MY DOG

Despite the way Gordon Craig used to smash into the line—like a buffalo on its way from a prairie fire—here he was taking a step toward the elevator, and then shuffling back, and finally lagging aboard to drop down to street level.

"If she'd only smile or something," muttered Gordon, shaking his head, "a fellow might take a chance."

"She" was Alice Black, the old man's new secretary. Her day's work ended half an hour after Craig's, and for the past week he had been resolving to wait and introduce himself. When the time came for her appearance, however, he had weakly ankled along, just as he was doing tonight. At this point Gordon suddenly remembered he'd left some important papers on his desk. He must rush back. But ten to one he'd meet Alice Black. Well, wasn't that what he wanted? Yes, but she mightn't—

"I've got to lock up those papers," finally decided Gordon, and started back. "Gosh, there she is!" as his eyes fell on the back of a trim figure at the entrance to the building. "But what!" he exclaimed, seeing her turn around, "surely she can't be one of those pekinese petters!"

But there, wriggling in Alice Black's arm, was a sure enough snub-nosed, reddish coated peke.

"Oh, Mr. Craig!"

So she knew his name! Gordon stepped up, his masculine repugnance to puffy lap dogs for the moment forgoten.

"Could you—would you just held this a minute for me?" said Miss Black, proffering the peke, and explaining over her shoulder as she rushed for a booth, "I forgot to send a telephone message."

So there stood Gordon, a six-foot illustration of what the well-dressed young business man will wear, with the obese but surprisingly active pekinese clutched to his bosom. He felt as if every passer-by snickered at the sight. Despairingly he tried to stuff the beast into his ulster pocket, but the peke resisted so vigorously that he flopped out of Gordon's grasp. An unavailing grab, a wriggle between a pedestrian's legs and the hunt was on.

"Here, Chop Suey!" called Gordon, using up his stock of Chinese. "Nice Hop Sing! Here, Shanghai!—Gosh," he groaned. "I wish I knew the Chink for Fido."

Bucking the home-bound crowd, Gordon had closed on his quarry when the door of a limousine opened, the peke scrambled to the step to be caught by a fat woman inside, and before Gordon could do more than gape at this new form of hi-jacking the car moved off to cooing sounds of "Muzzum's own Snookums."

Gordon's first feeling was relief; then he remembered who had intrusted him with the poisonous pup, and, if fumbling a football is something awful, what of fumbling a peke! Fast thinking was necessary. Gordon thought and dashed back to the building.

"When Miss Black comes back," he said to the hastily subsidized starter, "tell her I was called away for a moment and to be sure to wait." Then Gordon did some broken field running to a dog shop around the corner.

"I want," he fired at the startled proprietor, "a pekinese with red fur and a face like a boiled frog."

"Er—ah—"

"That one will do," said Gordon. "How much? And put a tight collar on it and a strong lead."

In a very few minutes Gordon rushed to the waiting Miss Black. "I hope," she said, taking the peke, "you didn't find the poor little thing much trouble."

"Oh, ah, no trouble at all," Gordon assured her, relieved that she hadn't noticed the change of dogs.

"I'm taking it around to the Humane society."

"The Humane society?" Gordon goggled like the peke itself.

"Yes, I picked it up here. The poor little thing was evidently lost."

"Muzzums!" exclaimed Gordon.

"What?"

"Oh, nothing, I mean to say, the dog you gave me escaped to its owner."

"But what's this?"

"I—well, I thought I'd lost your dog, so the least I could do was get you another."

"But I've always hated pekes," replied Alice.

"Me, too. Poisonous pests."

"All the same," twinkled Alice, "I think I'll keep this one—since you got it for me."

"Do," said Gordon, wondering why he hadn't noticed before what jolly little chaps these pekes really were.—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 6—Usually any such combination of given names as Leonidas Carstarphan would be regarded as a handicap to political ambitions.

It has had no such effect, however, on the house career of Leonidas Carstarphan Dyer of the 12th Missouri. Despite that—or perhaps because of it, who knows—he has been coming back to congress regularly since he first broke in with the 62nd.

There is just one hitch in the Dyer record. He was eased out of his seat on a contest during the 63rd congress by Mike Gill. He made up for that, however, by clinching his district for the next eight congresses very firmly.

Anti-Lynching

East St. Louis is in Dyer's district. And like his Massachusetts colleague, George Holden Tinkham, Dyer has to think of a considerable Negro vote question whenever he sets out to run for re-election.

Tinkham's various and sundry bills and speeches about enforcement of the suffrage amendments to the constitution in southern states has a bearing on election results in the 11th Massachusetts. And no doubt, Dyer's anti-lynching bill, first introduced in 1918 and still awaiting action, has a similar political aspect out in the 12th Missouri.

Travel Bureau

Representative Dyer's most recent activity is his bill to authorize Dr. Wilbur to set up an adequate travel bureau under the national park service of the interior department.

How he happened to get particularly interested in that subject the Bystander does not know, but he put a lot of mighty interesting figures and facts about Uncle Sam's huge and widespread collection of scenery and natural wonders into the Congressional Record.

Mr. Dyer finds that about 800,000 rail tourists visit the 21 national parks annually at a transportation cost of around $90 a head, or a total of three quarters of a billion for that alone.

"Put that against nearly $10,000,000,000 which the department of commerce estimates American spent in foreign countries in 1928," he added. "That department further estimates that foreign tourists in the United States during this period spent just about half a billion dollars.

"This discrepancy is entirely too great, but can easily be rectified if the United States will but recognize its possibilities and, in fact, its responsibilities."

The proposed travel bureau would be designed to "encourage, promote and develop public use and enjoyment of national parks, monuments, federal reservations, the national capitol, places of scientific or historical interest and recreational resorts," according to Dyer.

And in view of his figures showing an increase from 235,000 national park visitors in 1914 to 2,680,000 in 1929, there seem to be good "see America first" possibilities in the idea.

Also, it is to be recalled that a movement to curb American tourist travel abroad to those countries which make the way of the tourist financially hard is afot. The travel bureau might help.

Scarlet Fever

By George Howard Hoxie, M. D., Kansas City.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

In spite of the large amount of publicity recently given to the subject of scarlet fever, the public is still somewhat hazy as to what it is and how it is to be guarded against.

Scarlet fever, scarlatina, and "scarlet sore throat" are all manifestations of the same disease. Thus, one may have an infection from the same organisms, a sort or streptococcus, which will give a violent skin eruption in one case; and in another case simply will give a sore throat without any skin eruption. Or, to put the matter otherwise, a case of scarlet sore throat is just as infections and dangerous to the other children in the neighborhood as would be a full fledged case of scarlet fever.

The disease has an incubation period of one to seven days. That is, a child exposed today will come down within the next week, usually the next three days.

The beginning symptoms are usually sore throat, chills and vomiting. Any one of the three may be absent. In general we would say that the fever becomes very high within the first few hours of the onset of the disease. The fever lasts three or four days.

The eruption on the skin occurs at the end of the febrile period; therefore at about the fourth day. It appears usually first on the trunk and chest and is a form of an erythema or general redness in which there are minute reddish spots.

In speaking about this eruption, one should remember that the eruption of measles occurs first on the face and is rather coarse. Chicken pox occurs in scattered eruptions usually first on the back; but they are so much larger than that of scarlet fever that they can hardly be confused. The erythema of some food poisonings resembles scarlet fever, but usually a few hours will show the difference.

Scarlet fever usually occurs before the tenth year of life. The mortality has been cut down lately by segregating the sick; by better attention to food, such as preventing infected milk from reaching the market; and by vaccination, which seems now about to banish the disease entirely from intelligent communities.

The steps in vaccination are first of all to find out what children are susceptible to the disease. This is done by injecting some weakened virus or toxin in the skin of the children, and if there shows a raised, reddened area about the site of the injection, a vaccine is administered and the children rendered immune to the disease. This procedure has proven so successful that only a small percentage of those who have been vaccinated have the disease afterward.

Consult your family doctor about scarlet fever toxin-antitoxin.

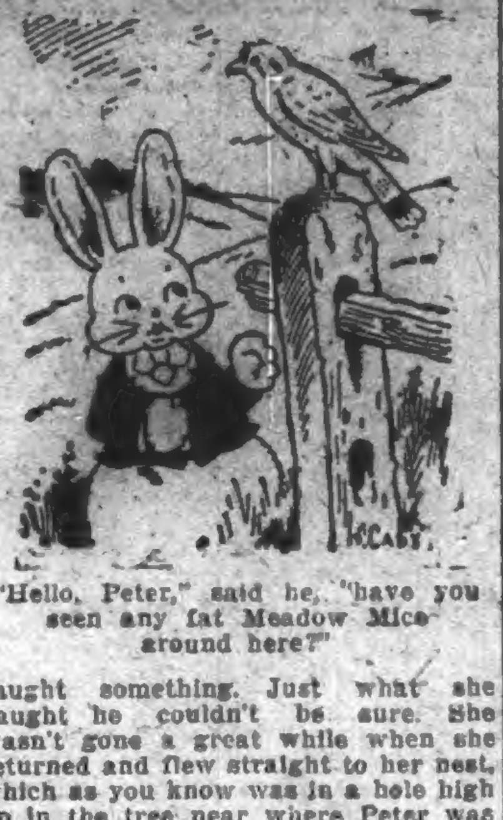
BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Killy Hunts and Plays

Who wisely plans out every day
Will make provision for some play.
—Killy the Sparrow Hawk.

Mrs. Killy the Sparrow Hawk had been gossiping with Peter Rabbit, much to Peter's delight. But presently she shook out her feathers and prepared to leave. "I've gossiped long enough," said she. "I'd better go get a meal and then get back to those precious eggs of mine. Killy will be wondering what has become of me."

She spread her wings and Peter then watched her fly up and presently begin to circle about over the Green Meadows. Now and then he saw her plunge down and he was pretty certain that each time she caught something. Just what she caught he couldn't be sure. She wasn't gone a great while when she returned and flew straight to her nest, which as you know was in a hole high up in the tree near where Peter was sitting. Out came Killy and in went Mrs. Killy.



"Hello, Peter," said he, "have you seen any fat Meadow Mice around here?"

Killy flew to the top of the dead branch in which his home was and looked this way and looked that way with those keen eyes of his—so keen that from 'way up in the air they could see a cricket in the grass. He saw Peter at once and flew over to the fencepost near which Peter was sitting. "Hello, Peter!" said he. "Have you seen any fat Meadow Mice around here?"

"No," said Peter, "not around here."

"I thought you might have seen Danny Meadow Mouse," said Killy. "It is a long time time since I've seen either Danny Meadow Mouse or Nanny Meadow Mouse. The last time I saw them they were so fat that they made my mouth water. So I hoped you could tell me where I could find one of them."

"I wouldn't tell you if I could," retorted Peter. "They are friends of mine. I should feel very bad to have Danny or Nanny Meadow Mouse caught."

Killy chuckled. "Well," said he, "any other Meadow Mouse would do as well. They all look alike to me, for they all taste alike."

Peter looked up suddenly. "Wouldn't you rather have a bird?" he asked.

Killy shook his head. "No," said he, "I wouldn't. When I catch a bird it is because I have to. It is because I am very hungry and can get nothing else. Give me my choice between a bird and a mouse and I will take the mouse every time. Why, I haven't had a bird since last winter. Pretty soon grasshoppers will be plentiful and then Mrs. Killy and I will live high. Now and then we catch a frog or a small snake or a big spider. Crickets are good. So are beetles. All of which reminds me that I must go hunting again, for already I am hungry."

He launched into the air and for some time Peter saw him out over the Green Meadows. Every now and then he saw Killy shoot downward and he knew that Killy was hunting. What he was getting Peter couldn't tell, until at last he saw Killy coming his way with something in his claws. Killy alighted on the fencepost once more and Peter saw that he had a small snake.

"There," said Killy, "I feel better now," when the snake had disappeared. "There is nothing like a good meal to make one feel good. Now I'll get a little exercise."

Up went Killy and then he began to cut up all sorts of antics in the air. He did a lot of plain and fancy flying. He was playing. He was playing and getting his exercise. Perhaps he was showing off a bit for Peter's benefit. However, he is in the habit of doing this, for he dearly loves to use his wings, and both he and Mrs. Killy play together in the air. They know that play is as necessary as work to make life what it should be.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut,

The G. E. Prentice Mfg. Co.
New Britain.

The G. E. Prentice Mfg. Co. was organized in 1912 with a very limited capital, and commenced operations in an abandoned factory with 3,900 feet of floor space. Their product was personal hardware such as suspender, garter and belt buckles, and their intent was to take on any small articles made from sheet metal or wire.

During the war Mr. Prentice was one of the first called to Washington to assist in supplying clothing hardware as well as other special articles. The company manufactured over one hundred million pieces of hardware, always on time and without a single piece being rejected, for which they received a citation from the secretary of war.

They are now manufacturing many articles in this line, such as automatic sliding fasteners, key holders, shoe hardware, etc., on which they hold a large number of patents and on which they have met with very marked success.

In addition to a large domestic trade, they ship their goods to nearly all European countries, Japan, Mesopotamia, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and all South American countries.

They have a most up-to-date factory in Berlin where their main office is, besides a branch factory in New Britain, a sales office in New York and another in Chicago.

The present officers are: George E. Prentice, president; R. O. Clark, vice president; A. B. Porter, secretary and treasurer.

Mothers Enthusiastic Over Modern Laxative

Children like its flavor
Doctors approve its action

Unusual crossness, coated tongue, loss of appetite—mothers know how often these are signs that intestinal sluggishness is sapping the energy of their children. Wise mothers take no chances with old-fashioned cathartics. They are turning by thousands to Feen-a-mint as a safe, dependable corrective for constipation.

Children love the fresh, mint flavor of this modern chewing gum laxative which never has to be forced down unwilling throats as do old-fashioned cathartics. Mothers give it to them with the approval of their doctors because "Feen-a-mint works on the important principle of uniform internal distribution.

Because children chew Feen-a-mint it is effective in milder doses than ordinary laxatives. For the effectiveness of a laxative is not so much dependent upon the quantity swallowed as upon the thoroughness of its distribution throughout the ailmentary tract.

While children chew this delicious bit of gum the laxative it contains is gradually released and mixed with the saliva. Thus it is carried to the intestinal tract smoothly, evenly, without shock to the system or the distressing after-effects so common with old-fashioned laxatives. Each particle of the laxative in Feen-a-mint works with utmost efficiency, gently encouraging the intestinal muscles to resume the activity so necessary for healthful elimination.

The action of Feen-a-mint is thorough, gentle, dependable. With the proper dosage, it is not necessary to increase the amount of Feen-a-mint one time or decrease it the next. Feen-a-mint is harmless and contains no habit-forming drugs. Truly the ideal health laxative to keep growing bodies regular. Get a package at any drug store.—Adv.

I used to suffer agonies at times and would have to lie down the biggest part of the day. After two bottles of Vegetable Compound I felt better. Now I have used ten bottles and feel fine. LAFAYETTE MAIN READY TO MAKE FIGHT ON TRAP SETTING CHARGE

Lafayette Main, the big landed proprietor of the town of North Stonington, who likes nothing better than a good stiff tussle with the law, is all ready for another bout to defend himself from the charge of illegally setting traps on his land on which he was bound over to the superior court by Justice of the Peace Walter M. Buckingham of Gales Ferry before whom Main appeared on a charge brought by County Game Warden Watson.

Lafayette was in the superior court, criminal side, at New London Tuesday afternoon, carrying the same black bag that he had in the Ledyard justice court from which he extracted a dictionary, a copy of the game laws, and of the Connecticut public acts which he proposes to use when he conducts his own defense. Mr. Main is something of a student of the law, he has had a hand in helping to make laws, and he has no use for lawyers. It is expected that his case will go to trial and he will conduct his own defense.

Late Tuesday afternoon, State Attorney Arthur M. Brown brought up the Main case before Judge Allyn M. Brown. The state attorney informed the court that he thought Main was guilty under the statute, but he was wondering why the North Stonington man was in this court. The state attorney remarked that he had been looking up the law in this matter, and although Mr. Main had considerable acquaintance and knowledge of the law, he (Mr. Brown) thought he had found one point which Mr. Main had not discovered.

Under the law, State Attorney Brown declared, the justice of the peace had authority to impose a fine or a jail sentence in such a case, but no authority to bind over to the superior court. The justice of the peace could impose a fine up to $200 or give a jail sentence of 30 days, or both, Mr. Brown said, and under the circumstances he thought the case here could be disposed of by dismissal on the ground that the justice of the peace had no authority to bind over.

"That would have been my first move," interposed Mr. Main, who was sitting at the desk for attorneys in the court room and had not been asked to plead to the charge against him.

State Attorney Brown went on to say that he had not spoken to Mr. Main about this method of procedure and Judge Brown suggested that the state attorney talk the matter over with Mr. Main during a recess which the criminal side of the court was to take in order to try a civil matter.

This civil suit, which was a hearing on an application for an injunction, consumed the rest of the afternoon, so that the Main case did not come up again, but the state attorney said later that he thought the Main case would have to go to trial.

200 BOY SCOUTS HOLD FIRST RALLY PRACTICE

Every troop in the city of Norwich was represented at the first practice period of the jamboree at the state armory Tuesday night at 8 o'clock. Scoutmasters A. L. Peale, John Hill, Walter Weldman, Howard Ludlow, Lloyd Rathbun, H. Downer Johnson, Carl Brend, Henry Sebastian and assistant scoutmasters of practically every troop drilled the scouts in the various events. Troops lined up by number, made a patrol's right and marched around the armory floor twice, following which they went to their respective places where they were inspected by Scoutmasters John Harvey and Burton Shaw of Willimantic and the scout executive. Following inspection some 20 entries for the undressing race raced down the floor of the armory, removing in order, hat, neckerchief, shirt, shoes, stockings and returned. In this event it was decided that only shoes or oxfords be used—that gym slippers moccasions, sneaks, etc., be barred. The undressing race was won by Troop 12. Next came the fire by friction, Troop 1 starring in this event with a first place. Eight different teams representing eight different troops competed in this event, Troop 7 winning first place, and Troop No. 12 and 9 making a close second. Several knots were found to be tied wrong. The next event was that of first aid. Seven different teams from seven different troops entered this contest with Troop 12 winning with honorable mention to Troop 7.

In the inspection, Troop 6 was the first to fall in, and Troop 5 had the largest number of scouts present. In the bugling practice Lawrence Deauville of Troop 5 was declared the winner.

Announcements were made about the court of honor Wednesday night which will be held in the Town hall at 8:00 o'clock with H. A. Tirrell presiding. Parents have been invited to attend. Four reels of moving pictures will be shown.

The patrol leaders met with Scoutmaster Walter Weldman and planned an overnight hike next Saturday. All scouts will meet at the armory next Tuesday night for another practice period, it being the plan to practice additional features of the rally on that evening and to review those already engaged in.

WOMAN'S SCALP TORN OFF IN AUTOMOBILE CRASH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., May 6.—Three persons were seriously injured, two of them being on the danger list at the Westerly hospital, and minor injuries were inflicted upon others, as the result of a headon collision between two machines early this evening on the Westerly-Stonington road near the W. H. Main place. Two other machines were indirectly responsible for the accident one of them being parked alongside the highway.

Miss Marion Sposato, of 10 Pond street, Westerly, has a very bad injury to the top of her head, where her scalp was torn off and 45 stitches were required. She also sustained lacerations above her right ear and cuts and bruises to both legs and hands. She, with Miss Henrietta Pampbel, of 7, Elias street, North Stonington, who received a fracture of the skull, cuts about the head and deep lacerations on both hands and legs, is on the danger list, at the hospital. They are being attended by Drs. M. H. Scanlon and C. Grant Savage.

Others injured were Mrs. Gesien Pampbel of 7 Elias street, North Stonington, who has bruises and cuts on the legs and Edwin Victoria, of School street, Stonington, driver of the Ford car in which the women mentioned were riding. He has 20 gouges on his forehead, cuts and bruises on the eyebrows, besides having had a large portion of his hair soused opt.

The other car figuring in the collision, a Reo, was driven by Noel Pellen, 20, of Crafts court, Westerly, who sustained a possible fracture of the knee cap and injury to his right leg. His companion, Joseph Patti, 17, of 6 Louden avenue, Pawcatuck, had cuts and bruises on his knees.

It is reported the Pellen and Victoria machines crashed headon into each other, while a car operated by George Miller, a sailor, from New London, was attempting to pass a parked auto on the highway. The sailor was arrested by Police Officer George Seddell and later taken before Judge Wilcox in Stonington town court, on a charge of reckless driving. He was placed under bonds of $2,500 and will be given a hearing Tuesday.

SEASON IS OPENING FOR "RIDE JACKERS"

Observation of the highways leading into and out of the major Connecticut cities during the past few weeks of spring reveals the fact that this year's crop of "ride jackers," "thumb jerkers" or whatever expression best fits that class of people who attempt to save trolley, bus or railroad fares by begging rides from passing motorists is bigger and busier than ever, according to street railway officials. Although this class continues its operations throughout the year, it especially predominates with the advent of warmer weather.

Auto clubs throughout the state, in their annual attempt to prevail upon motorists to avoid giving lifts to strangers who may hail them from the roadside, state that although the Connecticut "guest" statute, recently upheld by a high court decision, affords the motorist more protection than ever from liability for damage to his passengers in case of accident, he is nevertheless still liable for any injuries that may result if his "guest" is able to prevail upon the court that the accident resulted from the intentional neglect or wanton misconduct of the operator. Not only have "ride jackers" in the past succeeded in winning large court decisions from those who have befriended them, but stories of holdups, even in daylight, by the same class are still common.

Several firms which use a large number of motor trucks have instructed their drivers under penalty of discharge to refrain from picking up thumb-jerking strangers. Others have gone further by definitely marking their trucks with the words "No Riders."

For the fourth consecutive day of forest fire-fighting, Westerly firemen were called to respond, about 1 p. m., Tuesday, to an out of the district alarm, No. 33, for a continuation of the fire in the town of Hopkinton, reported to have jumped the road at Rockville, being driven toward the Noose Neck Hill state highway between Arcadia and Hope Valley.

The Ahrens-Fox pumper with Fire Chief Egger and men had not proceeded far when there was a blow-out of a tire. A second call was sent with one blast of the fire whistle. The Seagraves motor pumper was despatched to pick up the crew of the first pumper and then to follow orders to meet members of the Rhode Island department of state police at Hope Valley for further directions. Governor Norman S. Case was even reported as on his way to the location of the serious forest fires in Washington county. A most determined effort was to be made by state officials to put an end to the menace of advancing flames.

With the varying and shifting winds of Tuesday afternoon the fire was alternately sent from and back toward Rockville. At one time some 300 men were engaged in stopping the rush of flames toward Canonchet, near Route 1-A, state highway.

CHAMPION WALTER WILLIS GETS TROUT AND PRIZE

A crack Noank fresh water champion, Walter Willis, has caught trout with a horse fly on the hook or a piece of sock, when the bait ran out. Recently the champion took his sedan car far back into the woods where the houses are five miles apart, to a large brook, clear as a looking glass with a few trees hanging over it. Leaving early before the sun could smile on the world for the day, puffing away on his sedan at the hour of 4 o'clock, he was bound for Brook Spray. Reaching there at 6.15, he was soon getting out the things a good fisherman needs for the day'. Throwing over the line to see if Mr. Trout was awake, soon a bite hit the line. Lucky Willis, all smiles, pulled it close to shore. Soon a trout was in his basket—a small one, but better than nothing, and fisherman's luck—wet pants and a hungry stomach! He did not give up hope for he was after the largest one. The book champion who knows all the tricks in fishing, as he let loose the line, started to whistle a tune that a Scotchman taught him the time he was over in that country selling airplanes for the war. Whistling away like a bird in a tree, the trout know the tune and will try to find the bait so to get nearer the man with a sweet whistle. Soon a trout got on the hook and he thought it was a small whale that had got on the hook somehow and he started to haul it to land. What a battle that trout put up trying to get away with line and reel. But Willis was strong with his arms, putting up a battle that lasted over 32 minutes. He found he had landed the largest trout in Brook Spray. It was 9 1-2 inches long and weighed around 2 3-4 pounds. His luck seemed to be breaking good when it was getting late, he had nine good sized trout. But he wanted to make it a even dozen before reeling up the line. So lighting up his pipe with good old B. L. tobacco, as the smoke was going to the wind, he got hold of something that seemed like the bottom of the brook. He pulled hard—if that was a trout, he would have his picture in all the newspapers in the country! He started to haul up his prize, sweating as if over a hot oven all day in a bakery shop. It was one hour before he could find out what was on the line and what a surprise it was—a Big Ben alarm clock—a green one at that—on the hands on it read 6.30, don't know if it was daylight time or the real time, morning or night! He sat and laughed for full ten minutes, to go fishing and catch a alarm clock! What would his friends say at the North Dock?

Smiling Willis took the alarm clock as a joke. "We will put that in the lucky basket—a clock and nine trout so far!" But he wanted to try it once more, but his bait was all gone. Just then a horse fly bit him on the neck; so that fly was killed and on the hook it went, to try his luck. But the trouts seemed to run away until at last one good sized one took a chance like the fellow in a plane for his first ride and got on the hook. It was no use, he was done for, so the Champion pulled ashore his tenth trout and a green alarm clock and called it a day. The sun was setting fast over the trees and his watch read 6.15, and he was still a good two hours from home sweet home. Champion Willis laughed, "A horse fly caught a trout! That is a good one to tell to the Flatfish club members at their next meeting!"

Soon, his auto was coming over the roads at a good clip, but it was after 8 o'clock when he threw his hat in the kitchen to see if it was to stay in or get thrown out again; but it was welcome, for his mother said, "What luck today?" "Well, I got ten good-sized ones, one weighs 2 3-4 pounds, also an alarm clock. That is not so bad for a line and reel fisherman from a small town where newspapers print good fish stories and things like that!" Champion Willis was more than pleased over his catch of speckled trout and still says he is the champion for the season of 1930.

A letter had come from Massachusetts from a town named Hudson and it read: We would like to have you come and spend an evening with the Knockers' club and tell about how you kill pigs in your long green raincoat and rubber boots; also how you shot an apple off the head of Leo Harris with a rifle, a distance of 25 feet. And, by the way, we have heard you are some fisherman along the fresh water brooks and hold the belt for being champion. We will wait for you at the railroad station with a car or if you come by airplane it makes no difference to us, for it is the 25th anniversary of the Knockers' club, and we have planned for the biggest time in the history of Hudson, Mass. We wait for an answer. It was signed Connecticut for the big time.

After reading it Willis said, "Gee, mother! I am going to make that trip if I've got to walk! and at making speeches, I might turn out a second Will Rogers, or a Billy Sunday. Well, is the supper ready?" and she, with a smile, said, "Yes!"

Game starts at 3 p. m.

The Academy will engage Westerly high in a league game at the campus this afternoon, starting at 3 o'clock. This will be the third start in the circuit for the Wildcats, who are five-times champs.

The Academy will present its regular front of Boots Greene pitching, Bud Fontaine catching, Alec Arico, Speed Reardon, Capt. Gibbs and Art Breen in the infield with Weisgraber or Berghinzo, Pepin and Crowell or Flather in the outfield. These boys have easily fulfilled all predictions made before the season opened and are intent to keep on the right track.

The good weather of the past two days has given Coach Brigham a chance to put the squad through stiff drills with each and everyone of the athletes socking the ball on the nose and fielding well.

Westerly has practically the same team that gave the locals such a scare in last year's tilt at the campus before losing 11 to 10. Coach Joe Sherman is not making any predictions but expects his charges to make a real game out of it.

The scorebook reveals that in the Academy's nine games to date they have hit in the majority of cases, when hits meant runs. In 69 innings 63 men have been left on bases, which is a good record. They made their best showing in the Deep River and Chapman Tech tilts when only five men were left stranded in the eight innings. In some of the other games, such as Stonington, Fire department, Killingly and Weaver, which resulted in one-sided Wildcat victories, the left on base total probably would have been lower if there was any real need to hit.

Here is the record:

Richmond—six left in ten innings.
N. F. D.—five left in six innings.
Alumni—ten left in eight innings.
Killingly—eight left in six innings.
Deep River—five left in eight innings.
Stonington—nine left in seven innings.
Chapman Tech—five left in eight innings.
Gilbert—seven left in eight innings.
Weaver—eight left in eight innings.

CHICAGO DOWNS BOSTON WITH BIG 5TH INNING

BOSTON, May 6—(AP)—The Chicago White Sox fell upon Big Ed Morris for four runs in the fifth inning and defeated the Red Sox, 4 to 3, in the first game of their series here today.

Singles by Watwood, Lyons and Cissell, Kamm's three base wallop and a pass to Pinch-hitter Metzler did the trick for the White Sox. After that young Eddie Durham, making his first appearance in the box for the Red Sox this season, held them hitless, but Lyons kept the Boston hits scattered and held his lead. Both teams played errorless ball. The score:

WALBERG WINS FOURTH GAME FOR ATHLETICS

PHILADELPHIA, May 6—(AP)—The world's champion Athletics kept their winning streak moving along today when they captured their sixth straight and second from the St. Louis Browns by a score of 4 to 2.

Rube Walberg was given the edge in a hurling debate with Sam Gray, on Jimmy Foxx's fourth home run of the season that scored Al Simmons in the fourth inning. Gray, who was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth, was also hit for two more runs in the seventh. The victory was Walberg's fourth of the season against no defeats.

Wally Schang was behind the bat for the champions in place of Mickey Cochrane who may be out of the game a few days nursing an injury to his leg. He twice suffered bruises on the right leg last week and aggravated the injuries in yesterday's 12-inning game. The score:

WASHINGTON, May 6—(AP)—Although outhit by the Tigers, Washington evened the count with the Detroit team here today by winning the second game of their series 5 to 4.

Except for the first inning, when the Senators scored three runs, Sorrell pitched good ball for the Tigers. Detroit's final inning bid for victory fell short by two runs when Braxton staved off a hitting rally. The score:

FOUR YANKEE HURLERS DIDN'T STOP CLEVELAND INDIANS

NEW YORK, May 6—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians scored four runs in the fifth inning today then went through the rest of the game holding off Yankee threats to win by a 7 to 6 score. The four run rally was followed by home runs by Morgan and Seeds in the seventh and eighth, bringing in the rest of the runs.

The Yankees picked at Wes Ferrell's delivery with brief rallies, finally driving him from the mound in the eighth. They scored their last run off Mel Harder in the ninth. Earl Coombs hit a homer for the Yankees.

Cleveland pounded the offerings of Pipgras, Hoyt, Pennock and Johnson for 14 hits. There were five double plays in the game, two started by Earl Averill, Cleveland center fielder. The score:

GIANTS TIGHTEN GRIP ON FIRST BY BEATING PIRATES

PITTSBURGH, May 6—(AP)—Opening an attack that featured four home runs, the New York Giants won their second successive game from the Pittsburgh Pirates today, 11 to 9. The victory gave them a tighter grip on first place in the National league.

The home run barrage helped New York pile up an eight run lead by the first half of the eighth inning. Then the Pirates started hitting and drove Carl Hubbell and Joe Genewich from the mound, scoring six runs. Heving stopped them two runs short of a tie. Kremer started on the mound for Pittsburgh and was found for most of the Giant runs.

Terry, Crawford, Reese and Leach hit the homers. The score:

BUNCHING HITS IN FIRST CUBS BEAT DAZZY VANCE

CHICAGO, May 6—(AP)—The Cubs made four hits off Dazzy Vance's delivery in the first inning today and scored all the runs that gave the team a 3 to 1 victory. The defeat stopped Brooklyn's winning streak at seven games.

Hack Wilson's fifth home run of the year was the most important part of the Cub rally, bringing in two runs. Babe Herman hit a homer in the first for Brooklyn's only run.

Fred Blake pitched the entire game and allowed nine hits but he kept them well scattered. Morrison held the Cubs hitless in the last two innings after relieving Vance. The score:

J. B. MARTIN READY FOR OPENING TILT SUNDAY

The J. B. Martin baseball team is all set to swing into action Sunday afternoon at the Martin grounds, Taftville, against the Universal Winding of Providence in the opening tilt of the season. Several changes have been made in the lineup from last year, but it is believed that the team as a whole will be just as strong as the one that appeared last season.

Manager Eccleston and Jim Murphy will share the catching burden, with Russ Fisher and Bill Magnum of Troy, N. Y., doing the pitching. Middy Dugas, leading hitter of the Dusty league last year, will hold down first base and Billy Barry will be the guardian of the keystone sack, with Nap Liberty and Carlie Krauss taking care of third and short, respectively. Deo Gaudette will cavort in left field, Lefty, a youngster, will be given a trial in center and Jim Murphy and Eccleston will alternate in right.

Through the courtesy of the Shyma club, which has erected bleachers on the field for the outdoor boxing shows it intends to stage this summer. The management of the local club has made arrangements to use these bleachers for baseball games, thereby providing ample seating room for the fans. It is estimated that these bleachers will accommodate nearly 2,000 patrons and Manager Eccleston has high hopes of seeing them packed on the opening day.

DECLINES TO SANCTION NEW BOXING RULE ON FOUL

DETROIT, May 6—(AP)—The Michigan Boxing commission declined today to give its sanction to any deviation from the rules regarding fouls in the welterweight championship bout between Jackie Fields and Young Jack Thompson at Olympia stadium Friday night.

Gig Rooney, manager for the champion, brought up the subject and proposed that in event of an injury from a low blow the fight be stopped for five minutes or more in order to allow the fouled fighter to rest.

Thompson's manager, Ray Alvis, who previously had been represented as agreeing to this procedure, objected. Alvis said that the San Francisco Negro has never won or lost a fight on a foul punch and that he would rather abide by the rules now that the championship is at stake. He maintained that a fouled fighter would be at a disadvantage even after a rest, since the other man would have rested also with no injury to overcome.

James M. (Bingo) Brown, chairman of the commission, expressed the views of that body by saying that the regulation which forfeits a fight if the referee believes a fighter has been injured by a foul blow has been satisfactory to date and that he saw no reason for changing it. The referee, Elmer (Slim) McClelland, thus was left the sole judge of fouls.

CONN. AGGIES DROP CLOSE GAME TO WESLEYAN, 7 TO 6

STORRS, May 6—(AP)—Wesleyan's baseball team defeated the Connecticut Aggies here today, 7 to 6. The visitors took an early lead with three runs in the first inning.

Nye, Wesleyan twirler, tightened up in the last two innings after allowing the Aggies six runs in the preceding two innings.

FARRAGOSSA, BROKOWSKI AND SIDNEY WINNERS OF 3-MAN LEAGUE AT AETNA

Team Number 1, comprising Farragosso, Brokowski and Sidney, was the winner of the three-man league, conducted at the Aetna bowling alleys for a period of 15 weeks. The final matches in the three rounds were rolled Tuesday evening, but the outcome of the event did not depend upon the scores made last evening. The winning team had clinched first place previously. No. 1 team had a score of 42 points won and 18 points lost for a percentage of 700, the runners-up having a percentage of 550.

But there was a question as to which team would cop second place, since No. 4 and No. 2 teams were tied for that position before last night's matches were rolled. No. 4 just barely nosed out No. 6, while No. 2 had to take a beating from No. 5, in the final games. As a result No. 4 took undisputed hold of second position, and No. 2 dropped down to third, just 17 percentage points ahead of No. 5 in fourth.

High average for the league games was taken by H. Hull with the fine count of 118.17 to lead his nearest competitor, C. Combies, by a total of about four points. He also took high three with 419 and tied with Brokowski for high single with 163.

The results of last night's matches were:

HITTING AT 500 CLIP, P. WANER HEADS BIG SIX

(By The Associated Press)

Paul Waner still continued to hit at a .500 clip yesterday, cracking out two hits in four times at bat against the Giants to hold his place at the top of the National league and Big Six batters. Babe Ruth was the only other regular to get two hits, going to bat five times against Cleveland and lifting his batting average to .333.

Joe Judge of Washington slugged his way to the top of the American league batsmen with two hits in four times at bat against Detroit and gained a place in the Big Six while Bill Cissell dropped out. He went into third place.

SCHMELING WILL PROBABLY RECEIVE LICENSE FRIDAY

(By Edward J. Neil, Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, May 6—(AP)—Max Schmeling will get his license to fight Jack Sharkey for the heavyweight championship in the Yankee stadium June 12 but the teetering applecart of the German heavyweight's tangled affairs was all but tipped over again today before he gained that assurance from the New York State athletic commission.

Only two days off the boat after a year's voluntary exile in Germany due to managerial squabbles and arguments with the commission, Schmeling sailed blithely into the stronghold of the fistic fathers, confident that the return of his boxing license revoked almost a year ago, was only a formality. He got away from there three hours later, ruffled and rumbled assured of his license but still mired in difficulties.

Before Schmeling could make his peace with the solemn solons he agreed that in the event he won the title from Sharkey he would make no more entangling alliances before Oct. 15, 1930. Schmeling's contract with his original German manager, Arthur Buelow, runs out Oct. 13, 1930, and is the document that has caused Max most of his troubles.

Once this contract has expired, the Teuton socker has agreed to sign for a title defense with a promoter named by the commission and against the "logical contender," also named by the commission. This bout must be staged in New York state within a year from the date of his winning the title.

All of these stipulations were agreeable to Schmeling, though he plainly indicated his fear that the "logical contender" would develop into Phil Scott, the Englishman Sharkey stopped at Miami.

Another ticklish point revolved about the application of Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager of choice, for a license as "manager and second." Jacob's license was revoked along with that of Schmeling, but the new pilot is in full command of Max's affairs today and is expected to direct the German's battle from the corner the night of the Sharkey mill.

In direct contrast to the conciliatory attitude toward Schmeling, Chairman James A. Farley said in reference to Jacobs:

Schmeling and his trainer, Max Machon, probably will receive their licenses Friday morning. Signing of articles, scheduled for today, will take place later in Endicott, N. Y., where Schmeling will train for the bout. He will leave for camp tomorrow morning.

SMITH, ONLY U. S. PLAYER TO COMPETE AT SOUTHPORT

LONDON, May 6—(AP)—America's invading golf forces of 1930 were fully mobilized in Great Britain today. Bobby Jones and the Walker cup team reached London, Glenna Collett and the other women stars approached the scene of next week's championship and Horton Smith began a professional campaign as the one player from the United States among the 300 starters in the Northern Professional championship event at Southport.

Leo Diegel intended to play in the Professional championship but he arrived with the Walker cup players too late for the qualifying rounds.

Bobby Jones and Jimmy Johnston remained with the Mauretania until the vessel reached Southampton and then arrived at London tonight but the other crack amateurs debarked at Plymouth and came to London at noon.

At Plymouth Jones was welcomed by a number of English friends.

Under cross examination the open champion of the United States admitted that his short game "has improved somewhat." This news cabled from America before the Walker cup players sailed was received in England with minged amusement and concern, because his qualifying rounds for the 1927 championship were remembered as typical of his short game.

At Sunningdale he went out in 33 and came home in 33, taking 33 putts for 66. The next day he took 68. If Bobby's short game is improved he will more than ever be the center of attraction on the British links he visits.

A few hours after their arrival in London, some of the Americans were at Addington shaking off their sea legs. Dr. O. F. Willing and Don Moe, the Oregonians, went out together.

The Professional championship at Southport where Horton Smith's 36 hole score of 148 assured him a place among the 100 qualifiers drew a record entry of 316 professionals, who played four courses in the qualifying rounds today.

Henry Cotton with an 18 hole score of 68 broke the Birkdale course record and led the field with a 36 hole score of 140. Smith also played Birkdale, scoring 74 in each round. His effortless play and recoveries about the greens rewarded the largest gallery following any entrant.

VAN PORAT WILL NOT BOX GRIFFITH IN CHI STADIUM

CHICAGO, May 6—(AP)—Otto Van Porat, stiff punching Norwegian heavyweight, will not have an opportunity to meet Gerald Ambrose (Tuffy) Griffith in the Chicago stadium or anywhere else, at least in the near future.

Efforts to sign Griffith following his 10-round decision victory over Jack Gagnon, the Boston sailor who stopped him in six rounds at Philadelphia early last month, have been unavailing and stadium officials have abandoned the project.

Tigers Swamp Third Graders

The Roath Street Tigers played the third grade team of St. Mary's school Tuesday afternoon on the Boswell avenue diamond and beat them by a 14 to 3 score. The Tigers' lineup: Burke, p; Barry, c; Cubanski, 1b; Mallon, 2b; Hynds, ss; Dunion, 3b.

Saturday morning the Tigers trimmed the Arnold Street A. C. club, 16 to 6.

Gets Unconditional Release

ST. LOUIS, May 6—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinal baseball club today announced unconditional release of Earl Smith, veteran catcher, and the signing of Oscar Siemer, St. Louis youth who caught with the Boston Braves four years ago. The club also announced that Pepper Martin, outfielder under option, has been sent to the Rochester club of the International league.

St. Mary's Nine Defeated

At the Academy campus Tuesday afternoon St. Patrick's nine won from St. Mary's by a 18 to 10 score in a free hitting contest. Riley, R. Gilman and Gallivan were the heavy hitters for the winners and Faulkner, St. Pats second baseman, played a nice game in the field. The winners' lineup was Kelly, c; R. Gilman, p; Gallivan, 1b; Faulkner, 2b; W. Gilman, ss; Roach, 3b; Riley, lf; Kearns, cf O'Neil and Allard, rf.

Tilden Wins Again

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, May 6—(AP)—Big Bill Tilden defeated Jan Koželuh, 6-2, 6-3, 6-3, in his first test in the Czechoslovakian tennis championships today.

Ruffing Traded to Yanks

BOSTON, May 6—(AP)—The trade of Charley Ruffing, Boston Red Sox pitcher, for Cedric Rurst, New York Yankee outfielder, was announced today by the Red Sox management. There was no cash involved in the deal. Both players will report to their new teams tomorrow.

Ruffing has been a member of the Red Sox ... Durst will probably replace Earl Webb, obtained from Washington recently in right field.

NORWICH BOWLERS TO COMPETE AT BRIDGEPORT

Norwich will be represented at the state bowling tournament, which is being conducted at Bridgeport all this week, with three two-man teams. These are Combies and H. Hull, Sidney and Keller, and Peckham and Corkery, who will go from the Aetna Bowling alleys. In addition to competition in the two-man events, the Norwich men will also take part in the singles and doubles. The group will compete in the various events Friday evening.

Mack Outpoints Cherin

NEW YORK, May 6—(AP)—Petey Mack, Jersey City lightweight, outpointed Sammy Cherin of New York in a ten-round bout at the Broadway Arena tonight. Mack weighed 131 1-2; Cherin 135 1-2.

Eddie Burl, Jacksonville, Fla., featherweight, won on a foul in the second round of a six-round bout with Nick De Salvo of Brooklyn. Each weighed 127.

ALDRICH TO BE PRESIDENT LARGEST BANK IN THE WORLD

NEW YORK, May 6—(AP)—Winthrop W. Aldrich, president of the Equitable Trust company, today resigned as a director of the Bankers Trust Co.

His action followed the sale of the 170,000 shares of Bankers Trust held by the Rockefeller interests to Bonbright & Co., Mr. Aldhich having been the Rockefeller representative on the directorate. S. Sloan Colt, vice president of Bankers Trust, was elected to fill the vacancy on the board.

Upon physical merger of the Equitable Trust Co. with the Chase National bank, Mr. Aldrich will become president of the merged institution, which will be the largest bank in the world.

POETRY

Song Of The Open Road

Out of the heat of the city street
Out of its stifling air,
We mount and hide to the country side
Where the world is fresh and fair;
To a land of glay
And of new-mown hay,
To the peaceful, pure abode
Of the hot dog dumps
And the gasoline pumps
And the signs by the side of the road.

The rural scene with its sylvan green
Brings peace to the weary eye;
And the heart is light at the seemly sight
Of the speed signs flashing by.
The road unrolls
Through the telegraph poles,
And the world is glad and gay,
With the hot dog dumps
And the gasoline pumps,
And the signs by the side of the way.

Oh, banish the pain of the greed for gain
And the city's toil and strife;
And find release in the country's peace,
In the home of the simple life,
And there let us raise
Our songs of praise,
And join in a festive ode,
To the hot dog dumps
And the gasoline pumps,
And the signs by the side of the road.

Lindbergh

Shall I compare thee to a flying thing?
Thou art more noble as thou soarest thru space;
No bird however strong on flapping wing
Would dare to brave the ocean's boundless waste;
The feathered folk by instinct have the power
To blindly fly to realms of dizzy height;
The Father watches o'er them hour by hour
And guides them in their wav'ring course aright.
But thou, on whom is honor's wreath conferred
Can choose at will thy course o'er land and sea;
God guards thee as He guards the helpless bird,
But He hath given wondrous art to thee
And perseverance, aptitude and skill—
Ambassador of Peace and God's Good Will.

DEMONSTRATION OF STRENGTH IN STOCK MARKET WAS DISPLAYED YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, May 6—(AP)—Stock trading returned to a normal basis today. The discomfited bears, forced to retreat at the close yesterday, were distinctly in the background and the market gave a demonstration of strength such as customarily follows periods of pronounced professional selling.

A score of high priced shares closed 10 to more than 20 points higher, while innumerable issues finished 2 to 8 points above Monday's final quotations. Rails and tobacco stocks were conspicuously strong. The index of 90 shares rose 6.2 points.

A survey of the reaction that had been in progress since early in April discloses that about 40 per cent of the advance since last fall was lost. In conservative circles there is little inclination to bewail this loss. Rather, it is held in many quarters that the steady slump of the past three or four weeks is for the best, since it is rather expected that the market will proceed quietly for some time after the current readjustment from the bear drive has been complete and will keep closer to the pace of business.

Movements in the market today were highly professional. Some shopping for stocks at attractive levels was reported, but most of the support came from continued covering operations and from organized just to work the list higher.

Trading was irregular during the morning, which saw further distress liquidation of a mild character and spasmodic efforts to pick soft spots. Offerings, however, were quickly absorbed and by early afternoon the bulls started a drive in the utilities, bringing up the rails and high priced specialties as re-enforcements.

Uncertainty in the copper situation depressed shares of half a dozen companies to new lows for the year. One producer cut to 12 1-2 cents a pound from the 13 cent level established yesterday, and it was said in circles close to the industry that important buying probably would not appear until the price had been pared to 12 cents. Coppers touching new lows included Kennecott, Anaconda, Miami, Granby and Inspiration.

One of the day's features in the share market was the strength of the American Tobacco stocks, both of which went to record highs on large gains.

Case Threshing furnished a spectacular exhibition. This volatile stock, which had sold as low as 276 on Monday, closed at 328 3-4, up 39 1-4 points, the largest advance of the day. Particular attention was paid to the railroad shares, sharply deflated last week, and such issues as Baltimore and Ohio, New York Central, Atchison, Missouri Pacific, Delaware and Hudson, Southern Railway, New Haven and Chesapeake and Ohio rallied 4 to 8 points.

Utilities, as a group, were most buoyant, Allied Power and Light gained 10, Detroit Edison and North American 7, Brooklyn Union Gas 8, and American Pofer and Light 8. American Telephone rose 4 3-4, net.

U. S. Steel, which advanced to 175, closed at 173, up 1 1-4. Radio, whose stockholders approved the increase in the capital stock under the re-organization plan involving General Electric and Westinghouse, was heavily bought and closed 4 3-4 higher.

Commodities were again mixed. Grain firmed with wheat about 2 cents higher and corn up fractionally. Cotton finished steady at small net advances, but sugar futures were under pressure, dropping to a new low for the past 30 years.

Foreign currencies eased. Sterling declined under the expectation of gold shipments to Paris while the Spanish peseta slipped off about 3 points.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, May 6—(AP)—Bonds staged a robust rally today, stock privilege issues led the advance as favorable credit conditions again exerted their influence after the temporary depression influenced by stocks had been halted.

The general tone of the market showed improvement and the list closed briskly after a slow start. Trading was in slightly larger volume than Monday. There was some indication that the attention of investors was again focused on fixed interest bearing securities. The slowness of the market has been somewhat of a mystery in view of the extreme easing of credit, although it was apparent that funds had been withdrawn for use in the share market.

Trading in convertible bonds was unusually large and generally at higher levels. Net gains of from five to two points were common, the largest blocks turned over were in American Telephone 4 1-2s and Missouri Pacific 5 1-2s. American Telephone and Atchison 4 1-2s led the advance, with gains of 5 1-2 points each. Warner Pictures 6s, Philadelphia Reading Co. and General Theatres 6s made spectacular recoveries.

The market for standard investment issues picked up and high grade rails which were quiet during the morning developed a good market before the close. The feature was the Erie 5 which made a new high at 95 3-4, gaining 1 1-8 on unusually large sales. There was extensive trading also in Nickel Plate 4 1-2s, and Pennsylvania debenture 4 1-2s. Most of the rails netted good fractional gains Atchison general 4s, and Northern Pacific general 3s lost ground.

Some of the leaders of the utility group moved ahead in the day's trading. American Telephone debenture 5s, Colorado Gas and Electric 5s. International Telephone 5s, Northern American Edison, 5s and Postal Telegraph 5s made the best gains. The advances ranged from 1 1-2 to 3 points.

Industrials showed a mixed tendency. Trading in United States governments continued light but joined the upward movement, with gains ranging from 1-32 to more than a half a point.

The foreign government group was moderately active and many issues were distributed. However, this division still shows no real activity, and this was ascribed in some circles to uncertainty over the terms of the German annuity bonds expected this month. French and Chilean bonds were in moderate demand and advanced fractionally. The general tone of the group was steady.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, May 6—(AP)—The curb market rallied swiftly today, under the leadership of the utilities. Trading was in sharply reduced volume after yesterday's violent backing and filling of prices, and trends were largely in sympathy with those of the big board. Total sales aggregated 1,213,100 shares, less than half of yesterday's record 1930 turnover.

The eagerness with which speculation for the rise was resumed in the electric power and natural gas stocks indicated that the speculative enthusiasm for these shares was being kept alive by the many merger prospects which may materialize within a few months.

Such issues as Electric Bond and Share, American Light and Traction new, United Light and Power A, Niagara Hudson, United Gas, Lone Star Gas, and American Gas and Electric surged up from 2 to more than 5 points. Among the high priced issues, American Light old gained 27 points, and Duke Power 19.

The oils, Cosden, which touched a new low yesterday at 45, rallied to 52 3-4, and closed at 50 1-2. Gulf and Humble gained 3 and 4 points, and Petroleum Corp. and Vacuum 2. In the mines, Noranda sold up a couple of points despite further copper price cutting.

Deere was again a strong feature of the industrials, mounting 9 1-4 points to 153 1-4, and closing near the top. Among the low priced issues, Copeland Products A was a strong feature, reflecting optimistic estimates of the company's prospects with the increasing sales of electrical refrigerator.

Fokker and Crocker Wheeler were also strong, the former rallying more than 4 points. Among the high priced shares, A. O. Smith shot up 21 points in a few odd lot sales, and Aluminum gained 15.

Investment trusts were carried upward with the rest of the list, Securities Corp. general, which sagged to a new low yesterday rallying more than 4 points.

Among the few soft spots, Mergenthaler Linotype dropped more than 5 points in a small turnover to a new 1930 low at 105 1-2.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, May 6—(AP)—Keeping step with an upward march of the securities market, wheat prices today made notable gains, and finished near the top level reached. Broader export demand for wheat from North America was a stimulating factor, together with announcement of 8,987,000 bushels decrease in the world's stock of wheat during the last week. Furthermore, there were complaints of excessive rains throughout Italy, France and Hungary, as well as of prevalence of rust in south Italy.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1 5-8-2 3-4c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 5-8-1 3-8c up, oats 3-8-1c advanced, and provisions unchanged to 12c down.

Today's European purchases of wheat from Canada and the United States were finally estimated as totaling 1,000,000 bushels, and the world's visible supply decrease was shown to have brought the aggregate supply down to but little more than 19,000,000 bushels above last year's amount. Meanwhile, from the start recent speculative sellers found out more and more that the wheat market had been oversold for at least the time being, and that future delivery offerings were scarce when most wanted. Upturns of Liverpool wheat quotations were also a source of strength to the buying side of the market here, with considerable notice being taken of an authoritative statement that North America has only exported 265,000,000 bushels so far this season, 50 per cent less than was the case last year, whereas total world shipments have been but 30 per cent less.

At no time were bears able to make any special headway despite further rains reported in Oklahoma and Kansas with a prospect of more and with showers also in the American and Canadian northwest. Crop comments from the spring wheat belt were increasingly favorable, and it was generally reported that the spring wheat belt has now ample moisture to germinate the grain. For the moment, however, traders gave much more attention to the doings of the stock market and to yesterday's reports that the grain stabilization corporation has disposed of all cash wheat owned at Gulf of Mexico ports and the Atlantic seaboard as well.

Corn and oats moved upward with wheat. There was an excellent shipping demand here for corn, and country offerings were small.

Provisions went lower on account of scattered selling which found buying support minus.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—May (offers) 1.05; July 1.02 1-8-1-4, 1.04 3-4-7-8; Sept. 1.05, 1.07 3-4; Dec. 1.09 5-8, 1.12 3-8. Corn—July 80 3-4-7-8, 83 1-4-3-8; Sept. 81 3-4-7-8, 83 1-4-3-8; Dec. 75 3-8-1-2, 76 3-4.

Public utility systems of the United States having an annual output of 100,000,000 kilowatt hours or more, each produced 81,561,845,767 kilowatt hours in 1929, according to the Electrical World, which said the output was the largest in the history of the companies accounted for and compared with a total of 72,826,639,245 kilowatt hours produced by them in 1928.

Stephen Birch, president of the Kennecott Copper Co., said at the annual meeting today that all business is far from normal, but that the copper industry is no worse than any of the other industries. He said he was not concerned about the price of the metal so much as the dearth of buying. He expressed the belief that a great deal of business is being held back and may be slow in coming in.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

The romance of a shop girl and her "boy friend," played against a variegated setting that ranges from a Third avenue tenement to an elaborate roof bungalow and a gorgeously modernistic modiste's establishment, and further adorned with plenty of delightful comedy and half a dozen of the season's catchiest songs—that, in a nutshell, is "The Big Party," John Bylstone's newest Fox Movietone production, opening tomorrow at the Breed theatre.

The picture opens at the music counter of a "five and dime" store, where Kitty and Flo demonstrate the current melodies. Kitty is discharged for rudeness to a masher.

The boys across the court pay a visit that evening, bringing a third youth, Jack Hunter, who is a window trimmer in an exclusive modiste's establishment. Jack and Kitty promptly "fall" for one another, much to the amusement of the others, and the former secures Kitty a new job at the shop where he works.

Kitty is again fired for wearing a customer's dress, but Wetherby, the financial backer of the shop, intercedes and re-engages her to act as hostess to out of town buyers for the company. Jack suspects Wetherby's intentions, and has a bitter quarrel with Kitty when she is installed in an elaborate roof bungalow.

Broadway Theatre

When S. S. Van Dine, creator of the famous amateur detective character Philo Vance, starts out to write a murder story, he contrives that no one shall find out in advance who the murderer is—and, the screen public demands no one else but William Powell in the role of the urbane Philo. "The Benson Murder Case," the last of Van Dine's famous series which opens today at the Broadway, is at once the most thrilling and most baffling of all this author's stories. Eugene Pallette is again the noisy, bragging Sergt. Heath of the homicide squad, and E. H. Calvert, the grim Markham, district attorney. Paul Lukas, William Boyd, Natalie Moorhead, May Beatty, and Mischa Auer are among the suspects, and Richard Tucker is the unfortunate Benson, Wall street broker, who sold his friends out in the recent panic, and "paid in full." In "The Benson Murder Case," the murder is committed in full view of all the guests, even in the presence of Vance and Markham, but so cleverly is it done that not until the final flash of the picture is the culprit revealed, and the ingenious method of killing disclosed. The surrounding program includes James Barton and "Oscar," a diminutive mutt, in "The Under Dog," "Bedelia," a comical screen-song, and Bert Roach, Johnny Arthur and Frances Lee in "Down With Husbands," a featured comedy of that awful day when the wives went on strike, and the "hubbies" were forced to form a protective league.

Norwich young ladies are piling up coupons in the merry contest for the Broadway "Summer Girl" contest, which will be decided in time for Memorial Day. News of big interest is the Broadway's announcement of Maurice Chevalier's greatest screen success "The Big Pond," a sparkling comedy of big business and romance, opening Saturday next in which Chevalier sings two of his latest songs, and has the capable support of lovely Claudette Colbert, the fair heroine of "The Lady Lies."

Palace Theatre.

A double-feature bill combining "Spring Is Here," a musical production taken from the stage success of the same name, with Alexander Gray and Bernice Claire, and "This Mad World," a drama of love, staring Basil Rathbone and Kay Johnson will be presented today, tomorrow and Friday at the Palace theatre.

"Spring Is Here," is notable for the fine songs which have already been well established in public favor. Miss Claire and Mr. Gray, who have been recruited from the stage and whose voices are strong and clear are heard to great advantage in this film. Among the musical hits from this show are, "Cryin' for the Carolines," "Have a Little Faith In Me," "Bad Baby," "How Shall I Tell," and "With a Song In My Heart," which is perhaps the one that lends itself best to symphonic interpretation.

BASIL RATHBONE

The story presents with charming simplicity life as it is being led by many of the younger generation. It has a strong appeal which is well brought out by the cast, some of whom are: Lawrence Gray, Louise Fazenda and Ford Sterling.

"This Mad World" has also been adapted from a stage success and it is presented in a manner unique in motion pictures. There are three other characters besides Basil Rathbone and Kay Johnson and most of the action is centered around three members of the cast.

This double-feature bill is a part of the Spring Festival in all Warner Brothers' theatres. At this time the policy of setting a standard for the highest type of entertainment is being upheld. Many attractive pictures are to be presented to the patrons of the Palace theatre and this high quality will be maintained throughout the coming year.

Wheeler finally overtook Claflin in Greenfield, Mass., on February 18 of this year. He was returned to Willimantic, tried in lower court, and bound over to superior court. He was represented by Attorney Harry E. Back of Danielson, public defender, who pleaded for leniency because of his wife who was willing to forgive him and accept him back to her home. Claflin's troubles have only begun. Upon his liberation from the county jail, two warrants from Stratford authorities and one from Milford authorities will be served upon him and will undoubtedly result in his having to serve additional jail sentences in other counties.

Norwich Man Found Guilty

Charles H. McGibney of Winchester street, Norwich, was found guilty of a charge of reckless driving and was fined $25 and costs. McGibney was originally arraigned on a charge of evading responsibility which grew out of an investigation of an automobile accident by the Willimantic police, in which the Norwich man's car was involved. The collision occurred on the Windham road in Willimantic on the night of March 22. McGibney recklessly, according to the state, passed a car and in doing so struck another which was parked on the side of the highway. He went off without revealing necessary information for the other owner who was put to a loss through his negligence.

The evading charge was dismissed and McGibney entered a plea of guilty to the latter charge and paid the small fine. He was represented by Attorney Edward G. Moran of Norwich.

Put On Probation For Year

Howard Conrad, 16, of Danielson, was sentenced to serve sixty days in jail when found guilty of a violation of trapping laws. The execution of the sentence was suspended for a year, during which time the youth will be in custody of a probation officer. State Attorney Bradford pointed out that the boy was physically and mentally deficient and because of his handicap was not entirely responsible for his act. Although he has a previous police record Judge Ells explained that he considered the boy's deficiencies in deciding the case and was confident that the lenient disposition would serve to make him a law abiding citizen in spite of his serious handicaps.

Silas Adams of East Killingly was found guilty of a charge of abuse of a minor female child and was sentenced to serve a year in the county jail at Brooklyn. He was represented by Attorney I. H. Miron of this city.

Convicted Of Stealing Lumber

Frank Grandone of Ashford was sent to the county jail for six months when convicted of a charge of theft of 80,000 feet of lumber from the Myer forests in Ashford. Grandone was represented by Attorney Miron who said that his client was forced to steal the property and sell it in order to raise money to pay for medical treatment of his wife, who was in danger of death from cancer. She later died. The lawyer stated that bills which he had contracted worried him to such an extent that he was tempted to steal the lumber. The temptation was inviting, since Grandone had worked for the Myer estate and when it came time to draw his earnings the caretaker of the estate authorized him to draw 80,000 feet of lumber, dispose of it and keep the return as payment for his services. Grandone abided by the instructions but continued to steal until his acts were discovered. Judge Ells, in imposing sentence, termed the arrangement a poor business transaction.

Earl LeClair of Moosup paid a fine of $100 and costs when found guilty of negligent operation of a motor vehicle, causing loss of life. LeClair was involved in an accident which occurred south of the village of Attawaugan in August of last year.

Gilbert Bateman of Chapel street, who was convicted in superior court last term of a serious statutory charge and placed on probation, was before Judge Ells this afternoon for breaking certain terms of his probation which ordinarily would have terminated Wednesday. He left the state to go to Cincinnati without consulting Probation Officer L. Edwin Hill of Danielson in whose care he had been committed by order of the court. In going over the case with Bateman, Judge Ells favored him with bits of helpful advise, reprimanded him for wilfully breaking his parole, and complimented him for his efforts in aiding his family financially during a period of distress.

With business completed for the day, Judge Ells ordered court adjourned until Thursday of this week when a short calendar session will be held.

GROCERY STORE BROKEN INTO AND $18 TAKEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 6.—Recessing for a week, Putnam's lone burglar returned to action again Monday evening and burglarized the grocery and meat store of Abraham Weiss of 195 Providence street, rifled the cash drawer and made off with about $18 in silver to clinch his eighth successful break since the beginning of February. The robbery was discovered this morning by Weiss upon opening for business. Captain A. J. Dubreuil of the police department visited the scene of the burglary and after an investigation found that the burglar had gained entrance to the store by forcing his way into the cellar which was not properly secured. No substantial clues that would lead to an apprehension were found. When asked by Captain Dubreuil why he left funds in his store overnight, Weiss replied, "So I won't have the trouble of sorting the coins in the morning." The captain in a statement to The Bulletin today contended that the practice of merchants in leaving money in the stores after business hours serves to entice the unknown thief to carry on.

STATE PRISON, JAIL AND REFORMATORY SENTENCES GIVEN IN SUPERIOR COURT

The superior court opened the May criminal term in New London Tuesday morning, with Judge Allyn L. Brown presiding, pleas were taken in a number of cases and sentences were imposed with terms in state prison, jail, the reformatory at Cheshire and the state farm for women at Niantic.

Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the Second Congregational church of New London, offered prayer at the opening of court.

The deputy sheriffs in official attendance at the court appeared for the first time in uniform, a requirement which has been inaugurated by Sheriff George H. Bradford. The deputies at court were Manuel J. Martin, J. H. Tubbs, Oscar H. Main, and Nelson C. Brown, each wearing the uniform of blue coat, British cut, with brass buttons down the front of the coat bearing the initial "S,", a brass button on each coat lapel bearing the seal of the county and a deputy sheriff's brass badge bearing the seal of the state.

State Attorney Arthur M. Brown prosecuted and Public Defender Edmund W. Perkins acted in the capacity of public defender. Richard W. Mansfield was present in the role of probation officer.

Negro Youths Sentenced

William H. Brown, 18, Negro, of 243 Howard street, New London, charged with statutory burglary with Charles H. Brown, 20, of 11 Shapley street, was committed to the state reformatory at Cheshire. Charles Brown, his half brother, was sentenced to six months in the county jail.

The Brown youths, both of whom have served terms in the reform school at Meriden, were apprehended by the police for breaking and entering a National Economy Co. store in New London April 3. The younger youth's record showed that he had been returned to Meriden twice after being paroled and that he has confessed to the theft of $80 from Mrs. Ernest Johnson last fall. Charles Brown's record showed that he had been to Meriden once for incorrigibility. They both pleaded guilty and were represented by Public Defender Perkins.

Gets One To Three Years

James F. Kane, 27, who came to New London from Lowell six months ago, was sentenced to not less than one and not more than three years in the state prison at Wethersfield on a charge of indecent assault on a young girl of New London. He pleaded guilty and was represented by Public Defender Perkins.

In presenting this case State Attorney Brown stated that Kane had served a term in a Massachusetts reform school when a boy and has served three years and eight months in a Massachusetts jail for indecent assault on a young girl in Lowell. He said that early this year complaints began to come in about a man assaulting young boys and girls and before Kane had been apprehended nine such cases had been reported. He said that Kane's case represented a sexual pervert and that under the circumstances the best place for him would be the state prison, where he could receive the attention of expert physicians.

Ex-Sailor Gets Four Months

Ora M. Phebus, 21, of Danville, Ill., former coast guardsman, was sentenced to four months in jail with credit for the six weeks that he has served while awaiting trial. Phebus pleaded guilty to the theft of an automobile in New London on March 17, the car being owned by Isabelle Murray. It was brought out by State Attorney Brown and Public Defender Perkins that Phebus had enjoyed an excellent record in the coast guard until he got into a drinking bout with a companion and stole the automobile, driving to Elizabeth, N. J., where he was apprehended.

Six Months for Assault

David Sprow, 24, Negro, of New London, was sentenced to six months in the county jail on a charge of aggravated assault on April 10, 1930, on George Tashash, waiter in a restaurant at 97 Main street. He pleaded guilty and was represented by Public Defender Perkins. As outlined by the state attorney, Sprow went into the restaurant on the night of April 10 and after having something to eat attempted to leave without paying. Tashash demanded his money and when Sprow declared that he had already paid an argument ensued and Sprow was put out of the restaurant. An altercation followed in front of the restaurant and Sprow took to his heels. Tashash put chase and caught up with Sprow at John and North Bank streets, where Sprow pulled out a jackknife and slashed Tashash in the face, inflicting a deep cut running from the forehead down over the nose to the lip.

Abduction Charge Nolled

A charge of abduction against Zephine Gagne, 22, of Sprague, was nolled on the payment of costs on the recommendation of the state attorney. In this case the state attorney said Gagne took his baby away from its mother when the couple separated and he went to Canada. On complaint of the wife he was arrested. Since then he has had the child brought back and given into the custody of the mother. He was arrested in Sprague by State Trooper John H. Smith.

Two Sent To State Farm

Ethel Chipperfield, 18, and Iona Jones, 22, both of Pawcatuck, were each sentenced to three years at the state farm for women at Niantic on charges of forgery. Both pleaded guilty. Attorney George McKenna represented the Chipperfield girl and made an eloquent plea in her behalf and Public Defender Perkins made a similar plea for the Jones woman.

The two were bound over from the New London police court following their arrest on a charge of passing a forged check for $21.90 on a woman's apparel store. State Attorney Brown also stated that when arrested the two had two dresses in their possession which had been stolen.

With the disposal of this case court adjourned until 2 o'clock.

Local Man Sentenced

George Pillar, 33, of this city, pleaded guilty to a charge of fornication and was sentenced to serve six months in the county jail. The charge was originally seduction of Anna Kraopod at Bozrah on April 14. The accused was arrested by State Trooper Smith. Attorney T. M. Shields spoke for leniency for Pillar.

Upon the recommendation of State Attorney Brown a nolle was entered in the case of Mary Kraopod, mother of the girl, who had also been charged with seduction in the belief that she aided and abetted the crime against her daughter. The state attorney said the facts did not bear out this supposition.

Jewett City Case

Frank Abrue, 20, of Jewett City, pleaded guilty to a charge of statutory rape upon a 15-year-old Jewett City girl on March 30 and was sentenced to six months in jail on recommendation of State Attorney Brown.

NEW HAVEN, May 6—(AP)—Town by town the population census figures are being reported by the supervisors of the five enumeration districts in Connecticut, and the total this afternoon of completed communities was 58, more than one third. The figures for 57 towns are: 1930, 90,619; 1920, 84,395, a gain of 6,224 or about seven and a half per cent.

INJUNCTION HEARING ON LABEL FOR "MALTHOP"

The superior court session, criminal side, was broken into Tuesday afternoon at New London and criminal business was put out of the way for the time being in order that Judge Allyn L. Brown might give a hearing in the injunction application brought by the New London Malt company against the Providence Malt company over the use of a yellow label for "Eagle brand" malthop, which is sold in cans.

M. A. Keenan, who is president of the New London company, claimed that he had originated the label which uses a diamond shaped figure to enclose the word "malthop" and also uses the print of an eagle. He claimed it was a copyright trademark and that the Providence concern had been infringing it during 1928 and 1929 and in this year. A former employe gave testimony in support of Mr. Keenan's contention and the evidence on the other side was chiefly through Saul Abramson, an officer of the Providence company.

Judge Brown reserved decision.

NORWICH TOWN

MUSIC WEEK SUNDAY AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Included in the large congregation at the First Congregational church Sunday morning were visitors from out-of-town. The pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, preached on "The Arrival of An Unexpected Guest." The scripture reading was St. Luke XXIV, the text 28-31: And they drew nigh unto the village whither they went; and He made as though He would have gone further. But they constrained him, saying, abide with us, for it is toward evening and the day is far spent; and e went in to tarry with them, and it came to pass as He sat at meat with them, He took bread and blessed it, and brake and gave to them. And their eyes were opened and they knew Him; and He vanished out of their sight. After the choir had sung the communion hymn, the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed, Rev. Mr. Bailey being assisted by Rev. Charles E. Reeves, who also pronounced the benediction.

Organist Yerrington used mostly American composers' work at the Sunday morning service. The prelude and postlude were by Eugene Thayer, and for the offertory he played the old hymn tune State Street, which was composed by Jonathan Woodman, father of R. Huntington Woodman, organist of Brooklyn, N. Y. The communion hymn was also one of Woodman's compositions.

Music Week Service

Sunday afternoon in observance of Music Week, Organist Herbert L. Yerrington gave a recital to an appreciative audience. He was assisted by Theodore Sterry, violinist, who gave a fine interpretation of Melody of Love by Englemann and At Dawn and Goodnight, by Nevin, with Organist Yerrington accompanying.

The three act comedy "The Teaser", to be presented at Huntington school under the auspices of the Y. P. C. E. S. of the Congregational church, is under the direction of Charles Barber, chairman of the C. E. entertainment committee. It is expected that Mr. Barber's grandfather, George Rathbun, 80, an old time fiddler, will play between the acts.

The Junior and Intermediate C. E. societies, are to hold a union meeting after school, this (Tuesday) afternoon. The union meeting is due to illness.

A Study of Church Music, will be the theme of the mid-week service of conference and prayer, Thursday evening.

The theme of the Y. P. C. E. S. Sunday evening, for discussion was "How May We Find Our Life Work?" (Vocations Day), Scripture reference in Psalms and James.

George Warren Potter offered prayer and the responsive reading was led by Rev. Edward W. Gantt, pastor of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion church. A recital of Negro spirituals was given by the choir from the A. M. E. Zion church assisted by a talented reader, Florence Auten Whitted. The following program was given: National Negro anthem; spirituals, "Roll, Jordan Roll" and "One More River to Cross"; reading, Mrs. Whitted; "Toussaint L' Overture", Wendell Phillips; spirituals, "All God's Children Got Shoes", "Will the Lighthouse Shine on Me", and "Steal Away"; readings, "The Bridge Builder" and "We've Builded With What You've Sent Up"; spiritual, "Jonah and the Whale." Gantt, Cornelia Johnson, Florence Jubrey; altos, Idella Scott, Ross Johnson; tenors, Andrew Marshall, Walter Johnson; basses, James Anderson, Robert H. Johnson. Emma J. Cook, the organist of the Zion church was accompanist. Miss Gwathmey sang a solo during the program. The whole program was pleasingly rendered and many words of commendation were heard at the close. Boy Scouts Leon Ladd and Earl Robinson received the offering. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Mr. Gantt.

The sermon Sunday night at the Zion church was preached by Rev. George Warren Potter, who assisted the pastor, Rev. Mr. Gantt, in administering the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

NORWICH BROADCAST BRINGS AIRPLANE MAKER'S QUERY

While many letters of various kinds and from various places have been received by the local chamber of commerce and station WTIC commenting upon the Norwich radio broadcast, the accompanying letter received Tuesday is somewhat unusual and indicates that the broadcast reflected in the mind of the writer of this letter that Norwich was a city of progressiveness, alive to the advantages of advertising and promotion which has done so much to build other cities and bring them greater progress.

The letter follows:

The ENDEE CLUB
Bristol, Conn.
May 5, 1930.

Norwich Chamber of Commerce,
Norwich, Conn.

Gentlemen:

I have enjoyed your broadcast programmes and as I am about to incorporate a company for the manufacture of airplanes and motors, am wondering whether Norwich would entertain the idea of locating there provided such a company appeared sound.

The writer, an aero engineer of some sixteen years experience, is now with a unit of the General Motors Corporation in this capacity, but has in mind the formation of a company for the above purpose.

Provided such an activity would be welcome, I shall be pleased to hear from you, as I am now having other places on the Sound above New York investigated. I shall be at the Aero show in New York, and registered at the Park Central hotel May 6, 7, and 8th, where I can be addressed. After that date I can be reached at the above address.

LICENSES SUSPENDED FOR DRIVING UNDER INFLUENCE

Included in the list of 55 motor vehicle operators having had their licenses suspended for a year for driving under the influence of liquor are the following from this part of the state:

Louis Picaut, Andover; Leon W. Shippee, Danielson; Angelo Annibalini and Ernesto Bidini, New London; Wm. C. Gilchrist, Andrew Snurkowski, Norwich; Henry Brandt, Pawcatuck; William Jolley, Plainfield or Central Village; Roy F. Shippee, Putnam; Amedee Martineau, Willimantic.

SPORTSMEN HOLD OFF FROM GETTING LICENSES

The number of hunting and fishing licenses issued in the first four months of this year at the office of Town Clerk Harold S. Burt is 150 less than those issued in the same period a year ago. By some the decreased call for licenses is looked upon as a protest on the part of the sportsmen over the increased charge made by the state law without any appreciable betterment in hunting and fishing conditions.

Last year there were 752 licenses issued for the period named. This year the number is 602.

A year ago the fee for resident angling licenses was $2.25 and for resident combination licenses $3.65. The price this year is $3.35 for the fishing and $5.35 for the combination licenses. Fees for other forms of licenses were increased in proportion.

So heavy is the traffic over Merchants avenue, at the time for services at Sacred Heart church, that Officer Louis Paquette is obliged to be on hand every Sunday, to direct traffic at the corner of Hunter and Merchants avenue.

NORWICH TO SEE AIRCRAFT SQUADRON FLIGHT OVER CITY THURSDAY AFTERNOON

Efforts of the Norwich chamber of commerce which have had personal interest and hearty co-operation on the part of Congressman Richard P. Freeman, will bring opportunity for this community on Thursday afternoon to see the flight of airplane squadrons over this city.

This will be part of the big navy air tour of ten squadrons of navy planes, 125 in all, which is participating in the big air show on a tour through New England from Jamaica, L. I.

The telegrams used below show that Admiral Butler could not arrange at so late a date to have the entire air navy to pass over this city, but he has agreed to have some of the planes fly over Norwich on their way back from Boston on the afternoon of May 8. This will be the largest grouping of airplanes this city has ever seen and will make a sight worth seeing.

Congressman Freeman sent the following telegram showing what he was doing to get the flight made over Norwich:

E. B. Learned, Jr.,
Norwich, Conn.

Aircraft squadron leaves Jamaica, L. I. for Providence most direct route, returning via Providence, Newport, Westerly, New London, New Haven. Have telegraphed Rear Admiral Butler, Hampton Roads, Va., asking him to go over Norwich coming and going.

R. P. FREEMAN.

Rear Admiral Butler, commander of the U. S. S. Saratoga, the airplane carrier, sent the following telegram:

Chamber of Commerce,
Norwich, Conn.

Replying your telegram regret impracticable for aircraft squadrons as a whole to pass over Norwich. Expect some squadrons will pass over Norwich on return from Boston, afternoon May 8th.

REAR ADMIRAL BUTLER,
USS Saratoga.

WASHINGTON, May 6—(AP) — A squadron of 66 naval scout and bombing planes settled down on the naval air station field here today, preparatory to taking off early tomorrow for a three-day tour that will carry them over cities as far north as Boston and Lowell, Massachusetts.

The planes constituted the advance guard of an air fleet totaling 146 machines. The remainder will take off from Hampton Roads, Virginia, tomorrow morning, with the two groups holding rendez-vous over Miller field, Staten Island, about 11:30 a. m. E. S. T. preparatory to passing in review over Manhattan at noon.

Leaving Curtis airport, Valley Stream, Long Island, at 9:00 a. m. E. S. T. Thursday, the squadron is scheduled to arrive over Providence, R. I., at 11:15, and over Boston shortly before noon, reaching Lowell at 12:15. Squadrons from the different ships will land at Providence, Springfield, Mass., Hartford, Conn., and Boston, for servicing and will return immediately to New York.

The tour was arranged by the navy department to allow cities along the Atlantic coast to view the air fleet usually quartered on the west coast.

SEN. REJECTS PARKER, 41-39; UNION LABOR REJOICES; PARKER THANKS FRIENDS

First Time In 36 Years the Senate Has Refused to Confirm a Nominee to the Supreme Court—Opposition to Judge Parker Was Led By Senators Borah and Norris, Both Republicans—Judge Parker Had No Comment to Make Except to Express Appreciation For Support Given By Friends—President Green of the A. F. of L. Deems Defeat of Parker As "a Victory For Justice, Righteousness and Human Rights."

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—For the first time in 36 years the senate today refused to confirm a nominee to the supreme court, rejecting Judge John J. Parker, of North Carolina, by a vote of 41 to 39.

The decision forces President Hoover to look elsewhere for a man to take the seat made vacant by the death of Associate Justice Edward T. Sanford, of Tennessee. There was no indication tonight that he had a nominee in mind.

There were intimations from the white house that Mr. Hoover would have something to say about the senate's action and that he would not go again to the south for a nominee. It was believed, also, that he would not re-appoint Parker, by whom he stood firmly in the senate controversies.

Opposition to Parker in the senate was led by Senator Borah, of Idaho, and Norris, of Nebraska, both republicans. Their plea for his rejection was based entirely upon his decision upholding an injunction restraining the United Mine Workers from soliciting membership among miners who had signed contracts with their employers not to join the union.

The American Federation of Labor vigorously protested the nomination. The National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People also protested a speech made by Parker as a gubernatorial candidate in 1920 in which he was charged with saying the Negroes were not ready to assume the burdens and responsibilities of government.

Parker was supported by 29 republicans and 10 democrats, while 17 republicans, 23 democrats and the lone farmer-labor senator, opposed him.

A change of one vote would have put the issue up to Vice-President Curtis and he was in the presiding officer's chair ready to cast it if necessary.

From his bench of the federal circuit court of appeals in Richmond, Judge Parker commented that he had nothing to say except to thank his friends in the senate and elsewhere for their fight.

Every one of the 96 senators was accounted for on the roll call. Those not voting were paired and evenly divided, thus making the actual count of the senate 49 to 47.

This roll showed 34 republicans and 13 democrats for Parker and 22 republicans, 26 democrats and the farmer-labor senator in opposition.

The senate last rejected a supreme court nominee in 1894. It then refused to confirm two New York men chosen by President Cleveland.

The Parker advocates in the senate, led by Senator Overman, democrat, North Carolina, and Fess, republican Ohio, waged an uphill contest for him after the judiciary committee reported 10 to 6 against the nominee.

Senators Borah and Fess closed the long debate in speeches limited to seven minutes. The Ohioan deplored the complaint against Parker's labor decision and insisted the appointment was not a political one, as contended by the opposition.

Senator Borah observed "that in all this debate no one has soiled his lips by defending the contract involved in this contest—and that contract and decision ought to be the determining factor."

Shortly after the vote, Joseph P Cotton, under-secretary of state, and Senator Allen, republican, Kansas, called upon the president but they said as they departed that no statement would be made by the president today.

A little later Attorney General Mitchell spent some time with the president. He declined to comment after his visit.

UNION LABOR REJOICES AT REJECTION OF PARKER

WITHOUT COMMENT, JUDGE PARKER THANKS SUPPORTERS

RICHMOND, Va., May 7.—(AP)—Judge John J. Parker, of the United States circuit court of appeals, said today that he had no comment to make on the rejection of his nomination for the supreme court except to thank his friends in the United States senate and elsewhere.

When informed that his nomination had failed of confirmation by a vote of 41 to 39, Judge Parker said:

"I have no statement to make except that I greatly appreciate the support of the friends who stood by me so loyally in the fight made on my confirmation.

"While I am, of course, disappointed in the result of the senate vote, it makes me happy to think that so many of the foremost men of the country as well as friends in all walks of life supported me to the end."

Judge Parker was present today at the regular term of the court.

Chaplin, Arliss and Mary Pickford were named by Mrs. Adele B. Allerhand, the complainant in the case, as having been identified by Raw as his patrons. All three have denied the allegation, declaring they never had heard of the defendant before his arrest.

GUARD AGAINST FUTURE STOCK MARKET PANICS

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP)—E. H. H. Simmons, president of the New York Stock exchange, in his annual report covering the year 1929, suggests that investment banking houses guard against future stock market panics by studying the methods of the mercantile and industrial organizations in gauging production to public powers of consumption.

Mr. Simmons again pointed to the heavy issuance of new securities during September, particularly those of investment trusts and holding companies as one of the immediate causes of the autumn crash, and suggested that means be developed to prevent the congestion of financial channels, by the piling up of heavy loads of undigested securities on dealers' shelves.

In going into the causes of the autumn crash, Mr. Simmons reiterated and emphasized the stand which he took in an address in Philadelphia in January, namely, that one of the outstanding causes was the enormous volume of new securities publicly offered just before the break.

At Boston, 94 Degrees, a 12 Year Old Record For May 7 Was Shattered.

NEW YORK, May 7—(AP)—The north Atlantic seaboard wiped its collective brow today in the heat, and it wasn't from the forest fires.

Before the march of summer heat, records fell in many places in the east, especially in New England.

It was 90 at Springfield, Mass., on the official thermometer and later readings on family instruments raised that five degrees, a record figure. At Boston a 12 year old record was shattered when the thermometer registered 94 degrees at 4 p. m. Brockton, Mass., reported a new record with a reading of 94 at 2:30 p. m.

In New York city the thermometer reading twice broke the record for the date, registering 87 at 11:45, E. S. T. turning cooler for three hours and then rising to 87 again at 3:30. MEETING OF LEGISLATIVE BRANCH M. E. CHURCH SOUTH

DALLAS, Texas, May 7—(AP)—A non-political stand in favor of law enforcement, censure of "popular" moving pictures, plays and fiction, and changes in the rules of the church for the coming four years were recommendations made today to the quadrennial general conference, legislative branch, of the Methodist Episcopal church, South.

Hearty applause interrupted the reading of the address of bishops by Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon when he reached the point dealing with prohibition enforcement which said in part:

"The Methodist Episcopal church, South, professes no political creed, the church, as such, can have no alliance with partisan politics and politicians, and it has no advice to give its membership with regard to their party affiliations. All this is beyond the sphere of the church. But the church does stand as the eternal enemy of unrighteousness in every name and form."

Parker's rejection by the senate as a "Victory for the United State constitution and for public respect for the United States supreme court." The association had opposed Judge Parker's confirmation.

"It was felt," Mr. White said, "that the nomination was nothing more than a political sop to that section and group which believes in nullifying the political rights of United States citizens because of their color.

$377,036,000 RECOMMENDED FOR NAVY FOR THE FISCAL YEAR

WASHINGTON, May 7—(AP)—In recommending an outlay of $377,036,000 for the naval establishment during the fiscal year 1931, the house appropriations committee today declined to incorporate in the formal report to the house statements forecasting economies as a result of the London naval treaty.

The statements were prepared by Representative French, republican, Idaho, chairman of the sub-committee that drafted the bill and report. They were stricken out, French said, because the committee felt it would be premature to anticipate savings until the senate acted upon the naval pact.

The committee approved the elimination of $400,000 recommended by the budget bureau for beginning work on the third group of five of the fifteen cruiser program which, under the naval treaty, would not be constructed.

SENATE HAS SENT TARIFF BILL BACK TO CONFERENCE

Senator Smoot, Against His Own Wishes and At the Demands of the Democrats, Moved That the Senate Insist Upon the Six Major Points of Difference and Ask For a Further Conference—Chaiman Smoot Has Called the Conferees to Meet On Friday Afternoon.

WASHINGTON, May 7—(AP)—After a dispute over procedure, the senate today returned the tariff bill to conference with the house without acting on any of its provisions.

Chairman Smoot of the finance committee, called the conferees to meet on Friday afternoon.

Against his wishes and at the demand of the democrats, Senator Smoot moved that the senate insist upon the remaining six major points of difference between the two houses, including the export debenture and flexible provisions, and ask for a further conference. The motion carried without a roll call.

The Utahan preferred to have the senate act first on the partial conference agreement already approved by the house but minority leaders argued it would make for speed if the conferees attempted to reach an agreement on the remaining items in controversy and then have the senate act on the bill as a whole.

Besides the farm debenture and flexible provisions, the two houses have yet to reach an accord on the senate amendments relating to silver, cement, and lumber rates, and reorganization of the tariff commission. All have been rejected by the house.

Senate conferees are under an informal pledge not to yield on the debenture and the presidential flexible provision before coming back to the senate for instructions.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader and one of the senate conferees, believes the conference will reach a speedy agreemnt on the disputed clauses unreservd for instructive votes and that it will report the bill for senate action early next week.

Arguing that the measure should be sent directly to conference Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the minority chieftain, said the "real gist of the controversy is in the items in disagreement and many senators will be guided in their votes by the manner in which these items are disposed of."

Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, said it would have required six weeks of debate if the partial agreement were taken up today.

Asserting it was "perfectly obvious that every one voting on the partial report does so without taking into consideration the whole bill, Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, said if the debenture and legislative flexible provisions were agreed upon in conference he would vote for the bill; otherwise he would oppose it.

"We have not reached an impasse in conference," said Senator Simmons, democrat, North Carolina, pleading for an immediate conference.

DALLAS, Tex., May 7.—(AP)— Digging through debris of tornado-swept areas of central and south Texas, rescue workers tonight had recovered 69 bodies and had removed more than 100 injured to hospitals and homes for medical treatment.

No estimate of the number made homeless was available, nor had any official estimate of the property damage been made but those in touch with the situation predicted the loss would easily exceed $500,000.

The series of tornado disturbances spread their havoc at widely separated places over an area of approximately 281,250 square miles, from Abilene on the west to Marshall, about 450 linear miles, and from Childress, on the north, to Runge, about 625 miles to the south.

The tornadoes struck without much warning and a large number of those killed were caught in the destruction of their modest farm homes.

In one case a relief party found the bodies of nine members of one family in the wreckage of their home near Runge, where 26 persons lost their lives and approximately 60 were injured.

GOLD STAR MOTHERS SAILING FOR FRANCE

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP)—As the Atlantic battle fleet steamed into New York harbor today and the navy's fighting planes passed overhead, the first contingent of gold star mothers sailed for France on a pilgrimage to the graves of American boys who are buried there.

On the liner America, there were 232 gold star mothers from a dozen states. It was a day of strain, for the mothers of men who were old enough to fight in the World war are no longer young.

When those ashore last saw the America it was entering the narrows as three planes swooping from the sky let loose upon its decks a rain of poppies, as bright as those that grew so red among the war torn wheat fields.

POLICE ARE TO PROTECT FILIPINO LABORERS

SEATTLE, Washn., May 7.—(AP)—State highway police and sheriff's deputies patroled the highways of the White River valley near here tonight to prevent a recurrence of demonstrations against Filipino laborers who were driven from their bunk houses last night by white raiders, presumably opposed to the Islanders working on produce farms.

None of the Filipinos was harmed and officials believe the trouble is ended. McGill said the raiders apparently were well organized and kept highway patrolmen on the jump by turning in fictitious alarms.

GENERAL SUMMARY OF FOREST FIRE CONDITIONS

(By The Associated Press)

Breaking out again after the combined efforts of Massachusetts, New York and Connecticut fire fighters apparently had conquered it, the fire which since Sunday has swept the Taconic ridge, where the boundaries of the three states touch, had assumed serious proportions again last night.

New York state troopers in Taconic park were stopping motorists to press them into service and even schoolboys were enlisted in the fight against the encroaching flames, which were estimated to have swept over 26,000 acres in the three states.

In addition to this blaze, nine other serious fires were burning in Massachusetts and one in the northern Adirondacks of New York state defied the efforts of fire-fighters.

William A. L. Bazeley, commissioner of conservation of Massachusetts, said last night that conditions had become more alarming, due to the heat, lack of rain and the brisk westerly wind. Only heavy rains can help the situation, he said.

The situation in New Jersey, Rhode Island and Connecticut—the Taconic fire had stopped its advance into Connecticut—apparently had passed its crisis.

BOY BASEBALL PLAYER KILLED BY LIGHTNING

BOSTON, May 7.—(AP)—Thunder storms, long looked forward to as relief from the heat wave, hopped across the southern and central New England states tonight and brought only death and damage to areas that had welcomed them as they developed.

But one advantage came with the downpours, temporary relief for the forest fire situation in the sections where the storms struck. Had it been a steady rainfall, spread over a wide territory the benefits of the rain would have been great, but like a hop-skip-and-jumper of the old days the storms struck but here and there and brought no substantial relief from the heat.

At Lawrence, Mass., lightning killed a schoolboy baseball player and injured several persons, including spectators and players. Airplanes at the East Boston airport were hurled to the ground and damaged and their passengers had narrow escapes from injury.

Deputy Sheriff Harvey S. Collins stated this afternoon that there was a confusion of facts in a report from Albert Riquier, truck driver for Hillhouse & Taylor, that he had been waylaid by two unknown men in Columbia Tuesday afternoon. Sheriff Collins said that Riquier was operating a truck laden with lumber products on the road leading to the left or south side of Columbia lake. Riquier said that in rounding a curve he saw two fellows lying in the road, one of whom he believed to be injured. He stopped, got out of the truck and went near the men. As he approached they pounced on him and threw him to the ground. They removed a dollar from his clothes and then bound him to a telegraph pole. The men then jumped into the truck and drove about half a mile up the road where they ditched the truck and abandoned it. Riquier is suffering from a broken finger today. The Deputy Sheriff said this afternoon that he had found the truck ditched but his investigation failed to disclose anything to substantiate the report made to him.

UNION

Last Saturday evening Lawrence Moore of Mashapaug was returning home from the Hubbell farm in Sturbridge, Mass., where he had delivered a two-horse load of hay. Just before he reached the state line on the Buckley highway near Mashapaug, a large touring car coming from the opposite direction, smashed into horses and wagon. One horse was killed instantly and the wagon and harness were considerably broken up. Mr. Moore was seated on the front of his wagon, with his feet on the wagon pole, but he escaped serious injury. The nervous shock and some surface scratches on face and head seemed a fortunate escape under the circumstances. The police hearing was held in Sturbridge, as the accident occurred in Massachusetts. The trouble all came from the driver of the car not keeping his place in a line of four or five cars. Mr. Moore had a lantern and was as far out of the way as possible when the driver, a man from New Haven, took the chance to cut in.

Miss Helen Bradway attended the 4-H club roundup in Hartford, going as a delegate from the Rock Meadow Cackling club. She was accompanied by Miss Helen J. Hutchins, teacher of Red school. DANIELSON

DANIELSON PEOPLE TO GET GAS AT REDUCED PRICES

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 7.—Gas rates in this territory are due to take a nose dive to unexpectedly lower levels if the public responds to what looks like a real proposition, and there is little disputing that it is.

In fact, if the public responds in sufficient degree—gets gas-minded, it may be said—this community and others hereabouts are going to buy that now essenital commodity at an amazingly new figure, for this territory, be it understood.

Great communities, where gas is used in such abundance as to make its production possible at low cost, have had the benefit of low rates for years. But this territory, where gas has sold for years at as high as $2.50 per thousand cubic feet, when it was costing the company even more than that to produce, is going to gasp, it may be expected, at hearing of a flat rate charge of $1.65, and a charge for all gas used at 95 cents per 1,000 cubic feet.

These rates are to be available upon request from the Connecticut Light and Power company, Danielson district, upon request, for all domestic purposes when self-action storage water heaters are used.

The plan means more economy for the homes where gas is used for cooking and water heating. It means that during the season when many heaters are not in use in many homes hot water, in abundant quantities, will be available for every household necessity.

Manager William Sangster of the Danielson district of the light and power company said this afternoon that in all the years Danielson and all the other territory served by the corporation's gas mains never have had a chance to buy gas at such a low rate.

The success of the plan depends on how Danielson people respond. A year's trial with no other obligation than a rental of $1.50 per month for a self-acting gas heater is all the company is asking for it. Looking as much like free advertising as this does, it still is grand news for the average householder who likes to live in these modern days in a modern manner.

MISS PILLING PRESIDENT KILLINGLY WOMAN'S CLUB

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 7.—This afternoon at the annual meeting of the Killingly Woman's club, Miss Emma F. Pilling was elected president, Mrs. Alfred L. Reed first vice-president, Mrs. Harding W. Gaylord second vice-president, Miss Ada F. King treasurer, Miss Marion D. Chollar recording secretary, Mrs. Gordon J. Gale corresponding secretary, Mrs. James M. Paine auditor. Members of the executive committee selected are Mrs. J. Arthur Atwood, chairman, Miss Adah A. Danielson and Mrs. Clinton W. Atwood. Chairmen of the various committees of the club have not been selected as yet.

This afternoon the club, the first Danielson organization to respond to the call, voted an appropriation of $10 for the relief of fire sufferers at Nashua, N. H.

Nothing just like the performance of the early May days of this year of 1930 has happened in this neck of the woods for a long time. Under the high pressure operations of Old Sol during the past few days, operating without any consideration for people who haven't shed their flannels yet, this [illegible] countryside has blossomed forth into riotous beauty in the past 72 hours. Apple, plum, peach and cherry trees are in bloom. The leaves have dropped off the oaks. New leaves have grown notoriously fast on ordinarily slowly developing trees. Looks like a big time season, notwithstanding the wobbling stock market, poor business and what not. And folks like it. At least, many of them say so.

It does appear that the majority of voters of the town of Killingly like their business administration straight, meaning, of course, that it should not be diluted with experiments or haphazard ventures into the field of more or less experimental things.

Last night a meagre representation of the approximately 3,000 voters of this town took the trouble to walk down to the town hall and kill, almost with a glance, a proposal under which the town would have received bids from those who wish to furnish trucks for town road work, and let the job of doing that work out to the lowest bidder, if he happened to be a resident of Killingly.

There was no one in that meeting of about 100 souls who stood up to defend the radical change from the things that are, nor was it necessary for those who came to the meeting prepared to show that the whole proposition could be punched full of holes to stand up and explain to the voters present that the proposal was a snare and delusion.

Analysis of the cost of trucks on the roads of Killingly, the past year, may look high, but there is no proof and none offered, that they would not be higher under a different arrangement of things. At least, last night's meeting offered no opportunity to demonstrate that this is true. Those who really know insist that it is.

Members of the Killingly High School Alumni association were today receiving "circular" letters sent out by the officers and committee of the association. The novel letters really are printed on circular sheets of paper, and bring interesting announcements to the members. The Alumni association plans to invite the members of the senior class of the school to the annual association banquet and also, as for many years past, will arrange a reception and dance in their honor, on Friday evening of commencement week. Each member of the graduating class will be presented with a memento.

The letter also tells the members of the association that there are 1,095 graduates of Killingly high school. Of these 101 have died and the association has been unable to trace 102, their present addresses being unknown.

Further announcements relative to the annual banquet and group reunions are to be made later.

The officers of the association are: President, Sidney P. Marland, '06; vice-president, Lindner W. Gallup, '20; secretary-treasurer, Miss Beatrice Maynard, '18; executive committee, Gordon Cunneen, '26; Katherine Hensault, '21; Flora Keech, '26; Franklin Crosby, '22.

Danielson people were curious today to see the great fleet of aeroplanes scheduled to come into New England from New York waters on Thursday. This demonstration by navy fliers will be the greatest ever undertaken in this section. Advance notices would indicate that the planes may be seen by those who go over to the high ground, just east of Providence, Thursday forenoon, and that some of the 125 mechanical birds of the air may possibly be seen over Danielson during the afternoon on returning from Boston to fly over Norwich.

The main idea here today was to see the planes somehow, somewhere in this section of New England some time tomorrow.

Saturday, May 10, is Danielson Booster day. Special booster day bargains everywhere. Study the Booster Day Shoppers' guide in today's issue of the Windham County Transcript.—adv.

JEWETT CITY

ROOMS WELL HEATED FOR LODGE SESSION

Mount Vernon lodge, No. 75, which has existed since 1871, learned some new economic points Tuesday evening when the third degree was conferred on a class of fellowcraft. The Masonic lodge rooms are on the top floor of the Rioux block, close up under a tin roof. The hall had not been in use for a week or so and the mercury had been hanging above 90 for hours before the work of the evening began. When the candidates were poked in the fiery furnace, all without the aid of any artificial appliances whatsoever, was heated seven times hotter that is usually the custom. When the gridiron was produced from up under the eaves, where it hangs on the side of the chimney, it was found to be sufficiently fervid for instant use. When the goat was brought forth, the added odor of scorching hair, which does not appear on any Masonic bill, brought a realistic touch to the proceedings, pronounced to be unsurpassed by any previous effort. Hereafter, it was agreed that all third degrees shall be worked in the good old summer time, because it saves time and coal and materially reduces the nervous strain upon the candidate.

Workmen were laying the steel road forms Wednesday and fastening them in place with iron pins. This phase of road building, which has never been seen in the borough, was begun at the lower end of Main street. The south and east side of Main and North Main will be completed to the borough line. When hardened, traffic will take the new elevation while the north and east side is built. The gutters and shoulders outside the 20-feet made by the state, will be laid down when the traffic can use the new north and south roadways.

The item in Wednesday's Bulletin which called attention to the approach of the thumb-jerkers' season, was read with especial interest by local motorists. During a recent ride to Providence two Jewett City men were accosted four times by members of this loose-jointed fraternity. Other reports seem to verify the statement that the trunk lines running into Rhode Island have become veritable paradises for neck-matchers and thumb-jerkers. Local motor vehicle operators would hail with delight some legislation tending to abate the nuisance.

The local mercury readings for the last four days at 2 p. m. were 88-90-92-94, which is going some for the first week in May with a mean temperature of 91 degrees. Farmers report grass land drying up under the burning sun. No May 7 temperature of recent record shows 94.

PUTNAM

STREET LIGHTING MATTER TOPIC OF HEATED DEBATE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 7—Still bearing traces of an illness of two months duration, Mayor Charles A. Richard returned to his desk for the first time since February, to preside at the May session of the court of common council held Tuesday evening in the council chamber on Church street. Although not quite fully recuperated, the chief executive played a leading role in every one of the numerous debates that ensued after problems of municipal expense were introduced calling for immediate action. Arguments were heated and many times during the three and a half hour session, the aldermanic body, led by a republican offensive, literally dived into verbal uproars that ended only in the mayor's incessant rappings for order.

The opening barrage was fired when President Walter N. King of the chamber of commerce, armed with a petition signed by a score of merchants and bankers representing the north end and downtown business sections, asked that a clause be inserted in the call for the forthcoming special city meeting, calling for an appropriation of $3,000 for an improved street lighting system in the business districts.

Under the proposed plan, lamps of greater wattage would be installed in fixtures at points from the Putnam inn to the corner of Bridge and Main streets, in the downtown center, and at various points along Providence street, in the north end, which would increase the candlepower of the street lighting system by 50 per cent, at an increased cost of one third of the present municipal lighting bill. Mr. King said that Putnam was poorly lighted, especially in its business districts and stressed the importance of effecting an improvement at an early date. He compared the lighting systems of Danielson, Willimantic, Webster and other near-by communities with the system here and asked the councilmen to seriously consider the proposition submitted by the city's most representative firms and business houses, who seek to be "led out of the dark." Mr. King said that he was aware that he would meet opposition in the council, but merely asked the governing body to pass upon the document in order that the citizens of the city might be given an opportunity to express their views upon the plan.

Alderman Chadwick, r, ward 1, hurled the first piece of verbiage in opposition to the new lighting plan. Declaring himself outwardly opposed to any plan that entailed the necessity of raising the city tax rate, Mr. Chadwick, in determined tone of voice, said, "No matter how it's done, a new lighting system is going to cost the taxpayers a five per cent increase in taxes and a substantial increase each year following. The question of course is, "Are the tax-payers willing to stand for a lighting system benefiting only a certain clique in the city, that will cost them five per cent more? We can take that $3,000 and build something the city is desperately in need of, for example—a new fire headquarters, which we need bad. A new fire station can be erected for $65,000 and that $3,000 will pay the interest on it, and will give the boys (firemen) who work for almost nothing, something for their services. I'm dead against the lighting plan."

Mayor Richard said, "I think the council ought to go into this plan and learn definitely beforehand, what the effect will be." In addressing Mr. King, the chief executive informingly said, "You are aware of the city's financial conditions. I stand and have always stood for a low tax rate, and personnally, I don't feel the city can afford the added expense of a new lighting system at the present time." Alderman John M. Dean said he was personnally opposed to the proposition, but would vote in acord with the views of the taxpayers of Ward 2, whom he represented.

Alderman Chadwick in continuing his charges against the plan termed it a scheme, and said, "If the council recommends the plan and it goes into the call, it means the voters will sanction it without any consideration whatever."

Alderman-at-large Ames joined in the debate, saying that the proposed system would certainly be a benefit to the city. He felt that if the taxpayers did not think it a wise expenditure at the present, it would be their pleasure to vote it down. In view of the fact that the plan had been duly considered by the chamber of commerce, he did not believe it fair to term it a "scheme," engineered by a certain "clique", and said he resented the terms used by Alderman Chadwick. "Most of us will agree," said Mr. Ames in conclusion, "that Putnam is poorly lighted."

Rigorously opposing all measures of the bill, Mayor Richard capped the situation when he commented, "I don't see how the city can stand it when such costly expenditures a new fire station, sewer beds, new streets and sidewalk curbings and gutters are facing us. The merchants will get more lights when they pay for them, we're not trying to benefit any clique."

The debate continued for nearly an hour with every one of the three principals hurling arguments pro and con. President King and Alderman Chadwick climaxed the verbal duel when the alderman stated, "We must have a new fire engine house first," which brought the sharp reply from Mr. King, "Then why don't you have a fire house and get it over with?" When the argument between the official and the business man began to take on an added impetus, Mayor Richard interrupted, "Our tax rates must be kept down, if Putnam is to prosper. Payrolls are Putnam's mainstays and if taxes go up we are going to lose payrolls."

Returning with increased determination and vigor to score a point, Mr. King contributed, "As president of the chamber of commerce, with other members of that organization, I have interviewed more than 20 industrial men in the interests of having them locate plants in Putnam, and where our propositions were attractive, the tax rate was never questioned. Such a thing is not considered, where the renting of floor space rather than building is concerned. More light in Putnam will improve the appearance of the city after dark and will tend to bring new people to Putnam to trade, just as it is doing for surrounding towns and cities."

The long controversy was brought to a close when a motion was passed referring it to the street-lighting and finance committees of the council to consider and bring in a recommendation at the next meeting of the body. Mr. Chadwick, in a post-argument, averred that it was a useless move to recommend the plan for consideration by the standing committees, since he held membership on both committees and he would rigorously oppose any steps to endorse it.

Among other subjects discussed at last night's meeting, where temperature ran high inside and out of the council chambers, were the sidewalk and street improvement campaign soon to be launched; repairs for the city owned steam roller, voted to be made at a cost of $600, to be charged back to the firm of Medbury and Trowbridge, who are alleged to be responsible for its disabled condition; added fire protection for the Windham County home in Sawyer district; and the issuing of building permits to property owners desiring to erect new structures on their premises.

Upon the recommendation of Fire Chief Ralph E. Thurston, a bill was passing authorizing the chief engineer of the fire department to direct fire apparatus to respond to a fire call at the county home, which is two miles outside the city. The passing of the bill, it is believed, will reduce to some extent, fire hazards at the home.

Chief Thurston sought permission to have a fire alarm box installed in the vicinity of the home, the cost of its installation to be borne entirely by the board of county commissioners, who are anxious to have the fire protection facilities increased. The chief said that the box would entail an expenditure of $800. Wires would have to be strung over Walnut street on a 100 pole section, across the countryside to the home. He said about 2,500 feet of number 6 copper wire would be required to reach the institution. The bill was approved, on condition that the board of county commissioners assumed the entire expense. The commissioners, the chief said, are desirous of having a water main extended to the home to further heighten the standards of fire protection there. To provide city water at this outlying point, it would be necessary to run a 12-inch water main from the corner of School street and the point where the Providence pike road begins, in a northerly direction for 10,000 feet. This would insure a sufficient pressure for two streams of hose, with a 500 gallon a minute pressure at the nozzle. The cost of the project would be approximately $32,000. There was no action, whatever, taken on this matter.

Following debate between the mayor, Alderman Eugene Migneault, chairman of the highway committee, and Superintendent of Streets Frederick Dumas, held for the purpose of ascertaining where the responsibility for renting the disabled steam roller out to Medbury and Trowbridge rested, the meeting adjourned.

GODDARD ANTIQUE SOLD TO NEW YORK PARTY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 7—About two weeks ago, the Norwich Evening Record, evening edition of The Bulletin, reported that a genuine tea table, a product of the famous pre-Revolutonary cabinet maker, John Goddard of Newport, R. I., owned by a Pomfret resident who acquired it for $260, had been sold at a private sale to a New York multimillionaire for the seemingly exorbitant price of $20,000. Early this week The Bulletin learned authoritively that Charles F. Swain, well known Pomfret resident, was the owner of the invaluable relic. Although Mr. Swain would not confirm nor deny the report, in his refusal to comment in any way on the sale, the name of a prominent New Yorker is mentioned by local antique collectors as having made the purchase.

When the report of the sale was first rumored about this city a fortnight ago, a Bulletin representative communicated with Mr. Swain at his Pomfret home. He confirmed the report that the sale had been made privately, but refused to disclose the name of the purchaser and requested, "That nothing be said about it, since the sale of the table, interested only those immediately concerned."

The table is one of the colonial cabinet maker's "Ball and Claw" models. It is supported by four curved legs, the bases of which are claw-shaped, clutching balls—whence it derives its name. It is 27 1-2 inches in height, 32 inches long and 26 inches in width. Its corners are squared, sides rolled and its surface is paneled. According to an article appearing in a recent issue of the magazine "Antiques," devoted to antique furniture and other relics, the table, because of its odd design, is known as a piecrust edge, chippendale, claw and ball table. Informed by authorities on the value of antique furniture, Mr. Swain was acquainted with the value of the article in his possession, an [illegible] model of which he had seen reproduced in the magazine. Arrangements for its sale to the New York millionaire were made privately.

Since the reported sale of the Goddard table for an almost fabulous figure, there has been much interest in Goddard pieces by local people. In the Rhode Island school of design, in Providence, there are many priceless Goddard treasures among the Pendelton collection, which may be inspected by interested persons at any time. Mr. Pendelton's will endowed the city of Providence with his beautiful mansion, which was furnished with products of the famous Newport cabinet maker. The decorations are the same today, furnishings in the rooms remaining unchanged.

Harry Houston, supervisor of penmanship in the schools of New Haven and founder of the Houston system of writing, will be the speaker at the Putnam teachers' meeting to be held on Wednesday, May 7, at Putnam high school.

Along with other school news notes, Supt. Farrin announced today that there will be but one more holiday for students, that coming on Memorial day, May 30. The closing date of schools this year will be Friday, June [illegible]

Approximately 200 new signs will be required to post all streets in the city with new markers, replacing those which are disfigured after years of service. Alderman Eugene Migneault of the highway committee brought in the report as submitted by City Engineer Perry following a survey. It is suggested that the name of Letters street on Grand view, be changed to Wilkinson street, which runs north and south on Grand view and intersects with Letters Main street at the corner of Franklin street. Letters Main street was named for the late Frank G. Letters, who until his death was postmaster here. The matter was referred to the highway and finance committees for consideration.

Governor John H. Trumbull has issued a proclamation setting Friday, May 9, aside as Arbor and Bird day. The day will be fittingly observed with appropriate exercises in the schools of the town, Superintendent of Schools Farrin announced today.

Sold on Oil - Waiting for the Right Burner?

THERE never was any argument about the convenience of oil as a fuel . . . we have been burning it for forty years in some of the nation's biggest industrial plants. When it came to home heating, however, we thought there was still room for development. We, like you, were "sold on oil"—but we felt it could be more economically and efficiently used in the field of home heating.

For seven years we have been developing and testing—and now we are satisfied. The new G&B Flexible Flame Oil Burner had to meet very exacting specifications. (1) It had to have low operating cost and little or no need for service. (2) It had to fit any heating system and be able to heat any size home. (3) It had to be simple and sturdy and long-lived. (4) It had to be entirely automatic in action, silent, as trouble-proof as possible, safe. We present it to you on this platform.

FIRE-CHASING AUTOISTS

Norwich isn't the only place that is experiencing difficulty with the interference by motorists with the fire department. It seems to be a common habit to get into the machine and rush to a fire when the alarm sounds, when the department responds or when clouds of smoke are seen which indicate a fire.

Even such action might not encounter objection but for the fact that there are some who insist upon racing with the department, getting in the way so that the highways are more or less blocked and, upon arriving near the scene of the fire, leaving their cars where they will make it difficult for the department to work and for traffic to be moved. In the minds of many of such motorists there is no thought beyond satisfying their curiosity concerning the fire. They think nothing about the jam which their machines are causing. They give no thought to parking at a distance or on some near by street and approaching the fire on foot.

In Massachusetts the practice has been carried to the point where the registrar of motor vehicles has cautioned the motorists against "driving to fires when alarms have been sounded and thus congesting the highways and making the work of the fire departments doubly difficult," and directing attention to the fact that "the power of suspension and revocation will be used against all operators who violate these provisions of the law of the road which are intended to prevent such unwarranted interference with fire apparatus and hosemen."

The expectation is that the firemen and police will cooperate with the motor vehicle department to the extent of furnishing the names of such autoists as bother at fires and punishment will follow, and already a list of such who created the worst jam in years at an Attleboro fire has been forwarded for action.

There is nothing surprising about such a plan. Autoists have been warned without any relief being obtained, and now it is necessary to resort to different tactics. Massachusetts is moving in a direction which other states have good reason to adopt if local endeavors at prevention are not sufficiently effective.

CASKS, BOTTLES AND CORKS

What is looked upon as material aid to the enforcement of the dry laws is contained in the decision of the United States supreme court. Having had the question put before it as to whether the display of casks, bottles, corks and similar articles for the purpose of attracting purchasers who intend to use them in connection with the manufacture of intoxicants constituted a violation of the dry law and such articles could be seized, the court has declared that it does.

This was one of several questions over which there has been some doubt. In order to clear up that doubt the thing to do was to get the court's decision. That has been done. The court has interpreted the meaning of the law, and it can be expected that as the result thereof new enforcement activities will be set in motion. The feeling among the enforcement authorities is that it is going to be a big help to them in upholding the law.

What the effect will be will be watched with keen interest. There were the days when enforcement was carried out without much opposition. There was quite a general compliance with the provisions of the law, the use of intoxicants dropped off and arrests were fewer. It didn't take long for a change to come about. There has been a studied opposition to the law. In one way and another the demand for liquor has been met. Much of it is being sold today and, according to the Literary Digest poll, there is a strong sentiment throughout the country against enforcement and for a change in the existing dry law.

With the putting into operation of the plans of the enforcement authorities under the new court decision, it is not improbable that it will result in an increase in the resentment displayed against the dry law. It seems probable that it will have its effect upon those who are making intoxicants against the law. It may place serious handicaps in the way of those who are not violating the law and thus arouse a greater storm of indignation. It has been contended with much force that the dry law could never be enforced. Difficulties in the way of enforcement are many, and it remains to be seen whether enforcement of the new court decision is going to be as easy as those in command seem to think.

RED CROSS WORK

Through the years that it has operated, the American Red Cross has established a record that cannot be overlooked. It has established itself on a basis where it is ready to respond to the appeal for aid, regardless of where it comes from. It is not only prepared for prompt response when asked, but it is often on its way before appeals are made. President Hoover stated the situation none too strongly when he declared the Red Cross had "distinguished itself a score of times by effective organization of the saving of life and suffering," and "we have come to intrust it with a great responsibility, for the Red Cross is today the expression of the national will, the national sympathy, for all those overtaken by catastrophe of storm, of flood, of famine."

There is much work that the organization does without waiting for emergency conditions to develop. That it contemplates additional service of an important character is indicated by the statement of James L. Fieser, vice-chairman in charge of domestic operations, which dealt with the establishment of a system of emergency first aid in connection with automobile accidents.

It seems improbable that those who drive cars, and those who do not, can fail to appreciate the large number who are being killed each year in auto accidents, to say nothing of the much greater number who are injured. But Mr. Fieser puts the situation in a different light when he points out that at the rate of about 32,000 deaths a year from such accidents there are in prospect 400,000 deaths, and more than 10,000,000 injuries on the highways within the next ten year cycle.

That means that a number similar to a quarter of the population of Connecticut is going to be killed in the coming decade. That being so, there is going to be need for the emergency service which the Red Cross has in mind, but the greater need is for the establishment of greater safety in the highways. That is a matter which doesn't rest with the Red Cross. It falls upon the motorists themselves. It rests with those who may be numbered with the 400,000 and those who will be responsible for such deaths. If they cannot be prevented the Red Cross will have plenty of new work ahead, but the opportunity for the prevention of such slaughter should be recognized by those concerned and other agencies.

THE PARKER DECISION

In the refusal of the senate to confirm the appointment of Judge Parker to the supreme court of the United States, there has been administered a slap at the administration and indirectly one at the supreme court itself. The action is by no means a credit to the senate and yet probably no more than could be expected from the present senate.

Opposition to Judge Parker developed out of a clear sky. He was named from a district which was entitled to representation on the bench. He was named because of his demonstrated ability. His work on the bench has shown him to be fitted for the higher responsibilities. The opposition has based its course on politics in part, on the fact that he has as a judge been guided by decisions which have been rendered by the supreme court and on the determination which has been frequently displayed to embarrass the administration and to force the reconstruction of the supreme court along radical lines.

In turning down a judge who has upheld supreme court decisions, the refusal to confirm is a slap at the supreme court. It shows what would happen to the supreme court if there ever comes the time when the senate is permitted to revise the court's decisions. It shows how quickly that tribunal would go to smash. Politics and expediency would govern instead of justice.

The decision unquestionably ends all possibility of the vacancy caused by the death of Justice Sanford being filled from the south. That part of the country has refused to support a man whose meritorious work as a judge was heartily endorsed by democrats as well as republicans. It is a case which seems likely to make any conscientious judge hesitate to permit his name to be submitted for a place on the supreme bench. What has been done in the Parker case is only what many of the same participants would have done in the case of Chief Justice Hughes had they been able to marshal the votes.

WHERE INSPECTION HELPED

The question is often raised as to whether any good comes from the occasional inspection that is made of motor vehicle equipment. There is an interesting answer to be found in the results that were obtained in Pennsylvania when that state made a general inspection last December in which all were obliged to submit their cars for tests of brakes, lights and other parts of the car upon which safe operation depends.

In that test period, there were something like a million and half cars inspected. It was found that there were 80,000 which needed brake linings. There were 350,000 which needed adjustments of the brakes. On a million the lights were not right. There were over 30,000 on which the steering wheels were not safe. There were 90,000 which needed adjustment of the steering gear. There were no rear-view mirrors on 40,000 and on a somewhat smaller number there were no windshield wipers.

Thus it would appear without further inquiry that the inspection was worth-while, inasmuch as it was obligatory that these deficiencies be corrected. But evidence of a still more convincing nature is furnished by the figures as to fatalities during that period which showed a reduction of 65 from the total of the same period the year previous.

Possibly this will bring Pennsylvania to a realization of the fact that if there were more frequent inspections of automobiles there might be a still greater reduction in the daily death list.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: Few are the days when the weather man suits everybody.

Those who find out a canoe is a dangerous craft too often fail to get a chance to profit by it.

If you haven't made your plans to participate in Arbor day, May 9, observance, there isn't much time left.

Some of the larger cities seem to be cleaning up their census work more quickly than small cities or even small towns.

No doubt Keene, N. H., will attribute the substantial increase in population, the largest in that state, to the Keene industrial plan.

MOTHER WAS A PEACH

Jim's mother, autumnally garbed in correct browns, slim, handsome and poised, smiled politely at Judith. Judith was sitting tense on the edge of the easy chair with a steadily sinking heart and knew that the older woman hated her. Or, at least, hated the idea of Jim's marrying her.

"Mother," Jim had explained, a tiny crease between his straight brows, his arm around Judith, "mother is a peach—the kind a fellow feels proud of, you see, but she's difficult. At first. Oh, you'll like her!"

He had been trying awkwardly, to prepare her, to warn her. Judith saw it now as the smooth voice opposite her flowed on. Also she saw for the first time how a woman like this might rebel furiously against her fascinating only son, born to position and wealth, falling in love with a working girl. Of course, Judith earned more than plenty of men as an art designer and at least one ancestor had come over in the Mayflower. And she was decidedly beautiful. She set her teeth grimly. If she could not have Jim pleasantly she at least would battle for what was hers.

It was a terrible call. Frozenly pleasant, the atmosphere was supercharged with electric disturbance. Deftly her guest drove home in a perfectly intangible way all the drawbacks attached to the girl before her. She spoke of the house at Palm Beach, yachting trips, dinners. She did not ask it in words but she tacitly demanded to be told just how Judith thought she would be able to fit into such a setting. She mentioned casually that she hoped through influential friends to have Jim placed in the foreign diplomatic service when he was through law school.

"How pretty you are, my dear," she had said once. "You must have many other admirers who are heartbroken!" In other words, why in heaven's name didn't she pick one of that legion and let Jim go on to his appointed destiny?

Not a sentence which Jim might not have heard and approved. It showed how terribly formidable and implacable she was. In spite of herself Judith felt a little cold, sick sensation within her which spread and grew. She felt so forlorn, so helpless, standing all by herself. All she had to use for battle was herself and her love for Jim. It was not his family's money, as his mother seemed to take for granted. No girl existed who could give him a truer devotion. No one could make him a happier home. And probably social contacts did not appeal to her. Judith had been greatly raised, if plainly. She would stand her ground in the face of this woman so smoothly assuming that she was just a lucky little climber knowing a good thing when she saw it.

"Oh, yes," Jim's mother remarked finally. "I wonder if you have at hand that framed baby picture of Jim's? I missed it the other day from the hall landing, and he said he had given it to you, not knowing I valued it. It, of course, cannot mean to any one else what it does to me, his mother. Might I have it?"

Judith's face flamed and her hands clenched. Mean anything to her? She had loved the picture on sight, treasured it more than any gift he had brought her. Not even Jim's mother could adore it as she, his future wife, did. She resented bitterly this shutting her out as one might push a chance acquaintance from the family circle as unable to comprehend emotions. For a moment the two women looked at one another openly, honestly. And then Judith swallowed hard and did a graceful thing. Slowly she got to her feet and from her desk drawer took the picture in question. She bent over it a moment and then, walking across the room, handed it to Jim's mother.

"Certainly you may have it back," she told her. Her fingers clung to the frame a bit. On the glass covering the picture there was the splash of one irresistible tear. The other woman looked up at Judith and saw her eyes. She seemed confused, wavered. Then her expression broke, changed.

"Why," she said almost to herself, "why, you do love him, too—terribly! I had not stopped to think—" a clock ticked somewhere in the next room.

Laying the picture carefully down on the table Jim's mother took Judith into her arms and kissed her. "It—it's going to be all right," she said a trifle breathlessly. "I think I just had to get used to the idea of Jim marrying any one at all!"—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 7—Among the many things Florio La Guardia of New York doesn't like is this business of American girls with wealthy papas marrying financially moth-eaten foreign titles.

Probably his own European ancestry gives him special reason for that. At any rate, he's more vociferous about it than many other members of the house who are not far removed from the "shirtsleeves" pioneers of America popularly supposed to be particularly down on class distinctions such as titles of nobility connote.

Mr. LaGuardia came close to holding up in the house the bill intended to patch up some oversights in the law of 1922 affecting the citizenship and naturalization status of married women due to his dislike of title hunting.

He demanded a penalty clause directed at title-marrying American girls.

"The matrimonial market is flooded with impecunious counts and dukes," said the New York legislative sharpshooter. "If American girls want to marry those chaps, if they want to marry titles, they should renounce their American citizenship.

"In a case where a woman seeks to retain her American citizenship while marrying an alien with a title, she should be required to renounce such title."

Women's Influence

Johnson of Washington, immigration committee head, did not think there were enough ladies so circumstanced, who had "married men in that class, secured a divorce and wished to return to the United States to resume citizenship" to bother much about.

What he was after was to put American born women who married foreigners before 1922 on the same citizenship footing as those who contracted such international alliances after that date.

He cited a quite convincing list of representatives of organizations of decided feminist slant who had urged such action upon his committee.

The bill went through the house slick as grease. The women have a decided influence now that they have the vote.

Born Abroad

Incidentally, the brief debate disclosed a lot of confusion in members' minds as to what the citizenship status of children of international marriages is.

"Suppose an American woman marries in China and brings her children back here," Representative Green wanted to know. "Would the children be Chinese citizens?"

"Oh, that is like the case of an ambassador having a child born while abroad,' Representative Stafford explained.

"There was the notable case of George B. McClellan, who was born in Europe, but he became a citizen as of right just as much as if he had been born in the United States."

Very much so. He was an active contender for a presidential nomination once and nobody sought to disqualify him as foreign born.

Take Senator Bingham of Connecticut. He was born of missionary parents in Honolulu in 1875, when that was foreign soil. That would prove no bar to presidential ambitions he may have, if any.

YOUR HEALTH

Infections

By Howard R. Dudgeon, M. D., Waco, Texas.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

A man consulted a doctor recently because his back was stiff, there was no motion in any of his spinal joints and he was incapacitated for work. He hoped to be relieved by having his teeth pulled, and certainly they were in very bad condition and needed to be pulled. But the x-ray showed that the joints were fixed by new bone formation which could not be relieved by treatment of any kind, so that there was no hope of restoring motion to them.

According to the history infection had been present in his teeth for some time before the first attack of rheumatism and he had suffered from attacks of rheumatism of his back for several years. It is very probable that if the infection had been cleaned up during the time when it was confirmed to the teeth alone, his spinal joints would have escaped and he would not have been incapacitated as he was in early mid life.

Now unfortunately a small point of infection may be present for a good long time without causing pain or inconvenience ad for that reason it is often neglected until after the infection has gained a foothold in some important organ. It is also an established fact that a small point of infection occurring in any part of the body may lead to infection in another part, but there is no way of telling when this spreading will occur; it may occur in one case in a very short time while in another case it may be many months.

Diseases of the heart, kidneys and blood vessels kill more people in midlife than are killed by all other diseases combined, and they cause more crippling. It is now widely believed that these organs become diseased in a very great many instances as a result of infection which may begin in any part of the body but most often, probably, starts in the teeth, tonsils and sinuses. So destroy these points of infection early before they have had time to spread and it is probable that thousands of cases of heart, kidney and blood vessel diseases will be prevented. The trouble is that so little inconvenience is occasioned by many of these little local infections for a long time that the only way of detecting them early is to have periodic health examinations made which should always include careful examination of the teeth by your dentist. He and the family physician are equipped to detect these points of infection early and to advise proper means of removing them.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Do Not Need This Cooperation

Mr. Editor: I see by the paper that Norwich is to have that whirlwind of a man, Clarence True Wilson, LL.D., of Washington, D. C., as a speaker. Well, if reports of him are true, he is a fighter, a strategist, a campaigner and indefatigable worker in his line. John Barleycorn must hate him. So we of Norwich who love truth and patriotism in its highest form must hasten to hear him, as states of Delaware, Massachusetts, Indiana and Connecticut tell us he is most sane and common sensed in his views. Even Clarence Darrow says he would make a good lawyer, but what a difference in the two "Clarences." We are told that if John Barleycorn were to return to Cincinnati today he would burst into tears at the sight of the average cafe bar, for he would find the business man, the hod carrier, the hard-boiled policeman and others of the varied professions and occupations drinking heartily of coffee, milk, chocolate, buttermilk and malted milk, and they all appear to be well and happy—they, like many other states, seem well content to be on the water wagon. But this would not be so if the liquor interests in France and other countries spend the millions of dollars which they have to fight to destroy prohibition in our United States through the International League Against Prohibition. Surely we red-blooded Americans do not need this kind of cooperation from other countries. Let us stand in the liberty which makes us free from bondage. Father J. Elliott Ross, C. S. P., says: "As far as I can see drink interferes a great deal more with personal liberty than does the Volstead law. The man who drinks to excess gives up his freedom while under the influence of liquor. If he gets the drink habit he becomes a life-long slave."

The antis would like to have us believe there is much drinking among our youth in schools. The Christian Science Monitor has received many replies from the leading preparatory schools.

Dr. A. E. Stearns, headmaster at Phillips academy, says: "Liquor cases as matters of discipline are almost unknown to us. We have not had one for two or three years. I claim that there is far less drinking in the school than there was a few years ago." Dr. Mather Abbott says: "This school has had no trouble with liquor for five years; the boys themselves have put liquor out of this school and the boys themselves will expel a boy who touches liquor." John Wayne Richards, headmaster of Lake Forest academy, Ill., says: "Conditions are certainly better than they were under the old saloon regime. In general, I would like to go on record as saying that as far as our institution is concerned the hazards are less than they were previous to the advent of the 18th amendment."

George H. John of Choate school, Wallingford, Conn., says the standards and ideals of the boys are most sincere and he regrets that people who have the ear of the public should talk so loosely about the boys in boarding schools. Harry Peters of University school, Cleveland, Ohio, says that at the various school dances there has never been a boy who showed the influence of drink. Samuel Holmes of Worcester academy says, following the prohibition amendment they had trouble but the last five years they have been free from drinking. Dr. Horace Taft of Taft school, Watertown, Conn., speaks strongly, as follows: To say that a crop of drunkards is being bred is a gross exaggeration. The great majority of them will not be drunkards and when they get to colleges they will drink less than boys of their sort drank in colleges 15 years ago.

Let us be fair to our young people, help them over the hard places, help purify and clarify the minds of those who are so ready to believe the unkind and unclean stories that are always abroad and keep our country clean and wholesome by obeying its every law, even the much abused one, "prohibition." Give our children and youth the example of real 100 per cent Americans.

WOULD BE 100 PER CENT.

USE OF HANDS MADE MAN EARTH'S SUPREME MAMMAL

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Man's hand is among the features distinguishing him from all other mammals, says Austin H. Clark, Smithsonian zoologist.

"The extremely flexible and adapted hand of man lends itself naturally to the use of implements or weapons of various natural objects," he points out. "From this it is but a step to the manufacture and use of tools."

The use of tools leads naturally, he says to the possibility of fire, the manufacture and use of clothing and ornaments, and the construction of a fixed abode.

Acids In Stomach Cause Indigestion

Create Sourness, Gas and Pain. How to Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist some Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful of powder or four tablets in water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Mothers Corns Are All Gone

That's what an English girl writes to the makers of Radox—the greatest corrector of common foot ailments the world has ever known.

Millions of mothers in America have corns and bunions and callouses as well as tired, burning, aching feet. These foot troubles will all go in a week if you will use Radox faithfully for a few nights in succession as directed.

You can get Radox at any real drugstore in America. Lee & Osgood sells dozens of packages a day—Get a package; follow directions and if Radox doesn't do as advertised get your money back.

What English Girl Wrote

"Mother suffered for years with very bad corns, but now after using Radox has not got a corn, or any sign of a corn at all. She used three tablespoonfuls of Radox in two quarts of hot water (not boiling) so that she could put her feet in with comfort, and soaked the feet for half-an-hour, adding more hot water as the other got a bit cold; after which she found she could pick off pieces of corn quite easily. Now they are gone."

MACHINES IN COAL MINES MAY OUST PICK, SHOVEL

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, Ohio—(AP)—To bring the machine age into American coal mines is the hope of R. Livingstone Ireland, jr., young mine manager.

In three experimental mines he is operating near here coal is cut by machines, shot, and automatically scooped long steel troughs which slide, it great distances to electric mine cars.

The cars carry the coal to the surface, where it is washed by machinery, automatically graded and dumped into railroad cars.

Tests indicate the cost of mining by machinery is about two-thirds of that by the pick and shovel method, Ireland says.

FOUGHT FOREST FIRE THAT THREATENED AMSTON

(Special to The Bulletin)

COLCHESTER, May 7.—About 300 acres of brush, timber and meadowland in the southern part of the neighboring town of Hebron was burned over today. he blaze is said to have started shortly before noon near the railroad crossing on the old Colchester-Hebron road about a mile above the former Edward Bill farmhouse and worked its way steadily eastward through the brush and meadowland towards the village of Amston.

A force of nearly 70 volunteers in charge of Assistant State Forest Fire Warden C. H. Lathrop of Lebanon, District Warden Robert Foote of Hebron, District Warden John M. Riley and Deputy Warden Elmer H. Foote of Colchester, as well as 25 students from Storrs Agricultural college, all worked frantically to check the fast-spreading flames which came within a quarter of a mile of the valuable mill and residential property in the village of Amston. The state pumper from Lebanon was also on the scene. After a hard fight the blaze was cecked at the railroad crossing a short distance south of Amston, but the flames then shifted southeastward toward the Packwoodville section of Colchester. The fire was finally extinguished in the meadowland in the rear of the former Gott farmhouse on the Colchester-Amston road, the blaze coming within 100 yards of the Gott house.

A large slab pile and considerable top wood left recently by a steam saw mill in the wood lot in the rear of the old Gott property was saved after a hard fight. A considerable quantity of standing white oak and maples were burned, but the greater part of the burned area was brush land. At 5:30 this evening the fire had been extinguished, but a force of men was busy until late in the evening to patrol the section to be sure of no fresh outbreaks.

Warden Riley of Colchester asserts that the volunteers deserve great credit for their hard fight in today's fire. He states that the vegetation is so dry that a fire will start in the woods with very little urging. This afternoon he noticed a spark fly from the burning brushland into a large oak tree 50 feet distant from the fire line, where it caught in the bark of the tree which was so unusually dry that it immediately caught afire; several buckets of water being required to put out this blaze.

Warden Riley had a local farmer in court Tuesday evening for building a fire without a permit, a fine of $5 and costs being imposed. If this practice continues on the part of the farmers in this vicinity, Warden Riley asserts that more drastic measures will be taken.

LIGHTNING STARTS FIRE WHICH BURNS GILMAN BROS. MILL STOCK HOUSE

Lightning bolts that hit the main mill building and the storehouse of Gilman Bros. shoddy and batting mill at Bozrahville about 10 o'clock Wednesday night started fires that burned the storehouse to the ground, but the fire in the mill was extinguished with slight damage. A brick tenement house next to the storehouse was also considerably damaged, the total loss being estimated at about $20,000 of which $10,000 to $15,000 is in stock of raw materials and finished goods.

A watchman named Eldredge, who was in the main mill building, saw the flash pass through the mill and immediately afterwards saw a blaze up among the shafting. By using a ladder he reached this and put it out and did the same with a small blaze in another part of the mill. By this time, Nathan Gilman, one of the proprietors had arrived, and they noticed the glow of fire reflected in windows of a house across the road, and they saw a fierce fire raging among the inflammable material inside the storehouse, which is across the road to the east of the mill.

Word was at once telephoned to the Norwich fire department headquarters, which relayed the call to the Yantic company which got under way at once with its pumper and a force of men. The state forest fire truck from Lebanon, under direction of Fire Warden Huntington Lathrop, also responded to the call for help.

The Yantic company was the first to arrive at the fire and took station at the bridge where the suction nozzle was let down into the brook, but the water was so shallow they had to shift to another location so as to get the suction into the canal from which a fine stream was directed onto the brick tenement house, but it was too late to do anything to save the storehouse.

The stream from the Yantic pumper did effective work on the roof of the storehouse and where the fire got inside the building which was unoccupied, except for one man who lived in it.

The Lebanon forest fire pumper was used to extinguish a fire that started high up in a big maple tree where a floating piece of blazing waste had lodged, starting a fire which was dropping sparks close to the roof of a dwelling house.

The storehouse was a one story frame building, about 65x45, and was practically full of bales of goods, both raw and finished material, a large quantity having been placed in it Wednesday afternoon. After the building had been reduced to nothing but a pile of ashes, the bales of material continued to blaze and the prospects were that they would keep on smoldering through the night.

The electric flash that started the fire also affected the plant of the Bozrah Electric company and there were no electric lights in the territory it serves after the fire.

Motorists from the city traveled up to Bozrahville in crowds to see the fire, many driving down the side-road to get close to the burning buildings, while others parked in the main Fitchville to Colchester highway where a fine view of the fire could be had.

TWO GROTON ALIENS WILL BE DEPORTED

Two late employes of the Portland Trawling Co., attached to vessels operating from the Groton plant of the Atlantic Coast Fisheries corporation, both of whom were taken into custody in Groton, charged with illegally entering this country from their native lands, were taken from Hartford Tuesday to Boston from whence they will be deported to their respective homelands. The men are Ernest Heeke, German subject, who was arrested by immigration inspectors a week ago after a five-year search, and Victor Stark, native of Sweden, who was apprehended several days ago by State Trooper Donald Brown of the Groton state police barracks. With them on their trip to Boston were Fred Shoemaker, German, arrested in Farmington, and Captain Umberto Garafola, former Italian army officer, who was taken into custody in Fairfield.

The four aliens were secured to each other by means of a long, heavy chain, to which were attached four pairs of handcuffs. Several immigration inspectors had charge of the squad. Five years ago Heske, a seaman aboard a vessel which cleared from Germany, deserted the vessel at Philadelphia. A search was immediately started for him, and he led his pursuers a merry chase from one end of the country to the other and finally the immigration officers lost his trail on the west coast. Recently they picked it up again and it led them to Groton where Heske was found. It was then learned he had been working at the Groton fish plant for more than a year.

Stark also deserted a foreign ship several years ago and succeeded in evading capture until chance led him to Groton where he came to the attention of the state police.

PARDON DENIED FOR MURDER OF HORSE TRADER

The brutal murder of Dyer Copeland, middle-aged horse trader and recluse, in his barn at the rear of his residence, 20 East street, New London, Labor day night, 1908, was reenacted in part before the state board of pardons at the Wethersfield state penitentiary Monday afternoon when John G. Bogardus, 45, who murdered Copeland, appeared with a request for a pardon. He is serving a life term imposed Jan. 9, 1909, after a jury in the New London county superior court had found him guilty of second degree murder.

Bogardus, in appearing before the board of pardons, said the crime was committed while he was under the influence of liquor, but the board refused to consider this explanation of the murder and his application was denied. The fact that he was drunk when he murdered the horse trader was brought out during his trial and at the time it was said that this fact had something to do with the action of the jury in finding him guilty of second, rather than first degree murder.

Bogardus was 23 years of age, and was a private in the 100th company, on duty at Fort Trumbull, at the time the murder was committed. He went to Copeland's house in an effort to obtain a loan of some money, and found the horse trader in the barn.

Copeland refused to give him any money and an argument ensued and the soldier ended it when he took a heavy crow bar and beat the horse trader to death. He then robbed him, taking his money and watch. He then rejoined William Kiley, then 21 years old, member of a well known New London family, who had waited for him nearby and the pair went to a saloon where part of the ill-gotten gains were spent.

Kiley Made Confession

A day or two after the murder Kiley became conscious stricken and told the police that Bogardus had murdered the horse trader and the soldier was taken into custody at Fort Trumbull.

Both he and Kiley were bound over to the superior court, the soldier on a charge of first degree murder and Kiley as an accessory. After Bogardus had been tried and sentenced, Kiley was brought into the superior court and the late Hadlai A. Hull, who was then state attorney for this county, recommended clemency for him, pointing out that it was largely through his assistance that the state was able to convict Bogardus. The present chief justice of the state supreme court, George Wheeler, of Bridgeport, who was the presiding judge at the trial of Bogardus and Kiley, adopted the recommendation and sentenced Kiley to nine months in the Franklin street county jail. After serving the sentence Kiley disappeared and was seen about New London only on infrequent occasions thereafter.

Attorney Clayton B. Smith and the late Attorney John C. Geary defended Bogardus and Kiley was represented by the present congressman from this district, Richard P. Freeman of New London.

Rock Zekos Plea Denied

Rock Zekos, Crystal avenue laborer, sentenced from three to five years on Jan. 2, 1929, for assault on his daughter with intent to kill, also appeared before the board of pardons with an unsuccessful plea for a pardon. Through an interpreter he declared he had no intentions of killing the girl and that he was induced to plead guilty in the superior court on the promise that he would get only six months or a year in jail. State Attorney Arthur M. Brown of this county, who prosecuted Zekos, referred the board to a statement of facts of the case he had sent to the prison warden and on this statement the petition of Zekos was denied.

Zekos, in a drunken rage, one night in the fall of 1928, drove his family from the house with an axe and seriously injured one of his daughters with the weapon. After being struck with it she climbed through a window and Zekos threw the axe at her. The weapon narrowly missed her and the head of it buried itself in the window sill. Zekos fled after the crime and left the city, but was later traced to New Britain and placed under arrest and was brought back to this city and bound over in the police court to the superior court.

The liberty loan fund through its interest is giving pensions to eight real Daughters of the American Revolution and 11 Spanish war nurses. The D. A. R. are to erect another dormitory at the D. A. R. The following resolutions were passed at the Continental congress:

One resolution called for the "unmasking of subversive organizations and an investigation of their activities" and was passed without a dissenting voice. The merchant marine was supported in another resolution and development of American ownership and it was urged that Americans travel on American-owned ships whenever possible.

Support of adequate national defense was also brought out in another resolution in which protest was made against any attempt to weaken America's defenses against an armed world. Citizens' military training was supported, also the legislation to give adequate appropriation to military and naval establishments.

In the morning, resolutions were passed calling for the taking of the oath of allegiance by school teachers as a necessary requisite in private and public schools of the land.

In the immigration resolution deportation of aliens illegally in this country was urged as well as more restrictive measures in regard to immigration as a way to solve the unemployment question in this country.

MADISON, Wis.—(AP)—Portions of a seven-foot log, discovered by tunnelers for the United States reclamation service, have been identified by experts here as 12,000,000 years old.

BOY SCOUT COURT MAKES AWARD OF MANY RANKS AND HONORS

One hundred and fifty Boy Scouts assembled at the town hall Wednesday night, despite the heat and received recognition and promotions at the court of honor. H. A. Tirrell, principal of the Norwich Free Academy, presided, assisted by Scout Commissioner A. L. Peale, Charles Coit, H. Downer Johnson, Charles B. Gilbert, and Scout Executive John Sellman. Mr. Tirrell opened the court with a short talk on the experience gained by the boys through scouting. The most noteworthy feature of the program was the visit paid to the court by the scout leaders of Putnam and Woodstock. These men were guests of honor and were awarded by Charles B. Gilbert, chairman of training, certificates for the completion of a Scout-leader's training course of more than ten two-hour sessions. Following the cheer of welcome given by Norwich scouts the Putnam leaders gave a yell which made everyone realize they had plenty of pep.

Awards Made.

Seven candidates for the rank of tenderfoot presented themselves and were initiated by Scout Executive Sellman. The new American Legion troop was represented in this group and their scoutmaster, Carl Brend, was commended for his work with these boys. Principal Tirrell made the second class awards calling upon the scouts to tell something of what they had done to earn the award. Scout Commissioner Peale made the first class awards; while Scoutmaster Johnson, representing the scoutmasters of Norwich, presented 20 merit badges with appropriate remarks on each. Five candidates for the rank of forest fire guide presented themselves before the court and two were recognized with badges and cards. Efficiency streamers for the months of March and April were presented by Charles Coit to the troops having an average of 75 per cent, or better.

One of the entertaining features of the program was a fire by friction race between four scouts who volunteered from the floor. Two scouts succeeded in making a fire by thus rubbing sticks together. Prizes for the coming jamboree rally were displayed. Patrol leaders received instructions for their overnight hike to be held next Saturday night. They also served as ushers and aids at the court.

Scoutmaster Brend, the Norwich Boy Scouts own moving picture producer, owner and operator, again entertained the scouts with four reels of pictures on the jamboree and a comedy. According to Mr. Brend, he still has a dozen or more films which the scouts have not seen and promises to continue to do them a good turn by showing pictures.

Certificates For Putnam Men.

Putnam men receiving certificates were: Edward Donovan, Lawrence Lucier, Dona Charron, Frank Gleason, Arthur Pominville, Harry Trask, Seconda Rovero, Euclid Phonet, Fred Raccine, Albert Robitaille, and Assistant Scoutmaster Franklin Robinson, of Norwich Troop 5.

Scoutmasters Howard Ludlow and John Hill composed the board of review. Other scoutmasters who were active in planning the work of the court were Will Collins, acting chairman of the Scoutmasters' round table, Lloyd Rathbun, Robert Burke, Walter Weidman, and Henry Sebastian.

Following the adjournment of the court at 9.30, the Putnam group held a supper at a restaurant where they exchanged experiences and told stories. Mr. Sellman was presented with a LeBoeuf gold fountain pen and pencil as a token from the Putnam men.

THE FAMOUS ELM TREE

One year after William Penn laid out his "greene country towne," he made a treaty with the Indians under the large elm tree that is pictured above. This elm was known as "The elm of treaty fame." It was blown down in 1810, but the spot where it stood is now marked at the foot of Shackamaxon St., Philadelphia.

The appreciation voiced by our patrons gives conclusive evidence of the character of our service.

WESTERLY OVERCOMES 6 RUN LEAD IN NINTH TO TRIM ACADEMY NINE

The Academy was rotten. Westerly was rotten. It was about even up to the ninth inning, when the N. F. A. boys asserted their superiority and as a result, lost their first game of the season by a score of 12 to 11 Wednesday at the campus, snapping their winning streak at nine games. It was their first league defeat in two years and left them with a mark of two won and one lost in the circuit, tied with Chapman Tech.

Toss Away Game in Ninth

The Wildcats started performing wild things right in the first inning when the first of twelve errors was committed by the team, and they grew wilder as the game wore on and until the ninth came along. The score at the start of this frame was N. F. A. 11, Westerly 5, but by the time it finished Joe Sherman's boys had scored seven runs and staved off a desperate N. F. A. effort to win this so-called ball game and go home with a much prized scalp, incidentally, their first this year.

Perhaps the heat had something to do with it or maybe it was just one of those "off-days", but the fact remains it was one of the weirdest tilts played on the local lot in recent years. The Red and Whitesters were always in the lead up to the fatal ninth. They had counted one in the first and four in the second to take what seemed to be a comfortable lead. Westerly scored once in the fourth and again in the fifth and sixth while the Academy had collected two more in the fourth, leaving the count at this juncture at 7 to 3, still a safe lead, seemingly.

It didn't begin to look so good, though when the invaders scored two more in the first of the seventh and made it 7-5. But then the Wildcats put on another four-run spree in their half of the inning and pushed it up to 11-5, which surely seemed enough.

Four Pitchers Used

Both starting pitchers, Boots Greene for the Academy and Novak, failed to negotiate the distance. Novak twirled the first six, allowing eight hits and seven runs and Tucker, a left-hander finished up with four runs and six hits. All of the runs off the latter came in the seventh.

Butsy Weisgraber did the finishing act for Greene, coming in in the ninth with the score 11-9 in his favor, two outs and two men on bases. He wild-pitched one in, walked the batter and Mudge then tripled past Greene in right knocking in the tieing and winning runs. Dolan fanned for the third out. The inning had been filled with four singles, three errors, a wild pitch and a stolen base.

The Academy made a dying gasp in the last half of the inning. Weisgraber first up, slashed a hit through third and went to second while Berghinzo was being called out on an exceedingly close play at first. Pepin popped to short, but Crowell, batting for Greene, walked while Weisgraber stole third. Arico then lined to the shortstop to settle matters.

Gibbs and Pepin Play Good

In the defeat two Academy boys stood out in contrast with their teammates. They were Capt. Chubby Gibbs and Hack Pepin, short and centerfielder, respectively. Gibbs played a whale of a game in the field and also connected for five hits in as many trips to the plate, one a triple. Pepin drove out his second homer in as many games in addition to two singles in five tries. He also contributed one of the fielding gems with a long running catch off Stenhouse in the eighth. Arico also made some nifty plays at first.

Wildcat Scratches

There was a small crowd, probably due to the heat.

It was just another illustration of that famous phrase, "Take Nothing For Granted in Baseball." The Academy had put their bats away in the field house and all of the squad, except those playing had been sent in. When Crowell was called on to pinch-hit he had to make a hurried change back into uniform.

Greene, while not in his best form also was the victim of such horrible support that many of the hits credited against him could have been cut down with better fielding.

The only heartening thing about the game from an Academy viewpoint was that Westerly is not a Connecticut team and therefore this game does not hurt the Wildcat chances for the state title.

To those who had been hoping that this year's Academy team would be the first ever to go through undefeated it was quite a blow. None of the teams seem to be able to enter this charmed circle. Maybe it's over-confidence that plays the greatest havoc with their chances.

This defeat was strongly reminiscent of the one Stonington pinned on the 1928 team and shattered an otherwise undefeated record.

Reardon once again played a nice game at second for the Academy, handling seven chances errorlessly.

Mudge and Dolan each collected four of the Westerly hits.

Gibb's triple in the fourth was the first three-baser for the Academy this year.

As Bulkeley has beaten Westerly, this makes the annual classic more of an even struggle this year.

Now that the unbeaten-axe, that has been hanging over the Academy's heads has dropped, the team should play a much better brand of ball in their next appearance, which is Saturday at Willimantic against Windham High. This is another league game, in fact, the next six, or all up to the Harding tilt Memorial day, are of that nature. They can now show their "guts" by coming back and rising above their mistakes. Practice again this afternoon.

YANKEES AWAIT ARRIVAL OF BIG CHARLIE RUFFING

NEW YORK,—(AP)—The New York Yankees, from Manager Bob Shawkey down to the bat boy, are waiting the arrival of big Charlie Ruffing, blonde speed ball pitcher from the Boston Red Sox with mingled hopes and fears and plenty of wise cracks. The team realizes, though, that much of its hope of overhauling the field in the American league race rests on the stuff and hard high one of the burly hurler from Danville, Ill.

There's considerable of a story within a story behind the deal that brought Ruffing to the Yanks in what the two clubs announced as a straight 'player for player' trade for Cedric Durst, the Yankees spare outfielder. The wise ones are sure the Yanks gave up at least $15,000 in addition to get the man the late Miller Huggins started angling for as far back as 1927.

As the dugout spokesman tells the tale Ruffing had his best year in 1927 and his personal disappointment at the failure of the Red Sox original negotiations with the Yanks ruined his work with the Boston club.

Now that the Yanks have Ruffing, a right hander urgently needed to bolster the failing pitching staff, they aren't sure that he will be of any use to them for some time. Ruffing probably will need at least three and possibly five weeks to get in prime condition. He is said to be 20 pounds overweight and will report tomorrow.

Bob Shawkey, the manager who finally put over the deal Huggins started, believes that Ruffing is just the man the Yanks need to put the team into the center of the fight to dislodge the world champion Athletics. Babe Ruth likes Ruffing, too.

Shawkey thinks that Ruffing, in shape, will team admirably on the starting line with his new left handed find from San Francisco, Vernon Gomez, and the veterans George Pipgras and Henry Johnson. With Ed Wells, Roy Sherid Waite Hoyt, Herb Pennock and Tom Zachary not so good so far this season, the newcomer will get a royal welcome and loads of help from his new teammates.

O'DOUL TAKES LEAD FROM PAUL WANER IN BIG SIX

(By the Associated Press)

The Big Six membership underwent two changes yesterday as new leaders appeared among the sluggers of the two major leagues. Frank O'Doul of the Phillies hit three doubles and two singles in five times at bat against the Cardinals and went to the top of the National league and the Big Six with an average of .500. He replaced George Fisher. Paul Waner could get but two hits in five tries and dropped to second place with a .493 mark. Tom Oliver of the Boston Red Sox took the actual American league leadership, making four hits in five tries yesterday for a .402 average. Babe Ruth again did the rest of the heavy hitting for the Big Six with his fourth home run of the year and two singles in four times at bat to bring his average to .358. Hornsby was kept out of action by his injured heel.

YANKS POUND 4 HURLERS TO TROUNCE CLEVELAND

NEW YORK, May 7—(AP)—The Yankees reversed the decision against the Cleveland Indians today, pounding four opposing pitchers for 12 hits and an 8 to 7 victory to even the series.

A five run rally in the fourth inning, in which Babe Ruth's fourth home run of the year played the big part, brought the Yanks the victory. The homer was made off Miller when two men were on base. Ben Chapman also hit a homer for New York.

Tom Zachery celebrated his thirty-second birthday by getting credit for his first victory of the year although Roy Sherid had to finish the game for him. The score:

BOSTON, May 7—(AP)—Tom Oliver, Red Sox rookie, led the Hub hose to a victory over the Chicago White Sox here today. By bunching their hits and taking advantage of White Sox errors the Bostonians won the second game of the series, 6 to 4. Boston got an early lead off McKain and held it. WALKERITES HOLD INITIAL PRACTICE

LONDON, May 7.— (AP) — Bobby Jones, playing his first hole of golf in England since 1927 this morning, sent a 290-yard drive straight down the middle, laid a mashie shot four yards from the cup and took the regulation two putts for a par at the first hole of the Addington course where the full Walker cup squad had its initial practice.

Shooting par all the way out with a two at the ninth, Bobby reached the turn in 33 but like the other Walkerites he then began to repeat shots and cards meant nothing.

The Americans went out in two four-ballers, one consisting of George Von Elm, Harrison Johnston, Roland MacKenzie and Francis Ouimet and the other of Jones, George Voigt, Dr. O. F. Willing and Don Moe.

The consensus of the British experts who trailed Bobby was that he was hitting them farther and finer than ever.

Jones often flashed his finest form today. That first drive outdistanced Voight, Willing and Moe by 50 yards. He was consistently longer than his teammates in today's practice. Moe also was very long with his woods but encountered considerable trouble with his irons.

Voigt impressed those who watched his play for the first time as a steady, painstaking player who will make a dangerous opponent in match play.

Dr. Willing seemed to show the effects of the ocean voyage more than the others. He pulled many shots and his sea-legs affected his balance.

In the afternoon Jones played a dozen holes with Johnson and Von Elm after which the Americans devoted themselves to individual practice. Ouimet, Voigt, Willing and MacKenzie played a full practice round in the afternoon.

An added attraction at Addington was Doug Fairbanks and Leo Diegel.

CINCINNATI, May 7—(AP)—Bennie Frey, rookie pitcher, today held Boston to three singles and blanked the Braves 1 to 0. Doubles by Meusel and Kelly accounted for the only run in the final inning. The victory was the third straight for Frey. He has not been defeated.

GIANTS BURIED UNDER 16 TO 8 SCORE BY PIRATES

PITTSBURGH, May 7—(AP)—The Pirates won their first game of the series from the New York Giants today by hitting four pitchers for 15 hits and a 16 to 8 victory. The Giants did more hitting in the contest, getting 16, but Pittsburgh made the blows count.

Roy Parmelee started for the Giants and was the victim of a six run rally in the first inning that played the major part in the Pitsburgh triumph. The Pirates scored in six of their eight innings. Ervin Brame was credited with the victory although Swetonic had to rescue him in the fifth.

Brame and Bob O'Farrell made homers. The score:

DIOLITE WINNER OF THREE YEARS OLD RACE

NEWMARKET, Eng., May 7—(AP)—Diolite, England's ranking two year old of 1929, carried the silks of Sir Hugo Hurst into Derby favoritism today with a smashing triumph in the two thousand guineas, first of the season's five classics for three year olds.

Finishing two lengths in front of W. M. Cazalet's Paradine, Diolite surprised the large crowd, including His Majesty and Princess Mary, by stepping the mile of soft going in 1.42 2-5. Major Courtauld's Silver Flare finished third with Lord Derby's Caerleon, the favorite, in tenth position. Strongbrow, which has been installed as the Derby choice along with Diolite and Caerleon was well back in the field of 28 at the finish.

On the basis of great juvenile race, Diolite was made the second choice in the wagering, closing at five to one. Paradine faced the starter at odds of 100 to 1, while Silver Flare was quoted 525 to 1.

Freddy Fox gave a great exhibition on the winner.

Canadians Have Workout

PHILADELPHIA, May 7. — (AP) — Members of the Canadian Davis cup tennis team, here for the American Zone matches with the United States May 15, 16 and 17, held their first workout today. The Canadians practiced on the courts of the Philadelphia Country club at Bala, where the matches will be played.

NINETEEN EXTRA BASE HITS IN CARDS' VICTORY

ST. LOUIS, May 7—(AP)—The Cardinals and the Phillies were in a hitting mood today collecting between them 35 hits, including five home runs, 11 doubles and three triples. A 9 run attack in the fifth inning gave the Cardinals enough advantage to win by a score of 16 to 11.

In the fifth the Cardinals got six hits, among them a home run and a triple by Chick Hafey. One man was on base when Hafey hit for the circuit, and the bases were loaded when he tripled. Thompson, Sigman and Hurst of the Phillies and Watkins of the Cardinals also hit for the circuit.

The Phillies sent five pitchers to the mound, the veteran Grover Cleveland Alexander, who was second in the parade being charged with the defeat. Alexander was pitching when the Cardinals started their nine run attack. Lindsay, the third and last Cardinal pitcher, was credited with the victory.

Frisch and Watkins each scored two runs during the Cardinals' big inning. The score:

N. F. A. PLAYS DISGUSTING GAME AGAINST WESTERLY

That the Academy staged a listless, odious brand of baseball at the campus Tuesday afternoon in their contest with Westerly goes without saying. Their play was so revolting that even the ardent Red and White followers had to say their piece in condemnation of the squad's terrible exhibition, which reminded one of a soccer game, so many times did they boot the ball.

In that never-to-be-forgotten ninth inning, as well as in the previous eight, the Wildcats, booted the ball with abandon, then threw it in that where it will land manner, to make them appear like so many, persons groping in the dark. They did not display one bit of punch, appeared to have not the least interest in the game, and as a result staged a most ridiculous game.

The boys might have been excused had they performed in not brilliant style for one or two innings, but this was not the case, for they played raggedly throughout the contest. Incidentally this is the first tilt the Academy has lost this season; while Westerly had only won a game up to yesterday, indicative of the fact that they have a weak team. But the boys from Westerly had the punch, especially in the ninth inning, when they overcame a six run lead to win. They deserve credit.

There were 17 errors credited against the two teams, 12 of which had N. F. A. branded on them. There were also many errors of omission made by Academy players. It must be said that two or three members of the team played headups baseball, being in there every minute of the game.

SEWELL FALLS SHORT OF RECORD BY 205 GAMES

(By Brian Bell, Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, May 7—(AP)—Joseph Wheeler Sewell, durable infielder of the Cleveland Indians, has decided that the last 200 games are the hardest when a baseball player is trying to break an endurance record.

A combination of ailments, in which he "had everything" he said today, drove him to bed at Boston Saturday and he was forced to remain out of the lineup after he had played 1,102 consecutive major league games, dating from 1922. He fell 205 games short of the record compiled by Everett Scott, another tough infielder, while with the Boston Red Sox and New York Yankees.

"Of course, I hated to see the possible record go," said Sewell, as he arrived with the Indians for a series with the Yankees in which he probably will not be able to participate.

"Still, one individual's record doesn't mean anything unless it is contributing directly to the success of the ball club, for after all we are not out there to clean up any special glory. Our business is to win ball games for Cleveland.

"I was sick in Boston, plenty sick. I can not remember ever feeling so bad."

"What seemed to be the matter?"

"A little bit of everything; influenza, tonsilitis and what have you."

Joe was still weak and a trifle pale when he reached New York. He had spent three days in bed at Boston although he attended a few innings of the final game of the series as a spectator.

He was asked as to his personal reaction to the snapping of what the interviewer called the "strain" of keeping his consecutive game record clean.

"No, not a 'strain,'" he replied.

"You see I like to play ball, so playing day in and day out for nearly nine full seasons hasn't been in any sense a strain. Why in all that time I can recall only two games when I didn't feel like playing and but for the possible record would have remained out. Once in Cleveland and once in New York.

"I will have to get in shape all over again, for the lay-off in Boston has taken the edge from my condition. I will practice with the boys here, and if some one should be hurt, of course I can jump in. I will be ready when Peck (Manager Roger Peckinpaugh) says the word.

"Anyway the team doesn't need me now. Johnny Burnett is playing great ball at third base and hitting all over the lot."

It was suggested that breaking up his consecutive game record might be a good thing for him and the club.

"Perhaps," he agreed. "Certainly a physically fit player is of more value to a club than a sick or injured one, and as long as the string of games was unbroken I was anxious to keep it going of course.

"A ball player not in shape can not contribute his best efforts, and while it is not true so much in baseball as in football a player in any game not in good condition is much more apt to be hurt than one in shape."

Waterbury Fights Postponed

WATERBURY, May 7.—(AP)— The boxing card scheduled for Waterbury tomorrow night, was postponed tonight by Promoter George F. Mulligan of the Waterbury A. C., when Humberto Curi, Argentine boxer, was unable to go through with his main bout with Al Gainer, of New Haven. Curi suffered a bad cut over his eye in a workout today in New York.

CAREY SUSPENDED FOR THREE DAYS BY HEYDLER

PITTSBURGH, May 7—(AP)—Max (Scoops) Carey, Pittsburgh Pirate coach and former outfielder for the local team and the Brooklyn Robins today was suspended for three days by President John A. Heydler of the National league as a result of a controversy at Forbes field yesterday.

Carey was banished from the field in the fifth inning by Umpire Donohue, who complained of language used against him when a ball called on a New York Giant batter was deemed a strike by the Pittsburghers.

Donohue said he recognized Carey's voice raised against him, but Carey today said he did not utter a word. Several Pirates backed him up.

YOUTHFUL GOLFER PRO AT WARREN, O., COURSE

MEADVILLE, Pa., May 7—(AP)—Roland Davis, 14 years of age, today became golf professional at the Warren, Ohio municipal course. He has been playing golf since he was 9.

Recently he set a new mark of 37 for the local course.

SPORT NOTES

Bobby Jones has been playing golf since he was six years old. At nine he won the junior championship of the East Lake Golf club of Atlanta and at 13 he won a three-day tournament at Birmingham, Ala. He was 14½ when he first entered the national amateur championship tourney.

Modern day heavyweights fight once or twice a year. When Bob Fitzsimmons was in his prime he fought Gus Ruhlin and Tom Sharkey fourteen days apart. Each bout was booked for twenty rounds. He kayoed Gus in six and Tom in two.

The Hagerstown club of the Blue Ridge league will be made up of Baltimore boys this year while Waynesboro in the same circuit will have a lineup largely of Philadelphia youths.

Howard Jones of Southern California must replace Dye, Hoff, Anthony, Barrager, Galloway and Tappaan, forfards, to have a winning football team the coming fall.

Wrigley field, home of the Cubs, has dudish ushers this year. Each of the ushers has a tailor made uniform, form fitting, with brass buttons and Pershing caps. Every day ladies' day!

Orville Near, star halfback at Western Maryland, has at last discarded crutches he started to use 16 months ago. A slight foot injury that was neglected brought a troublesome infection.

The Taylor Trunks girls' basketball team of Chicago played 248 games in the last nine years, losing only 20.

Roger Peckinpaugh, Cleveland manager, says Jonah Goldman is the most amazing shortstop of the last 20 years.

Picking the same day and the same hole, two Tulsa golfers recently joined the "Hole-In-One" club. Shortly after Jack Malloy, young star, had rapped a ball from tee to cup at the 114-yard No. 14 hole of the Tulsa Country club, John Winters came along and repeated. Both shots were short, rolling in the hole.

Both Jack Dempsey and Jim Jeffries were unimpressive in their first New York bouts. Jeff weighing 240 and looking slow as molasses, had all he could do to outpoint Bob Armstrong, a big Negro, in ten rounds. Dempsey failed to stop John Lester Johnson, Negro heavyweight, and suffered two broken ribs.

Burleigh Grimes is not the only baseball man to be moved because Barney Dreyfus did not like his attitude. Carey, Wright, Cuyler and Managers Bush and McKechnie were others.

After being whipped by Jack Gagnon, Tuffy Griffith decided to abandon the school room for a while and went into the Wisconsin woods to train.

Forward passing backs at the University of Nebraska practiced on accuracy this spring by throwing the ball through an automobile tire hung from the goal posts.

DO YOU REMEMBER THIS ONE?

(Another of a number of articles recalling local baseball of other years.)

In answer to a request from one of the charter members of the Third Base Gang at the Academy, we have resurrected a game played back in July, 1908, between the All-Norwich team and the C. A. C. nine, Saturday, July 18, to be more exact.

It went ten innings before the All-Norwich aggregation could eke out a 4 to 3 victory. It was a real pitcher's battle between Jackie Gallivan for the All-boys, who allowed his opponents but four hits while Dan Marra pitched a six-hit game.

WESTERLY

EXHAUSTED FIRE-FIGHTERS HAVE DAY WITHOUT CALLS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., May 7.—Local fire-fighters were not called upon Wednesday to battle with fires in the various towns of Washington county, where for the past four days Chief George E. Egger, his assistants and motor pumpers have been called on short notice and in a number of cases to report again, at points where it was thought the flames had been extinguished. State Commissioner of Agriculture Harry R. Lewis of Davisville was virtually appointed state fire marshal with full authority over all firemen and Governor Norman S. Case also visited towns in South county where the forest fires have raged. When overcome by fatigue, Acting Warden Lewis, who traveled many miles in making a survey of the situation and to familiarize himself with even the paths through the woods, delegated his power to Ben Gavitt.

Even from as far distant a point as Fruit Hill, north of Providence, fire apparatus was brought to Hope Valley, where at one time near the state police barracks there were mobilized for service some ten motor pumpers and nearly 500 men, in readiness to meet any emergency. Red Cross Executives H. L. Burdick of Westerly and Roy Bell of Wakefield had communication with the state police barracks headquarters and food and supplies were almost continuously sent through to the firemen, waging a battle against the flames. The gravel cross-road leading off the Noose Neck Hill road of Route 1-A state highway, was shut off from general traffic by state police and constables and only those showing that they had business were allowed to pass through. Only a limited number of newspaper reporters, whose ranks were swelled from city arrivals, were allowed by the authorities to visit the zones where the fires bu[illegible] fiercest.

Westerly Boy Scouts returned to their homes Tuesday, although a few were held to watch developments. The greatest loss to the State Scout camp on Yawgoo pond was the burning of tent platforms. Rumors of the incendiary origin of many of these fires have been denied by the authorities.

Inspects New Villa

Mrs. George Snowden, of Philadelphia, who is building a summer mansion at Watch Hill, arrived in Westerly with a party of four, Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and proceeded to Watch Hill to inspect the property. She has directed that every effort be made to have the cottage in readiness by July 15. The party returned to Westerly at 6:30 and a special stop of the Saint Louisan express was arranged for that they might return to Philadelphia Tuesday night. The express does not ordinarily stop at the Westerly station.

Knights Templar Hosts

A "Social Night for the Ladies" was planned Wednesday evening by the Sir Knights of Narragansett commandery, No. 27, K. T., of Westerly, Em. Sir Francis M. Johnson, commander. The regular conclave of the commandery was but a short business session, following which the Templar body became the host of the evening. Dancing was enjoyed in the commandery armory, where punch and wafers were served and at tables set in the lodge room games of bridge whist were played. The committee consisted of Em. Sir Arthur N. Nash, P. C., master of ceremonies, chairman; Sir J. Russell Oppy, senior warden, and Sir Ronald C. Dove, junior warden.

Frederick I. Dana, of Providence, owner for many years of a big camp on Watchaug pond in the town of Charlestown, has been elected president of the Shelter Harbor corporation. This development of many acres is located along the Boston Post road and in the section formerly known as Musicolony. He succeeds Dr. F. D. Lawson, who resigned. In the reorganization, L. A. Conrad was elected secretary and treasurer to succeed Dr. Lawson. The Shelter Harbor corporation has plans for a club with a layout of bathing beach and golf course. Considerable work has already been done. The club membership is open only to Free Masons and a considerable amount of money has already been raised. It is understood that more than a half million dollars will be necessary to complete the club as planned. The cornerstone for the building was laid some two years ago and it is expected now to push to completion the club buildings and golf course.

The Women's Christian Temperance union will hold an all-day institute today (Thursday) at Pawcatuck Congregational church. Dinner will be served at noon in the vestry. The union from New London will be the guests. The speakers will include Mrs. Carrie F. Chesebro, Rev. Luther G. Coburn, Mrs. George Cramer, Miss Lottie I. Morgan, Mrs. W. I. Spicer, Miss Sarah E. Burr, Mrs. Hattie Newton, Miss Nellie J. Starr, Mrs. Nathan Gilman, Miss Mary B. Erwin and Mrs. Marguerite Goodale.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Nathan F. Dixon

Committal services were held Wednesday for Mrs. Grace McClure Dixon, widow of U. S. Senator Nathan Fellows Dixon, who died in Albany, N. Y. The burial was at 10 o'clock at River Bend cemetery. Senator and Mrs. Dixon were former residents of Westerly. He died in 1893, and a few years later the widow moved to Albany. During her residence here, she was an active worker in Pawcatuck Congregational church, and served for a number of years as superintendent of its primary department.

Contractor John Bristow has begun the state road construction job in Westerly with the work of regrading and rebuilding Granite street. The state is adding the street to its highway system from the top of the hill where it joins Franklin street to the foot of the hill at Grove avenue. The town recently completed laying water pipes and the South County Public Service Co. recently installed larger gas mains through the street preparatory to the state job.

CATHOLIC PARISH PLAYERS GIVE BIG PRODUCTION

Thursday night the first performance of "Nothing but the Truth," a dramatic production by the Immaculate Conception Church players of Westerly was successfully given, being staged as nearly like the original production, which was one of the big Broadway hits a few seasons back, as possible. Miss Rose Bannon did the directing, assisted by Richard J. Butler.

In the cast were Miss Mary G. Driscoll, E. Charles St. Onge, Floyd Lamb and Joseph Kane, who have frequently been seen with the St. Michael and the Westerly players. The cast also included the most talented of the Immaculate Conception players, Misses Ann Monturato, Olga Gervasini, Rose Admiral, Helen and Gertrude Gaffney and Martin H. Spellman.

The proceeds will go toward the work of the church.

Many Joining K. of C.

Narragansett council, No. 31, Knights of Columbus, worked the first degree on a large class of candidates Tuesday evening. A smoker followed the ceremonial. Grand Knight Theodore Cote had charge of the degree work. It is planned to work the third degree at a special meeting later in the month.

PLAYERS CLUB ELECTS L. R. GREENE PRESIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., May 7—Westerly Players club held its annual meeting Wednesday evening at the assembly hall of Westerly Public library. A one-act play, directed by Mrs. Edward B. Coy, Dr. Edwin Whitford and Miss Livena M. Hanneau was presented by the members. Officers elected were: President, Lewis R. Greene; vice president, George P. Chapman; secretary, Miss Jessie Hughes; treasurer, William Critcherson.

Mrs. Maria DeRocco Baldi is listed among the passengers on the Lloyd Sabaudo line steamship Conte Biancamano, from New York, Saturday, May 10, for Genoa, Italy, by way of Gibraltar and Naples.

Arnold H. Burdick, a machinist in the employ of the C. B. Cottrell & Sons Co., printing press works, is critically ill at his home, 12 Spring street. He was stricken suddenly with a heart attack Tuesday upon arrival at his home at 6 p. m. Drs. John Champlin, Sr. and Jr., were called to attend him. His condition Wednesday was reported as but little changed.

Westerly air-minded people are anticipating the flight over town this (Thursday) about 11 a. m., of a navy air fleet of 134 planes which will proceed easterly on its New England voyage to Providence, Boston and Lowell, Mass. The fleet will be made up of several squadrons, which have been assigned to various landing fields in a number of New England cities.

MOTHER'S DAY WINDOW AT BUCKINGHAM SHOP

The traditions and prestige of two distinguished Norwich families are recalled by the striking Mother's Day window arranged so artistically in the Buckingham Shop, Main street, in the Wauregan hotel building, Norwich. The center of the display is a picture of Miss Maud Carew Buckingham's mother, Mrs. William A. Buckingham (Mary Day Reynolds) taken in her wedding gown. This is flanked by a panel showing the coat-of-arms of the Buckingham family, and the whole is surrounded by a dozen ticking Swiss clocks.

It will be seven years June 9th since Miss Buckingham, grand-niece of Governor William A. Buckingham and ninth in descent from John Reynolds, one of the 39 original settlers of Norwich, surprised her friends by following the example of so many in society, opening a shop in the Disco building ing. From the first she has carried a different and distinctive line of stock —featuring many exclusive, imported articles. For the past two years she has occupied her present location in the Wauregan, the first store to have an entrance to the lobby of that hotel. Among the leading articles in her stock are the newest in costume jewelry, scarfs, bags, novelties, elegant cards for Mother's day, birthday greetings, etc.; a variety of bridge prizes from 25 cents up; children's gifts and toys; gifts for men; handkerchiefs for women and men; As-You-Like-It hosiery, in chiffon and service weights and a thousand and one other articles and gift suggestions. Miss Buckingham has the exclusive agency of the world-famed Elizabeth Arden preparations. Every summer she continues her branch shop on Fishers Island, N. Y. Showing goods is a pleasure and Miss Buckingham is hoping to greet many new customers during the week end preceding Mother's day. Her stock holds something sure to appeal to all shoppers.

POETRY

The Country Town

It's common to sneer at the country town,
With its quiet streets and its peaceful air,
Where the little river meanders down
To be lost in the broad, blue sea somewhere,
As we who think we are wise are lost
In the roaring city that, like the sea,
Has its ebb and flow, with its millions tossed
As bubbles robbed of identity.

There's fellowship in the country town,
With its empty streets and its spreading trees,
Where the country songbirds warble down
At maids as fair as man ever sees;
Where the wind blows sweet from the fields nearby,
Where men know the names which their neighbors bear,
Where a man is missed when he's gone to lie
With the peaceful ones who have ceased to care.

There are joys out there in the country town
That we of the city may never learn
In the rush for money and for renown,
Confronting strangers where'er we turn;
Oh, wasn't God's world serene and fair
In the country town ere we came away?
And won't it be sweet to sleep out there,
Far from the city's roar, some day?

—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Night Moths

Out of the night to my leafy porch they came,
A thousand moths. Did He who made the toad
Give them their wings upon the starry road?
Restless and wild, they circle round the flame,
Frail wonder-shapes that man can never tame—
Whirl like the blown flakes of December snows,
Tinted with amber, violet and rose,
Marked with hieroglyphs that have no name,
Out of the summer darkness pours the flight;
Unknown the wild processional they keep,
What lures them to this rush of mad delight?
Why are they called from nothingness and sleep?
Why this rich beauty wandering the night?
Do they go lost and aimless to the deep?

—Edwin Markham.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Medical Professor—What would you do in the case of a person eating poisonous mushrooms?

Student—Recommend a change of diet.—Boston Transcript.

Rev. Mr. Goodpatter—Was your late husband prepared to die?

The Widow Gaysport—I think so. He was chief of the fire department during his last two years.—Detroit News.

"What do you think of the board of directors of the new company?"

"Half of them are capable of nothing, while the rest are capable of anything."—The Pathfinder.

Musicus—You ought to hear our new organ. It's a fine one. It has more stops than any other instrument in town.

Motorly—Stops, eh? For repairs or on account of the police?—Exchange.

Young Housewife—I want some lamb, please.

Butcher—Yes, ma'am; which part?

Young Housewife—Oh, you know—the part you eat mint sauce with.—Table Talk.

The teacher was talking about the dolphin and its habits.

"And children," she said, impressively, "just think! A single dolphin will have two thousand baby dolphins!"

"Goodness!" exclaimed the little girl at the foot of the class, "and how many do the married ones have?"—Montreal Star.

A man was praising his wife, as all men ought to do on proper occasions. "She's as womanly a woman as ever was," he said. "But she can hammer nails like lightning."

"That's remarkable," said a listener.

"Yes, sir," said the first speaker, "you know lightning never strikes twice in the same place."—Exchange.

A Yankee sportsman stopped at the hot noontide outside a crofter's cottage in the Highlands, and requested a glass of milk. The hospitable Highlander added a dash of whiskey to the glass. The American drank with increasing satisfaction. When he had finished he said: "Say, friend, one thousand dollars for that cow!"—Humorist.

The estate included especially valuable manuscripts and first editions of all the works of Anatole France, and these will be placed in the Galliera Museum, together with the love letters of the author to his wife.

The tickets for a rail journey between Weatherford, Tex., and Ft. Worth, bought thirty-eight years ago, have been presented to the railway company for redemption. The purchaser explained that he bought the tickets December 30, 1892, at Weatherford, and that while waiting for the train he received an urgent call from the station and missed the train.

Waterville, Me., has a dog that prefers the big woods to the city. Major is three years old and went with his master, Albert Thibodeau, to a fire wardenship location in northern Maine, fifty miles beyond Chesuncook and was brought home at the end of the season. Then he escaped and in three days covered sixty miles back over the route north, when people on whom he called for food read his name and owner's address on his collar and held him.

Children of the vicinity of University High school, Sawtelle, Cal., can hear, when it rains, the chimes in Louis Zwieg's "singing tower." Holes carefully placed in the dome built on the top of the sheetiron house that this veteran of the Indian war of the late sixties built for himself, permit raindrops to drip down on chimes made of discarded glass lampshades, arranged around a ring of copper tubing. Some who have heard the most pretentious chimes in the country have said this rain-drop-played instrument is better for soft, sweet, melodious tones.

WESTFORD

E. A. Buck made a business trip to the western part of the state last week.

The teachers from New Haven who returned to their schools here Sunday night were obliged to make a long detour on account of the Marlborough fire. They found the sight of the fire, the traffic jam, and one or two wrecks, a rather nerve-racking experience.

Those who attended church at Westford Hill, Sunday, listened to an excellent discourse by Rev. H. A. Coolidge on the text, Behold, I Have Set Before Thee an Open Door, and No Man Can Shut It," Rev. 3:8. The services were pleasantly varied by Russian hymns, sung in that language.

Services next Sunday will be in the Village church at the usual time, 2.30 p. m. (standard time). Memorial Sunday, May 25th, the service will be at 11 a. m.

The Wetherell family of Brimfield visited at L. C. Hall's place, Sunday.

WESTMINISTER

Shortly after noon Sunday a fierce fire fanned by a west wind of gale velocity, burned over several hundred acres in this vicinity before being brought under control. The fire started beside the state road, just west of Westminster hill and directly opposite the unoccupied summer home of Frank Koch. It consumed two poultry houses on the Koch property located on the south side of the road. The house, which stands on the west side, was unharmed. Telephone alarms quickly brought a large force of firefighters and assistance was given from the surrounding towns. Help was rushed to several farmsteads directly in the path of the fire. Saturday, at the farm of Louis Greenman, a large amount of cut cord wood was destroyed. The fire was presumably caused by a careless motorist tossing a lighted cigar or cigarette butt out of a passing car.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Joseph Roberts

Local friends were grieved to learn of the death of Mrs. Joseph Roberts, Thursday at her home in Rome, N. Y. Mrs. Roberts, a sister of the late Rev. T. Edward Davies, was a frequent visitor at the parsonage in Westminster during his pastorate and made many warm friends here.

Mrs. Viola Hubbard, who underwent an operation for appendicitis at Day Kimball hospital, Putnam, two weeks ago, is making rapid recovery.

Charles Colburn, who has had German measles aggravated by a bad cold and an ulcerated tooth, is out again, and so is the tooth. Charles hied to the dentist's as soon as he was able to leave the house.

WOODCHUCKS OUTDO DEER AT GARDEN THIEVING

Woodchucks are about as thick as the hair on a dog this spring. Anything that the deer overlook in the farm house garden is pretty sure to be found by them and it is not as easy as it seems to catch 'em. One disgusted gardener, who had a set of cold frames filled with thrifty plants found a chuck under the glass and most of his early cabbage, peppers and lettuce eaten, and tomatoes trampled. The chuck had crawled through a ventilator hole. There is one less chuck and one less early garden.

Prolific Cactus

At Elm Arch farm a spike-leaved cactus is in full bloom. There are eight exquisite blossoms as large as a lily. The cactus blooms regularly twice a year. Last year it produced nine blossoms in the spring and five in the fall.

Fire Breaks Out Again

The worst fire Canterbury has ever experienced, which started Sunday just west of Westminster Hill and was supposedly under control, broke out again early Monday morning and in a short time was burning fiercely on a five-mile front. The exhausted firefighters, many of whom had labored for 24 hours without rest, returned to the lines. Local fire wardens were ably assisted by fire wardens from neighboring towns. Help arrived simultaneously from Hampton, Scotland, Windham, Plainfield and Baltic. After 18 hours' struggle the fire was again subdued. A number of farmsteads had narrow escapes from being wiped out by the flames. Some out-buildings were burned and much valuable timber and cut cord wood. A large force of men concentrated at the farm houses which were in danger of destruction saved many persons from being left homeless. A constant patrol is being maintained. A shower seems the only solution as smouldering stumps and trees are everywhere, needing only a change in the wind to start the fire again on its work of destruction.

Married 65 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Spencer observed the 65th anniversary of their marriage, Saturday, May 3rd. Both are in feeble health, so no special celebration was arranged. They are able to be about the house and were pleased to have a few neighbors call during the day. The Ladies' Aid society sent them a beautiful bouquet, and other flowers were brought in by neighbors. Mr. Spencer, who was 93 last February was born in Southbridge, Mass., and is the only Civil war veteran in town. He enlisted with a Worcester regiment. For some years he was warden of the Woodstock Town farm during the 80's. Mrs. Spencer will be 87 this month. She is a native of Stockbridge, Mass. They were married in Stafford Springs, May 3rd, 1865. They have one son, Irving Spencer, of Washington state and three granddaughters, one in Washington and Marion and Alice Spencer of Putnam, daughters of their younger son, Everett Spencer, whose death occurred several years ago.

INTENTIONAL SECOND EXPOSURE

STOCK PRICES GENERALLY LOWER AT CLOSE, RESULT OF PROFIT-TAKING

NEW YORK, May 7—(AP)—Sharply irregular price movements characterized the trading in stocks today. There were several cycles of rallies and declines, but at the close the list was generally lower as the result of profit-taking on yesterday's advance and short selling on two or three developments in and out of the market. A long list of leading shares finished 1 to 8 points net lower.

Perhaps the feature of the day was the general ease in credit accommodations. Money was plentiful and a renewal rate of 3 per cent was posted on the stock exchange for the first time since March 21. Funds were available outside as low as 2 per cent but the official figure held. Rates on bankers bills were reduced an eighth of a percent and prime name commercial paper underwent a downward revision of a quarter per cent. Time money also eased.

Operations in stocks remained largely in the hands of the professionals. Organized efforts to push the list higher were reasonably successful in the early dealings, but traders promptly accepted profits at the higher levels. Considerable pressure was exerted against U. S. Steel on publication of the Iron Age Review's weekly summary, which called attention to additional readjustments in prices, to the cautious nature of buying and to further production curtailment. Ingot output for the week averaged 77 per cent against 78 last week.

The action of Steel, coupled with wide breaks in two specialty stocks, unsettled the list despite further attempts at rallies under the leadership of the amusement group, and it soon appeared that the easiest course was downward.

Manhattan Electrical Supply, whose recent market course is under more investigation by the securities bureau of the state attorney general's office, flopped 35 points, to 18, closing at 19 3-8. A statement by the president of the company said its financial condition was "excellent" and referred to a "malicious attempt" to drive the price down. The second stock to suffer severe liquidation was Celotex, which tumbled nearly 24 points on the filing of receivership proceedings. Eight points of the loss were recovered when Celotex's president announced that the concern was solvent and that the court action was unjustified.

These broad declines revived the bears, who started an aggressive selling movement in the final half hour. U. S. Steel, which had sold as high as 173 3-8, dipped to 168 1-8, recovering only a fraction for a net loss of 4 5-8. Standard stocks like American Telephone, Baltimore & [illegible] New York Central, General Electric, Public Service of New Jersey, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Union Pacific and Atchison fell 1 to 3, while American Tobacco B, a feature yesterday, lost 8 points and the A shares 7. Johns-Manville, Radio, Coca Cola, Auburn Auto and Vanadium were heavy, J. I. Case reacted 15 points and Mack Truck touched a new low.

Weakness of foreign exchanges was accompanied by authoritative reports of buying on this market for foreign accounts. Large purchases were said to have been made for London customers alarmed by conditions in India, while considerable inquiry for stocks was also said to be coming from Paris. Sterling cables, touching a new low for the year at $4.85 27-32, approached the gold import point.

Commodity prices softened. May wheat dropped 2 cents. Corn was slightly lower, while cotton steadied somewhat after an early reaction. Sugar was easy.

NEW YORK, May 7—(AP)—The American Iron & Steel institute today announced that its annual survey of plants producing steel ingots disclosed a total capacity of 63,067,545 tons Dec. 31 last, as compared with 61,759,466 Dec. 31, 1928. Plants producing pig iron and Ferro-Allows, the survey showed, had a capacity of 51,656,690 tons Dec. 31 last, compared with 51,233,895 Dec. 31, 1928.

Offering is expected shortly of $19,800,000 Chesapeake & Ohio Railway 4 1-2 per cent Equipment Trust Certificates and $5,100,000 Pere Marquette Railway 4 1-2 per cent equipment trust certificates.

Jewel Tea Co., sales for the 16 weeks ended April 19 were $4,951,620, a decrease of 2 per cent from sales of $5,056,175 for the same period last year. The average number of routes for the 16 weeks this year was 1,223, against 1,165 in the same period last year.

A syndicate headed by Hallgarten & Co., and Halsey Stuart & Co., has purchased an issue of $17,580,000 6 per cent external gold bonds of the Republic of Uruguay. A large part of this issue has been sold outside of the United States, so that the domestic offering probably will be less than $10,000,000.

The Studebaker Corp. reports that the number of unsold new cars in the United States on April 20, totaled 16,834, compared with 25,711 on the same date last year, a reduction of 8,877, or more than 34 per cent.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, May 7—(AP)—Curb market stocks fluctuated erratically today, working irregularly higher until late in the session, when some of the popular trading shares among the utilities broke sharply in sympathy with a late reaction on the stock market. Trading continued to slacken, with the day's sales only slightly exceeding 1,000,00 shares.

Such issues as American Gas and Electric, American and Foreign Power warrants, Electric Bond and Share, Electric Power and Light warrants, and United Light and Power A lost from 2 to 4 points. Duke Power tumbled 10. Among some of the lightly traded issues, Nevada California Electric and New England Power rose 8 and 4 points respectively to 1930 record levels in a few odd lot sales.

A long list of industrials and specialties worked higher during most of the day, but gains were curtailed in the late decline. Deere new stock dropped 9 points, more than cancelling yesterday's rise. Columbia Pictures shot up nearly 4 points, then lost most of its gain. Anglo Chilean Nitrate was a strong feature, shooting up more than 6 points to within striking distance of its record level, and closing near the top. Pacific Coast Biscuit reached new high ground in response to reports that the long rumored merger with National Biscuit will be announced shortly. Zonite dropped to new low ground, reflecting reduction of the dividend.

Oils were irregular. Standard of Ohio gained 4 points, while Cosden lost 5. Humble, Cities Service and Standard of Kentucky eased fractionally. In the investment trust and holding company group, United Founders was heavily bought for a time, selling up about 2 points to 32, but it lost most of its gain before the close. Goldman Sachs lost about 2 points.

BOND MARKET

[illegible] YORK, May 7—(AP)—Renewed [illegible] the credit situation and in[illegible] confidence in the prospects [illegible] money over a considerable [illegible] strengthened the listed bond market today. Trading volume was the [illegible] of the week as inquiry for prime [illegible] issues quickened, and ap[illegible] gains were recorded along a wide front.

The composite price of 20 bonds indicated that the market had regained the ground it lost during the recent [illegible] of stock liquidation and the averages again reached a point not far below the peak for the year.

[illegible] for the advance was pro[illegible] a general lowering of interest [illegible] money eased in the longer [illegible] accommodations while call loans, responding to the abundant supply of funds, renewed at 3 per cent for the first time since the abnormal March period. Bankers acceptance rates were pared an eighth of one per cent and there was a reduction in commercial paper. Another helpful factor was the recent decrease in new offerings, which have been only nominal this week.

Broader interest of the banks, insurance companies and corporations in the market for fixed-interest securities was reflected in the vitality displayed by the best rail and utility bonds. The industrial group, which has been heavy also showed signs of revival. Gains of one and two points throughout the investment list were not unusual. The dullest trading was in foreign bonds.

Atchison General 4s St. Paul adjustment 5s, Great Northern 7s, M. K. T. 1st 4s, Nickel Plate 6s, Pennsylvania general 4 1-2s, Southern Pacific Ref. 4s, Southern Railway Gen. 4 participated in the upward trend in the rail group. Issues closing lower included Pennsylvania 4 1-2s, Frisco Gen. 4s, Cleveland Union Terminal 5s and Erie 5s.

The sensational climber of the day was in the amusement group. Pathe Exchange 7s soared 12 points and finished at 78, or 10 points above the previous closing. Loew's 6s with warrants went up 2 points.

American Natural Gas 6 1-2s with warrants gained 3 1-4; Lorillard 5 1-2s advanced 2 5-8, Transcontinental Oil 6s, ex-rights, rose 1 1-2, Allis Chalmers 5s, made a new high at 102 1-2, up 1 5-8. Pan American Petroleum 6s convertible dropped 5 1-2 on the sale of one bond, and Cuba Cane 6s and Fisk Rubber 8s sagged more than a point each.

Montana Power 5s, American Telephone 5s, and Public Service 4 1-2s, improved fractionally in the utility group.

The foreign group was inclined to dullness but prices generally were irregular at the close.

United States governments were in moderate demand, moved up one to 6 points.

Convertibles generally were irregular with stocks.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut.

Remington Arms Company, Inc., Bridgeport.

The Remington Arms company, located at Bridgeport, Conn., and Ilion, N. Y., is the outgrowth of two of the oldest arms and ammunition concerns in the country; viz, E. Remington & Sons and the Union Metallic Cartridge company. The latter was founded by the late Marcellus Hartley in 1866 when he effected one of the first mergers in the ammunition industry, combining the resources of two competing concerns—Crittenden & Tibbals Manufacturing company of South Coventry, and Charles D. Leet of Springfield, Mass.

Then began the first successful manufacture of metallic ammunition in this country. Military and other orders so crowded the U. M. C. Co. that in 1873, when the country was swept by a great panic, the steady employment and high wages paid to its employes saved Bridgeport in large part from the general distress.

The growth of the company was gradual until the World war, when the receipt of large orders for military ammunition from the allies necessitated an increase in personnel from the pre-war basis of 2,800 to about 18,000 employes in 1918. After the war with the great amount of excess floor space and idle equipment it was decided to go into the manufacture of cutlery. The company now enjoys the distinction of being the largest producer of high grade pocket knives in the United States, if not in the world. The combined ammunition and cutlery plants today cover 1,750,000 square feet of floor space and over 120 acres of ground.

The present officers are: Saunders Norvell, president; H. J. Struggell, vice president and general sales manager; J. E. Brennan, vice president in charge of operations; George Bingham, vice president and secretary; L. K. Larson, treasurer.

The New England Gas & Electric association is planning the issuance of $20,000,000 5 per cent convertible gold debenture bonds, it was learned today. Subsidiaries of the association operate gas and electric properties in Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. The common stock of the association is controlled by important stockholders and officials of the Associated Gas & Electric Co.

INSURANCE

All Good Automobile Insurance Is Not the Same—

If you have that idea, it's costing you money.

Here are the things that well informed car owners now demand when they insure their cars:

1. Complete protection.
2. Prompt, capable service when needed, not only at home but anywhere in this country and Canada.
3. A share in the welfare of their company—a return of whatever part of their premium is warranted at the end of the year.

If you are not getting these things, you owe it to yourself to find out more about automobile insurance written in the American Motorist's Insurance Company.

American motorist's policyholders have always received a substantial dividend saving on each year's automobile insurance premium. Phone Norwich, 3636 NOW and secure further details.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Nanny Meadow Mouse Decides Matters

Decide on something; you will find
Relief in making up your mind

Peter Rabbit having satisfied his curiosity about Killy the Sparrow Hawk, remembered how anxious Danny Meadow Mouse had been. So Peter went back to look for him. He didn't find him. In fact, it wasn't until a week later when Peter again happened to be over in the Long Lane that he discovered Danny Meadow Mouse. It was just at dusk. Peter was hopping along down the Long Lane when some one scurried across just in front of him. Peter didn't get a good look at this small person and he was just about to hop over in the bushes into which this small person had disappeared when another hurrying little form almost ran into him.

"Well, Danny Meadow Mouse, what is your hurry?" demanded Peter, for it was, indeed, Danny Meadow Mouse.

"Oh," squeaked Danny, "what a fright you gave me! What a dreadful fright! I didn't see you at all."

"Huh!" said Peter. "If you don't use your eyes any better than that, I don't see how it is that you have escaped so long. Who was that you were chasing?"

"I wasn't chasing any one," retorted Danny somewhat crossly. "I was just following Nanny."

"So that was Nanny Meadow Mouse who ran across in front of me first?" said Peter.

"Yes, that was Nanny Meadow Mouse. What of it?" said another squeaky little voice. And Peter turned to see Nanny herself peeking out from the bushes.

Peter's eyes twinkled. "What were you running away from Danny for?" he demanded.

"I wasn't running away from Danny," squeaked Nanny, and it was a very indignant squeak. "Danny Meadow Mouse couldn't make me run away from him. I'm not afraid of Danny and I never was. I was just leading the way."

"Oh, excuse me!" said Peter politely. "And where were you leading the way to?"

"It isn't any business of yours, Peter Rabbit," squeaked Nanny. "Come on, Danny, we must be going."

"Why this hurry?" asked Peter. "You might at least tell an old friend where you are going."

"I don't know where we're going," squeaked Nanny. "We're just going and it's time we were on our way."

"You see," explained Danny, "we haven't a family now. Killy the Sparrow Hawk caught one of the children. Mr. Blacksnake swallowed another. The others have all gone out into the Great World. We don't know where they are. So now Nanny and I have decided that the time has come for us to get away from here. With those Sparrow Hawks living almost over our heads, we do not have a minute of peace during the day. So we are going to make a new home somewhere else. You remember when you saw me the other day I told you that we wanted to get away from here."

"So we're on our way," declared Nanny. "If we had waited for Danny to decide to move, we'd still be waiting. He was always talking about moving, but whenever I proposed that we move he would put it off. So I decided to settle the matter. I just told him that I was going and he could come along if he wanted to, and if he didn't, he needn't. Come on, Danny! We want to be as far from here as possible by daylight."

CITY COUNCIL AWAITS MONTAUK AVE. COST FIGURE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 7.—The city council is anticipating an estimate of the cost of cementing the highway on Montauk avenue. The city manager was asked for such an estimate and he has been gathering statistics of the cost. It is understood that the plan is to construct one-third of the road each of three years, so that the cost will be divided over that period. The highway is the most traveled in the city, especially by automobiles and is the city's principal driveway. It leads to Ocean Beach, a section that is a resort all through the summer. It is a three-mile drive along the handsome section of the city and it leads into that portion of Waterford in which is situated the Great Neck locality which is approached by the best conditioned roads hereabouts. With the cost of repair to the surface that exists on the avenue at present, it is claimed that the change to cement, while costing well will be an economical move in the course of a few years.

There were a few bathers at Ocean Beach today, a very early date for that sort of pleasure.

New London Greeks have established a Greek-American Progressive association and have a club room and gathering place at 103 State street. The rooms are provided with a library, have the daily papers, and the facilities that will be found in a well ordered reading room. Norwich Greeks have been visitors of late.

Joseph C. Ballanceau, Brandegee avenue, Groton, was arrested in the borough yesterday by State Police Officer Donald Brown, charged with reckless driving and will be given a hearing in Groton town court Monday next. Ballanceau was driving on Thames street and pulling from a line of traffic, speeded past several cars. Only because of several autos proceeding in the opposite direction coming to a stop it was that a head-on crash was avoided.

The following recently applied for marriage licenses at the office of the city clerk: E. Bradley Hemingway, sailor, of Binghamton, N. Y., and Rose Marie Cosantino; William S. Jesuck, driller, 49 Adelaide street, and Julia Wiecsorek, 16 Cape Ann court.

No Craft In Harbor

The harbor of New London was as clear of craft this evening as if it had been swept. There were times in the past when there were to be seen nearly a hundred craft in the harbor during the prevalence of easterly winds, when coastwise vessels were bound to the ports east of New London. These vessels were carrying coal largely. Now that commodity is shipped in barges and by rail.

STRAW LIDS, SALT DIPS, OPEN CARS WEDNESDAY

With the mercury about the 82 mark today, pedestrians seeking comfort did not await the firing of the gun on the 15, that would call out straw hats. Today, there were many such head-pieces worn in advance of schedule. The Connecticut company operated open cars this afternoon on the main line. There were numerous bathers at Ocean Beach. While the water was cold the air was to the liking of the bathers and the sport was greatly enjoyed.

The zoning board of appeals of the city council convened in the municipal building last night and conducted hearings on the applications of Frederick L. Goss and the Bottinelli Monumental works for gasoline stations. Goss sought permission to maintain the station on Church street and the monumental works sought permission to maintain a station on Broad street. After deliberation of a brief time, both applications were approved. May Gammons and Joseph Macine sought permission to maintain similar stations, but neither of these petitions was granted, the board withholding decision. An application of Mason Rogers to build, was referred back to Building Inspector William Gunn.

GROTON EX-TAX COLLECTOR AGAIN UNDER SUSPICION

It will probably be revealed within a few days that there is an additional shortage in the accounts of former Tax Collector Henry E. Marquardt, of Groton, for with the forwarding of tax bills for the levy of 1929 by Tax Collector Carlos W. Allyn, successor to Marquardt, property owners are making it known that the tax has been paid and that they have receipts as well as cancelled checks to prove payment. Marquardt, who was tax collector many years was recently arrested charged with embezzlement when a shortage of $16,000 was discovered in his accounts. He has since made payment of over $13,000 of the money he appropriated to his own use and when his case comes up in the Groton town court next Monday, it is believed that he will have made payment of the remaining defalcation, about $2,500. If, however, an additional shortage is discovered further prosecution of the former collector may result. Collector Allyn succeeded Marquart in office when the defalcation was revealed by an audit of the town's books. Another audit for the year 1929 it is believed, will now be ordered.

INSURANCE RATING IS THEME OF BOSTON EXPERT

About 100 insurance agents from New London and vicinity assembled at the Hotel Mohican this noon and listened to a discourse on insurance rating by H. C. Smith, manager of the rating department of the New England Insurance exchange, with headquarters in Boston. Mr. Smith's address was instructive and interesting. He referred to the systematic manner now employed in all ratings and devoted much of his remarks to the benefits to be derived in the rating system as a special precaution against fire. Mr. Smith's address was followed by a luncheon. President William C. Fox presided and Lieut. Gov. Ernest E. Rogers was a guest of the agents.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Hyde, 142 Shaw street, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Loretta J. Hyde, to Stephen Maryesky, of this city.

May Glimpse Navy Planes

New Londoners will be on the lookout tomorrow for the 125 navy planes, which comprise the ten squadrons, which will be en route in the afternoon from Boston to Jamaica, L. I. It is possible that some of the planes will fly over Norwich. It is the intention of Rear Admiral Butler of the U. S. S. Saratoga, airplane carrier, to have the planes follow the most direct course to Jamaica and that will be over this city. However, as the Norwich chamber of commerce requested the flight of the planes over that city through Congressman Richard P. Freeman, it is among the possibilities that a few of the planes will leave the course and make a flight over the city at the head of the Thames. The hour the planes are scheduled to pass over New London is not known, but it is believed that about 3 o'clock will see the ten squadrons en route.

Mrs. Otto Weisch and infant daughter, of Mystic; Mrs. Eugene Peck, 38 Huntington street; Carlos W. Broadway Theatre

Suppose you were a detective, and sitting in the loungeroom of a country estate, chatting with a group of friends—supposing that a sudden pistol shot heralded the body of your host hurtling down the stairs to lay at your feet!—supposing that you had to pin the crime on someone in that room—who could you accuse, and how could you prove it? That's the small problem that faced Philo Vance, ace of amateur detectives, in "The Benson Murder Case," S. S. Van Dine's most famous and most mysterious novel, the film version of which is playing the Broadway today and tomorrow. William Powell, who created the character, is, of course, Philo Vance, and E. H. Calvert again the district attorney, who was also an eyewitness—almost—of the tragedy, with Eugene Pallette, blustering his dumb way along as Sergeant Heath "of the homicide squad." Accompanying featurettes include James Barton in "The Under Dog," Bert Roach and Johnny Arthur in a howling farce, "Down With Husbands," a comical screen song, "Bedelia," and the latest Fox Movietone news. New young ladies are registering daily for the Broadway "Summer Girl" contest and some one of them will receive a brand-new outfit in time for Memorial day. Saturday marks the opening of Chevalier, that lovable Frenchman, in his latest comedy success, "The Big Pond," in which he makes love to a new sweetheart, Claudette Colbert, famous for her work in "The Lady Lies," a recent Broadway theatre success.

Palace Theatre

"Spring Is Here," a musical show adapted from the stage play of the same name starring Alexander Gray and Bernice Claire, and "This Mad World," a drama of love and patriotism with Basil Rathbone and Kay Johnson, are the two pictures which comprise the double-feature bill now being shown at the Palace theatre.

Alexander Gray and Bernice Claire are well known for their ability to act and both have excellent singing voices with clear, strong tones. The songs in "Spring Is Here" are an attractive feature of the film and many of them are already popular although their beauty is greatly enhanced by splendid voices of the stars.

The story does not moralize but tells in a simple way the experiences of some very modern people who are living as many others are today.

"This Mad World" has also been taken from a stage play and the entire cast is composed of only five characters. Besides Basil Rathbone and Kay Johnson are Louise Dresser, Veda Buckland and Louis Natheaux, all of whom are well known on the stage. The play is also unique in that all of the action takes place between 4 in the afternoon and 10 the next morning. Most of the action centers around a French spy, his mother, and the wife of a German general.

"Spring Is Here" and "This Mad World" will be shown at the Palace theatre through Friday of this week. On Saturday the management will present "The Rogue Song," the much discussed operetta starring Lawrence Tibbett, leading baritone of the Metropolitan Opera company. This is the first time that an opera star has been featured in a picture and it is said to be one of the greatest productions which has ever been filmed. Not only is the singing a remarkable feature but the sequences, all of which have been made in technicolor, are unsurpassed.

Camp Namakkis

Will Speak on Prohibition Subject

The coming to Norwich of Clarence True Wilson, LL.D., who will speak at the mass meeting under the auspices of the Women's Crusade of the W. C. T. U., to be held in the United Congregational church on Sunday evening, will bring here one of the outstanding men in the public eye, of today.

Dr. Wilson's topic here will be "Liquor, Labor and Law." Since his earliest ministry in the Methodist Episcopal denomination, Dr. Wilson has been an outstanding champion for Christian citizenship, and when necessary in civic reform. As an author he has written many books and articles. His book, "The Case For Prohibition," published in 1922, is said to be the strongest defense of prohibition yet in print. Because of his leadership of the reform forces, and especially of the temperance and prohibition movement, Dr. Wilson was elected national secretary of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal church in 1910. Since that time, through his efforts to a large extent, a great structure valued at a million dollars has been erected across the street from the Capitol in Washington. In this building his board and other Methodist interests are housed.

DR. CLARENCE TRUE WILSON

According to his biographer: "Clarence True Wilson has a remarkable capacity for hard work. It is said that no one, not even Mr. Bryan, made as many addresses in 15 years as he did from 1910 to 1925. He has spoken in every state of the Union, in Canada and in England and France. He is a good-natured fighter, has engaged in joint debates with all ranks and conditions of men under every kind of circumstances, and it is said, has never uttered an unparliamentary word or lost control of his temper; as he deals in principles, not personalities, he keeps happy while under fire."

Carmine Lizensiata, former Brooklyn druggist, now serving an 18-year term in Sing Sing prison for having sold wood alcohol which caused 97 deaths in Massachusetts and Connecticut in 1920, won an order in Brooklyn supreme court, directing the return of $50,000 bail he forfeited ten years ago.

When Fresh Peas are tasteless, you can improve their flavor as they cook by adding a dash of Sugar

Don't blame the peas if they are flat. If you could have eaten them when fresh picked, they would have been sweet and juicy. But the longer peas are off the vines, the less sweet they are.

Other vegetables—carrots, spinach, cabbage and tomatoes—can also be made much more palatable by adding a dash of sugar while cooking.

And the same holds true in the preparation of stewed fruits, cooked cereals, meats, stews.

There is no need to deprive yourself of flavor and enjoyment when you sit down to the table. Use sugar for its flavor value in the wholesome foods that belong in your diet and each meal will be a pleasant event. The Sugar Institute.

TAFTVILLE

Monday evening the regular meeting of the N. S. M. club was held at the home of Miss Dorothy Simineau with the leader, Miss Dorothy Hunt, in charge. Business was discussed and sewing was done. Later delicious refreshments of sandwiches, cake and coffee were served by Mrs. George Simineau. The next meeting is to be held with Miss Alberta Mather, of Providence street.

Mrs. Thomas Perkins Sears entertained the members of the Thimble club at her home on North Fifth avenue Tuesday evening. After the usual sewing hour, supper was served.

Miss Anna Bellsle, who has been a patient at a New London hospital following an operation for the removal of her tonsils, has returned to her home on South A street.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Caughey, who have been spending their honeymoon in Bermuda, have returned to town. They are to make their home on Hunters avenue.

The members of St. Veronica's society held their regular weekly business meeting Wednesday evening at their rooms on Providence street.

The monthly business meeting of Ladies' auxiliary, Ancient Order of Hibernians, was held Tuesday evening, with the president, Mrs. William J. Malone, presiding.

Local sportsmen are of the opinion that the great brush and woods fires which have broken out in the past few days in this vicinity, and coming at a time when game birds are about to begin their nesting season, may destroy great numbers of birds and drive others out of the territory entirely. This is also true of the native song birds, many varieties of which already have nests and eggs.

Peter Galian post, No. 104, American Legion, held its regular meeting in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah Community building Monday evening. Plans for the summer season were completed. In addition to a junior baseball team it was voted to place a team in the local twilight league; medals were purchased for the school awards, which are given each year to the leading boy in the eighth grade of both the Wequonnoc and Sacred Heart schools. Comrade Benac reported "all set" for the big show which the post is planning to give at the Hillcrest theatre, when in addition to some real entertainment, a message of importance in the village will be read by a local Legionnaire.

Mr. and Mrs. Armand Lippi and family, who have resided in Central Falls, R. I., have moved to the village and have taken a house on Merchants avenue.

Dismissals At Backus Hospital

The following patients were dismissed at the Backus hospital on Wednesday: Alice Pobol, R. F. D., No. 1, Norwich; Hormides Gladue, No. 25 Providence street, Taftville; Bertha Springer, 49 Fairmount street; Michael Reynolds, Jewett City; Phyllis Smith, Versailles; Laura Baer, 25 Geer avenue; Mrs. Ludger Langlais, Moosup.

MOTORCYCLE RIDER KILLED IN CRASH AT THAMESVILLE; TWO OTHERS INJURED

Crashing into the side of a light delivery truck with terrific force, Robert Cleaves, about 30, of No. 74 North Main street, was instantly killed shortly after 5:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, on the Norwich-New London highway, just beyond the city line, after a vain attempt to bring his fast moving motorcycle to a stop. Arnold McFarland, No. 18 Penobscot street, who was riding on Cleaves' motorcycle, was painfully injured and Leo Lacombe, of No. 111 Orchard street, who was driving a motorcycle immediately behind Cleaves, escaped with a slight cut, when he jumped from his machine.

The truck, a Dodge, 29,413, owned and driven by Max Sogolow, local grocer, of No. 19 Beckwith street, was turning into Bushnell place at the time. Mr. Sogolow was driving in a southerly direction, when he made the turn to enter Bushnell place and the truck had nearly negotiated the turn from the main highway when the two motorcycles hove into sight.

The motorcycles, headed north, towards the city, shot around the turn, and up the gradual grade, just south of Bushnell place, at what is said to have been an excessive rate of speed, with Cleaves in the lead, and Lacombe, close behind. Cleaves, with McFarland on the seat behind him, was driving the faster of the two, it is said, and Lacombe was trying to catch up with him.

Cleaves evidently saw the truck turning in front of him as he reached the top of the slight decline, about 150 feet south of the truck, and tried to stop his machine, which tipped over. Sliding along the highway, Cleaves and his motorcycle crashed into the right side of the truck, near the rear wheel.

Cleaves' head was badly crushed, his arms and legs broken and he received numerous other injuries. Death was instantaneous. McFarland who also slid along the highway, did not strike the truck, it is understood.

It was at first thought that McFarland's back was broken and he was rushed to the W. W. Backus hospital. At the hospital later in the evening it was reported that his injuries are not severe. It is not thought that any bones were broken, but an X-ray will be taken today (Thursday) to determine definitely the extent of his injuries. Lacombe jumped from his machine when he saw Cleaves' machine topple, and fortunately escaped with a slight cut.

Mr. Sogolow stopped his truck immediately, on the cross walk. The right rear wheel was smashed, spokes being thrown into the highway, and the right running board was badly dented. Cleaves' body and the motorcycles landed in the middle of the highway a few feet north of the truck.

An emergency call was sent in to the police department and Coroner Edward G. McKay, and Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleve were notified and at once went to the scene. Officers Michael Carroll and Clifford Crary of the local police department directed traffic around the wreckage. The state police arrived shortly afterwards and with Coroner McKay and Medical Examiner Gildersleeve, immediately started an investigation.

Hourigan Bros., were given charge of the body and removed it to their morgue. Later in the evening Lacombe was questioned at police headquarters by the coroner and the state police.

Shortly before the accident Cleaves, McFarland and Lacombe had driven to the residence of Ambrose Sullivan on the Norwich-New London highway and were on the way back to the city at the time of the accident.

Cleaves is survived by his widow and a small daughter, about three years of age. When informed of her husband's sudden death, Mrs. Cleaves became highly hysterical and Miss Kate Maher, one of the Norwich public nurses, voluntarily went to her home to care for her. It is understood that Mrs. Cleaves' nearest relative is a sister residing in Providence.

Cleaves conducted a motorcycle agency and station at 74 North Main street, where he also resided.

SAW STRANGER DRIVING WILLIMANTIC MAN'S CAR

Testimony to support the claim of Andrew Link of Willimantic that he was not driving his automobile at the time of an accident in which John E. Shea of that city was killed in a collision with another machine was given in the superior court at New London by three defense witnesses Wednesday afternoon when Link was on trial on the charge of manslaughter.

The collision in which Shea, who was riding in Link's car, received fatal injuries, occurred on Dec. 6, 1929, on Wade hill, which is outside of Colchester on the road to this city. Link's machine collided with a car driven by Henry Reis Le Bara of Hartford.

Link chose trial by jury when he was put to plea in court Wednesday morning and State Attorney Arthur M. Brown went ahead with the trial. Link is defended by Attorneys J. James Floyd and Henry L. McGuire.

The jury selected was as follows: New London—James T. Sexton and Adrian B. Murray; East Lyme—Richard Beach and Elvin A. Stanton; Groton—James P. Brady and James Paul Brown; Waterford—Andrew R. Mussell and Edward E. Sanders; Stonington—L. H. Chesebrough and Amos E. Burdick; Montville—Frank H. Rogers; Ledyard—Calvin R. Main, Jr.

The first witness was Henry Reis Le Bara of Hartford who was the operator of the car involved in the crash with Link's car. Nelson C. Taintor of Hartford, who arrived on the scene shortly after the crash, was the second witness, and he was followed by Alexander Prokopoczut of Colchester.

The state rested about 4:30 and the defense quickly introduced three witnesses before court adjourned for the day.

Mrs. Mary Attazischiek of Colchester, who lives in the Param road, gave testimony that Link left her house at a time previous to the accident, getting into his automobile with another man who did the driving.

Fred Stula testified that he was at the junction of the Param road and the Hartford-Colchester turnpike when Link's automobile drove up and its occupants inquired the way to Norwich. At that time the witness said a man who was a stranger to him was driving and Link was sitting on the right of the driver.

Joseph Attazischiek, son of the first witness for the defense, said he was on the porch in front of the Ransom school when the Link car went by with a stranger driving. This was about a mile and a half west of the scene of the collision.

All three witnesses testified they knew Link, but they didn't know the man who was driving Link's automobile.

Trial of the case will be resumed this (Thursday) morning.

Suspender Dresses

PARIS, May 4 —(AP)— Suspender dresses—which break out periodically in French fashion—are again in the running.

Models originally developed for early spring wear in tweed and woolen materials proved so successful that the house which put them out has continued the type into silk summer costumes.

He is well and favorably known to many Norwich people who will be pleased to learn of his success along inventive lines.

E. O. RODIER ACCEPTS CHAIRMANSHIP IN SALVATION ARMY CAMPAIGN

Ernest O. Rodier, a very sincere friend and supporter of the Salvation Army service in Norwich has accepted the chairmanship to lead the Salvation Army to victory in the coming campaign. After a strenuous winter in which the Salvation Army was called upon to assist a great number of deserving poor in Norwich and vicinity, the organization must again appeal to the public to contribute to a fund amounting to $5,000 with which to conduct the services of the Army during the current year.

R. D Butler of Salvation Army headquarters, of Boston; who is organizing the appeal in Norwich, the tentative date of which was set as May 12 to 17, has been very successful in enlisting a number of prominent people in Norwich who promised to bend every effort to help raise the quota.

W. A. Nichols, campaign secretary of the Salvation Army of New England, visited Norwich Wednesday to see some of his old friends who worked with Mr. Nichols in a number of campaigns. Mr. Nichols knows the history of the Salvation Army achievement in Norwich and also the standing which the organization has with the public, and he expressed his confidence that the Salvation Army appeal in Norwich can be conducted through the mails so as not to put too much burden upon the public spirited citizens who are forever engaged in all worth-while campaigns in the city. The success of the Salvation Army appeal in Norwich last year which was conducted entirely by mail, and by which the entire quota of $5,000 was raised, said Mr. Nichols, was proof that the Salvation Army service is appreciated by the people of Norwich and vicinity.

Mr. Butler hopes to complete his entire campaign committee before the week is over and to announce their names to the public. It is his intention to acquaint the public with the magnitude of the assistance rendered by the organization during the year to a great number of needy and deserving people, so that the contributors may learn the great amount of good is being accomplished by their donation.

Mr. Rodier in accepting the chairmanship said that he was sure that there are a number of good people in Norwich and vicinity who are well acquainted with great humanitarian and charitable service which the Salvation Army is rendering to those who find themselves in great distress and no one to turn but to the Salvation Army officer, Mr. Rodier added that he can count on the people who know of this service to be of great assistance in making the campaign a success.

SPECULATING ON CAUSES FOR ALBRIGHT'S SUSPENSION

Considerable speculation has been aroused in this vicinity over the reason for the suspension from duty of State Police Lieutenant Henry J. Albright, commandant of the Beacon Falls barracks, and Sergeant Thomas J. Henry and Trooper James A. McCleary of his command. Lieutenant Albright was formerly in command of the Groton barracks and was one of the most popular state police officers that has ever performed duty at that post and word of his suspension was received with regret by his many friends throughout this county. Sergeant Henry was formerly at the Westbrook barracks and was also well known and liked throughout New London county. Trooper McCleary, so far as can be learned, has never performed any duty in this section of the state.

State Police Commissioner Robert T. Hurley has declined to discuss the suspensions, saying that as yet he has not received a complete report of the matter and that since he is to pass final judgment on the three men he does not feel at liberty to discuss their cases at this time.

It is thought possible that the suspension of the three had some connection with the so-called Southport jewel case of last year when gems lost by Mrs. D. T. Erwin of New York city in the Southport railroad station were later found in the possession of three Bridgeport men. The men were arrested but before their cases were brought to trial Albright returned the jewels to Mrs. Erwin, who departed for Europe.

When the three men were finally arraigned before Judge Howard L. Shaff, the court demanded the gems as evidence. Several months passed and finally when Albright was threatened with confinement to jail on charges of contempt of court the gems were presented in court. The cases against the three men were subsequently dropped.

No life is useless. It might serve as an example for others to avoid.

WICKERSHAM DEPLORES THE PLIGHT OF PRISONERS

At Meeting of American Law Institute the Chairman of the Law Enforcement Commission Denounced the Nation's Method of Keeping Criminals In Conditions "Which Cry Aloud to Heaven"—Declared That the Practice of Endeavoring to Prevent Crime By Augmented Penalties Was Based On Fallacy—Chief Justice Hughes Asserted That "Even Legislation May Become Intelligent" When the Result of Fact-Finding Efforts Becomes Known.

[illegible]HINGTON, May 8—(AP)—An [illegible] by Chairman Wickersham of [illegible] enforcement commission upon [illegible] a method of keeping crim[illegible] under augmented penalties, in [illegible] which cry aloud to high [illegible] today marked the opening of [illegible] annual meeting of the Am[illegible] law institute.

[illegible] was followed by Chief Justice [illegible] in his first address since [illegible] a supreme seat for the sec[illegible] time commended the judicial [illegible] efforts of the institute. He [illegible] when the information now [illegible] becomes known, "even legisla[illegible] become intelligent."

[illegible] than 600 state chief justices, [illegible] and state judges, professors [illegible] lawyers attended the start [illegible] three-day convention. During [illegible] they were received by [illegible] Hoover at the white house. [illegible] the delegates considered a [illegible] draft of a model code of [illegible] procedure, already approved [illegible] institute's council, and now [illegible] their adoption. Among its [illegible]dations were changes in the [illegible] of determining insanity in [illegible] cases, and of modifying the [illegible] unanimous verdict of juries [illegible] in capital cases.

[illegible] Wickersham, speaking as [illegible] of the institute, assailed as "[illegible]tally wrong" the entire [illegible] of dealing with criminal of[illegible] the United States.

[illegible] asserted the "present day prac[illegible] endeavoring to prevent crime [illegible] penalties" was based [illegible] fallacy that has time and [illegible] demonstrated."

[illegible] prison conditions, Wickersham said "men and women are being sent to prison—to antiquated, overcrowded, unsanitary and unsafe institutions, under conditions which cry aloud to high heaven for immediate improvement."

"I would not have the construction of new, fairly decent and adequate prisons wait upon the reformation of the penal laws," he continued.

"No problem is perhaps more urgent at this moment than that of the disposition of those unfortunates who have been convicted of crime and sentenced to terms of imprisonment."

The law enforcement commission chairman said he believed the institutes proposed model code of criminal procedure would be "a distinct contribution to the improvement of law enforcement." He added that as director of the preparation of the code he believed the long consideration and research it required, furnished an "answer to those impatient reformers who demand results over night."

Chief Justice Hughes spoke extemporaneously. He said:

"I suppose it is characteristic of our day that the evils that afflict the administration of justice are attacked from so many angles by disciplined forced under high command.

"We are today seeking in many ways an expansion of knowledge with respect to the actual working of the mechanism of justice. Even law professors are looking for facts. The survey is being made not in a sporadic but a scientific manner. I hail all those efforts.' "

Mr. Hughes earlier paid tribute to the late William Howard Taft, whose place on the bench he assumed.

ARGUMENT IN FAVOR OF BRANCH BANKING

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP)— Asserting the current trend away from small communities to the urban centers has changed the banking needs of the country, A. P. Giannini, founder of the Bank of Italy and the Trans-America corporation, joined today in the demand for legislation to permit branch banking on a nation-wide scale.

Taking the stand as one of the last representatives of group and branch banks in the house banking committee's financial study, the California financier voiced the opinion that "branch banking is coming and you can't stop it.

"You can't block economic progress, you're against a stone wall," he said, explaining that with the smaller communities "drying up" there was no longer a need for the small unit bank.

"With the farmers driving over paved roads" to the larger cities to do their banking and other business and to go to the theatre, he added, the unit country bank was hard put to survive on the business left.

"Why in the world can't we have nation-wide branch banking?" he demanded after pointing out that no restrictions were placed in the day of the development of other industries on a national basis.

139 NAVY PLANES FLEW OVER NEW ENGLAND

VALLEY STREAM, N. Y., May 8.—(AP)—The air armada of the Atlantic fleet, 139 navy planes, took a swing over New England today before preparing to return to Norfolk tomorrow.

Leaving Long Island this morning the winged fighting ships flew off to give New England its greatest air spectacle, dividing into several groups so that as many communities as possible might enjoy a view of formation flying.

There were no serious mishaps although a clogged fuel line caused one forced landing on a Providence riding golf course, a second plane sank one wheel in sand landing at Pawtucket, R. I., and had to be pulled out by a truck, and a third bowled over a beacon in landing at the Boston airport. Among other places the planes, or at least some detachment of them, visited Hartford, Springfield, Providence, Pawtucket, Boston, Watertown and Lowell. In one place or another the pilots brought their planes down for refueling and lunch.

F. SCOTT McBRIDE BEFORE SENATE LOBBY COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP) — F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, told the senate lobby committee today that 5 per cent of the activities of his organization were legislative and that neither he nor the organization had any contact with President Hoover.

He added, however, that while the organization did not make recommendations to the president for prohibition appointments, it presented information.

"You say that this man is good and that one bad?" asked Chairman Caraway of the committee.

"Yes," responded McBride.

The Anti-Saloon league superintendent said his organization spent $273,049 last year in advocating support of the prohibition laws.

McBride, who succeeded the late Wayne B. Wheeler as head of the dry league two years ago, was not questioned about the recent testimony of Representative Tinkham, republican, Massachusetts, that the organization and its state subsidiaries had spent $67,565,313 between 1883 and 1926 inclusive.

AN EXPLANATION MADE BY BISHOP JAMES CANNON, JR.

DALLAS, Texas, May 8.—(AP)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., chairman of the Board of Temperance and Social Reform of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, reported to the general conference of the church today that his activities against Alfred E. Smith in the last presidential campaign "were as a private citizen and not as chairman of the church board."

"The chairman of the board," said Bishop Cannon in a report, "did actively and openly oppose the election of Governor Smith as a man who had always supported the liquor traffic. In taking this action he was acting as an individual citizen with a record of 40 years of active anti-liquor warfare. No funds of the board were used by the chairman. The board itself took no part in the campaign."

Severe Fighting In Drive Toward Nanking

Several Thousand Nationalists Were Wounded — Number Killed Was Kept Secret.

NANKING, May 8—(AP)—Severe fighting, with heavy casualties, took place today as the northern military alliance began a drive toward Nanking, capital of the Nationalist government of China.

Five thousand wounded Nationalists arrived at Suchow from the battle fronts, and 2,000 other wounded were reported being brought to this city. The number of Nationalists killed was kept secret by the censor. Northern casualties also were unknown.

Directed by Yen Hsi-Shan, governor of Shansi province and head of the rebel "National" government, and Marshal Feng Yu-Hsiang, the northern troops engaged the Nationalist (Nanking) government forces along the railway fifty miles west of Suchow, Kiangsu province.

The few details permitted by the censor to come through in despatches apparently indicated that the government forces were seriously menaced by seasoned troops of Yen and Feng, trained in the revolt of last November and December. Facing the foe were the flower of the Nationalist armies.

The rebels met with some success in cutting Nationalist communications with th Nanking capital as they swung around to the Nationalist rear and cut the railroad 50 miles south of Suchow.

Another major engagement occurred in western Shantun gprovince as Shansi rebel troops heavily attacked the Nationalists north of the Kweiteh-Suchow battle front. An attempt seemed to be in progress to envelop the Nationalists in Suchow.

Halted by the severed railroad south of Suchow, Chiang Kai-Shek, president of the Nationalist government, was unable to proceed farther from Nanking to take personal command of his armies. He was reported at Pengpu.

MANILA, May 8—(AP)—One of the sharpest clashes in years between the Philippine constabulary and Moro outlaws occurred on the Island of Mindanao today, resulting in the death of a constabulary officer and three privates and the wounding of three officers and 15 privates. The number of Moro casualties had not been determined.

The fighting took place in the mountainous Kawayan district. The size of the rebel force was not known but its ranks included murderers, cattle thieves, robbers and tax dodgers and others sought for law violations. Judged by the nature of its resistance it was believed to be large. The outlaws were entrenched in an old fort.

The wounded constabulary officers included an American, Captain J. R. Grinstead, commander of troops in Lanao province on the island. His wound was in the leg but was considered possibly fatal. Captain Grinstead, a native of Ridgeway, Mo., holds the Distinguished Service Cross awarded for bravery in France in 1913 while he was a sergeant in the 35th division.

Explosion At Armour Plant, St. Joseph, Mo.

At Least [illegible] Lives Were Lost [illegible]njured—15 Per[illegible] [illegible]orted Missing.

ST. [illegible]PH, Mo., May 8—(AP)—An explo[illegible] late today leveled a five story [illegible]usage factory at the Armour & Company plant in south St. Joseph, claiming at least seven lives, injuring 12 and leaving 15 persons missing. First estimates of the damage indicated it would run between $200,000 and $300,000.

Officials of the plant said about 70 persons were working in the smokehouse, about 35 of them girls. How many escaped was undetermined.

W. Garlich, a foreman, pointed out a spot in the wreckage where he said 15 girls might be buried. Firemen attacked the debris and could hear faint cries, but said it might be hours before they could dig through the tangled mass imprisoning the victims.

A girl, identified only as "Toot" was taken from the building.

Workers also recovered the bodies of Art Rogers, Gotlieb Wiedmes and Earl Hansen.

The blast occurred a short time after half of the regular force of nearly 100 had left the building. It was indicated that at least a third of the victims were women.

Firemen and other rescue workers had been able only to touch the rim of the ruins several hours later and it appeared it might take twenty-four hours to reach the basement where several persons were known to have been working.

Faint cries came from the wreckage of the five story brick structure at intervals, and served to spur the rescuers to renewed efforts.

Every type of implement was used to tear the ruins apart. Dozens of men and boys dragged away the heavy timbers as they were pried loose.

The cause of the blast was not definitely determined at once, although the presence of ammonia gas which hampered the rescuers, led to unverified reports that an ammonia tank had blown up.

CONFEREES MEET TODAY FOR TARIFF ADJUSTMENT

WASHINGTON, May 8—(AP)—The unusual request of the senate for another conference on the tariff bill before both houses had acted upon partial agreement of the first conference, was accepted today by the house, but only after the senate's action had been sharply criticized by Representative Cramton, republican, Michigan.

A surprise attempt by Representative Garner, of Texas, the minority leader, to instruct the house conferees to accept the Blease amendment exempting from the six cents a hundred pounds levy cement intended for state and municipal public works, was defeated 155 to 138.

The conferees will meet tomorrow in an effort to reach a supplemental agreement on the six remaining major points in controversy—the Blease cement provision, rates of silver and lumber, the export debenture plan, the legislative flexible tariff clause, and the tariff commission re-organized proposal.

The senate conferees still are pledged not to recede on the export debenture and the flexible provision withdrawing from the president the power to change customs duties before asking instructions from the senate.

INVESTIGATING MEANS TO DEAL WITH COMMUNISTS

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP) — A broad investigation of the activities of communists and means by which the deportation laws may be strengthened is proposed in a resolution being drafted for introduction by Chairman Snell of the house rules committee.

The rules committee, which passes upon resolutions authorizing investigations, decided at a secret session today to authorize an inquiry by a special committee into activities of Russian soviets.

Snell said information has been "placed before the committee that cannot be ignored."

"We would not be justified in overlooking this information," the New York member said. "We have found deficiencies in the deportation laws and have learned that the justice and labor departments are inadequately equipped to cope with the situation."

WORKING ON NEW CLUE TO SLAYERS OF SMITHS

MUSKOGEE, Okla., May 8.—(AP) — Investigation of the mysterious slaying of George R. Smith of Sharon, Conn., and his brother David, in a hotel room here about two weeks ago was renewed today with the discovery of a packet of papers believed to have been taken from George Smith, on a down town street.

$3,000,000 DAMAGE RESULTS FROM EXPLOSION ON 10,000 GALLON TANKER

BAYONE, N. J., May 8—(AP)—Flames flung in all directions by the explosion of a 10,000-gallon gasoline tanker today swept the 13-acre plant of the Gulf Refining company and destroyed property valued at more than $3,000,000 before being brought under control.

The flames roared with volcanic force among a nest of tanks containing millions of gallons of crude oil, fuel, gasoline and naptha, but fortunately did not reach any gasoline tanks. One after another, 16 tanks exploded, with detonations heard for miles, and burst into flames.

One structure, housing 10,000 fifty-gallon drums of oil was shattered, and a rain of metal barrels, bricks and flaming oil descended.

Seven men were injured and for a time residents feared the destruction of the city. Gunner Frieden and Charles Noatbahl, members of the crew of the tanker Schutia, were seriously injured. Frieden may die.

In addition, three city firemen and an employe of the company were overcome and Inbert Hoaflenst, of the Schutia, was injured slightly.

The first explosion on the Schutia, was believed to have been caused by a back-fire. The tanker was tied at the company's docks on the Kill Van Kull, a small body of water dividing New Jersey and State Island, and connecting New York bay with Newark bay.

Within a few minutes, the flames spread from pier to pier. A barge burned and sank. Its crew reached shore.

Eating under the piers, the flames reached a small tank, exploding it and scattering flames among the 15 other tanks in the water-side section of the plant. Flames shot three hundred feet in the air and black smoke clouded the skies for more than half a mile.

Fire companies from Bayonne, Jersey City and Staten Island and seven fireboats aided in battling the flames.

OHIO PENITENTIARY AGAIN BECOMES SCENE OF STRIFE

Outbreak Followed Accidental Shooting of Three Convicts—Unruly Prisoners Destroyed Their Temporary Shelter Tents By Firing Them—Guardsmen, Prison Guards and City Firemen Surrounded the Prison Walls to Prevent a Break For Liberty.

COLUMBUS, O., May 8—(AP)—Their heads pierced by machine gun bullets accidentally discharged by Ohio National Guardsmen, two Ohio penitentiary convicts lay dead tonight, the latest in the long string of prison casualties and disorders dating from the Easter Monday fire when 320 convicts met death. A third convict was wounded in the shooting of this morning, a few hours after unruly prisoners, confined in a barbed wire stockade within the prison yard, destroyed their temporary shelter tents by firing them.

The two dead were Albert Freeman, Negro, and Frank Ross, both of Cuyahoga county, serving long terms. They met death as they slept in the dormitory where the better of prisoners were confined.

Tonight, scores of convicts who had been housed in the tents pending repairs to the cell locks they damaged, had only the ground as a bed and the sky as a cover. Many left "homeless" by the incendiary fire, found shelter in improvised "pup tents" made from sections of burned tents, blankets and other bed clothes. Authorities were firm in the determination that the unruly men would sleep in the open until the cell blocks are repaired, now that they have destroyed the shelter furnished them by the state.

Officials of the National Guard investigated both the fire and the shooting. The reports were submitted to the adjutant general, who said they would be withheld from publication. The names of the guardsmen who had charge of the ill-fated machine guns, members of Company D, Marion, were not made known.

After comparative quiet within the prison since the mutineers in the White City idle house were overcome and put into the stockade by National Guardsmen, the peace within the old prison walls was shattered early today by the cry of fire. Unruly convicts, armed with paper firebrands, ran about the tent colony, firing the canvas shelters.

Within a short time, 37 of the 53 tents had been consumed by the flames as the surly convicts stood by and watched. They made no effort to put out the fire until guardsmen threatened them.

Guardsmen, prison guards and city firemen surrounded the prison walls to prevent a break for liberty. All was quiet again until shortly after dawn when a sudden burst of machine gun fire startled the watchful guards. The bullets, fired accidentally from a gun mounted in front of the chapel, carried death and injury into the dormitory through a barred window. The wounded man, Ernest Warren, Cuyahoga county Negro, will recover.

27 PERSONS SLAIN IN DISORDERS IN INDIA

BOMBAY, May 8.—(AP)—Hope of an early end of difficulties with the cohorts of civil disobedience went down in blood and ashes tonight while cavalry forces rode upon Sholapur where twenty-seven were killed during strife that lasted all day long.

Nightfall did not bring quiet to the scene of the most severe clash since the internment of Mahatma Gandhi signaled the seeming end of passive resistance.

With its lists of dead and probably more than a hundred wounded, Sholapur this evening sent out calls for troops. It was evident that a stubborn encounter still was in progress.

Thirteen European women and children tonight had been evacuated from the city. They were removed to a point of safety said to be Poona, where earlier in the day, it had been reported and denied that the mahatma had been spirited from his internment quarters to a fortress at Purandhar.

CEREMONIES AT CATHOLIC EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS

CARTHAGE, Tunisia, May 8—(AP)—Where followers of Christ were delivered to wild beats in the beginning of Christianity, little children today took part in a moving ceremony of the thirteenth Roman Catholic Eucharistic congress of the world.

Under the warm afternoon sun, five thousand little ones paid their simple tribute to the memory of the countless martyrs whom Pagans cast into the ancient amphitheatre to make a "Roman holiday."

Catholic tradition preserves the spots where thirty-odd martyrs died, each spot being marked with a plaque. The children, most of whom had just entered upon their first communion, marched through the once blood-soaked arena and reverently placed palms upon the plaques.

The Americans participated in today's religious fetes in the Church of St. Jeanne D'Arc which had been especially assigned to that group.

For most of the day the air was so crisp that it was necessary for many of the pilgrims to wear their overcoats.

CIVIL WAR VETERANS AT ROTARY LUNCHEON

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, May 8—About 45 veterans of the Civil war gathered in this city for the 63rd annual convention of the state G. A. R., were entertained at luncheon this noon by the Willimantic Rotary club. Seated to the right of President Louis H. Arnold, who was in charge of the meeting, were State Commander James Haggerty of this city, adjutant general of the national organization, Wilfred A. Wetherbee of Boston, Mass., and Henry J. Seeley of Bridgeport, former department commander.

The speakers included the above mentioned officers and Chief of Staff Ira Wildman of Danbury, member of the Danbury Rotary club, Department Chaplain Henry W. Burrill of Hartford and Rev. William H. Singleton, of Highwood. The speakers from the club were Captain Ellison S. Smith of Company C, 169th Infantry, C. N. G., and Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock, a World war veteran. The program had been arranged by Vice-President J. E. Sullivan. For the occasion the Hosmer Mountain Bottling Works furnished gingerale and Joseph B. Riordan furnished cigars, both contributions being much appreciated.

Chief of Staff Williams announced that Governor John H. Trumbull had arranged to have $1,000 taken from his appropriation to defray the expenses of the 15 delegates and representatives to the national G. A. R. encampment in Cincinnati, Ohio. Rotarian Wildman led in the singing of old songs by the G. A. R. quartet comprising Dr. Frank A. Cargill, James Young, Edward T. Abbott of Bridgeport and Homer Northrop. Dr. Cargill favored with a splendid tribute to the flag.

Rev. William H. Singleton of Highwood, a suburb of New Haven, who addressed the Rotary meeting today, is a veteran of considerable prominence. He was born in North Carolina August 10, 1835, as a slave. When he had reached the age of 18 years he had been sold to four different masters. About the time the Civil war broke out he led a small group of slaves to freedom, arriving at a Yankee camp with practically all their clothing torn from their bruised bodies after untold hardships in the wilderness. Singleton later organised a regiment of Negroes who did creditable work in the war. Despite the fact that he is 95 years of age, Rev. Mr. Singleton, who has been practising ministry for the past half century, is unusually active and alert. Last September he attended the national encampment in Portland, Me., and there presented to his comrades his bride.

So far this season, no one in this vicinity has caught a trout as big as Mr. Brown's 1929 beauty. The best architectural practice is to bridge joists. This makes for stiffness of the structure. Bridging has the effect of restraining the joists from a tendency to tip over, and when a load is applied at one end of the house (as in a windstorm) the bridging transmits the load and aids in distribution of that load. Bridging costs little and should be included.

DANIELSON

FORMER LOCAL MAN ON BYRD RECEPTION COM.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, May 8.—It is understood that W. Irving Bullard, for years a resident here, and still an official of one of the town's manufacturing enterprises and a director of one of its banking institutions, has an outstanding place on the Boston committee that is making the arrangements for the impressive reception that city is to tender Rear Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd, when that famous trans-oceanic flyer and visitor to the north and south poles makes an appointed appearance there in June.

Mr. Bullard promises that Boston will do itself proud in officially welcoming that intrepid and distinguished American. Many thousands of dollars will be spent to make the event impressive and memorable.

Today Earl Bassett and Charles Hale motored over to Providence to watch the arrival of the sky full of navy and army fliers making a dash into New England to thrill and edify all of those fortunate enough to have an opportunity to see them.

The local men were not disappointed. They motored over to the What Cheer airport and watched the birdmen dash swiftly down from the skies and land in trios and, after a time, in clouds of dust that the early arriving machines kicked up.

They got a special kick out of watching the landing of a giant amphibian that came down much the same as a ton of brick in making an irregular landing, and were left a bit apprehensive as one of the wheels on the giant machine crumpled and tossed the plane over on its curving nose to slide along and then stall in soft ground. The two fliers emerged after a time, uninjured.

Minor accidents, this having to do with motor cars, resulted in court appearances of Louis Goulet of Danielson and Harmidos Charon in courts in Brooklyn and here to answer to charges. Goulet's machine was in a collision with Burton Brown's of Danielson. In a justice's court in Brooklyn the charge of reckless driving filed against him was nolled on payment of costs. The accident happened May 6. Mr. Charon also came to court to answer a speeding charge. His machine was in an accident on Dyer street last [illegible] with a car driven by Donat Rob[illegible] of Danielson. This case also was nolled on payment of costs. Mr. Charon was represented by Attorney Harry E. [illegible]

ON LOOKOUT FOR MACHINE WITH ALLEGED MURDERER

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 8.—State officers at the Danielson barracks were watching all roads through this territory today for an Overland sedan bearing Vermont registration 19522, and with the keen desire of arresting one Ray[illegible] Oliver, wanted by Massachusetts police to answer to a charge of murder, the crime committed in Naltic, Mass., on March 14.

The car was reported to have been seen in Worcester early this morning en route heading toward Connecticut, but up to late this afternoon no trace of the car nor its driver had been found in this section.

Captain and Mrs. Harold Greene and son Franklin, motored today to [illegible] River, Mass., on Cape Cod. Mrs. Greene and Franklin are to remain there for about a month. Captain Greene is returning here to give his attention to his regular duties.

Mrs. Earl Wood of Cottage street entertained at bridge. Winners were Benjamin Healy, Mrs. Lucien [illegible], Mrs. Augustus Meade. [illegible] was served the guests.

Fire Destroys Cord Wood

A considerable quantity of cord wood was destroyed yesterday in a forest fire that broke out not distant from the John Chase place at East Killingly and raged for several hours. The wood was owned by Arthur Latham of Attawaugan, who has had chopping work there. Fire-fighters kept the fire within a comparatively small area though it burned fiercely at times. A forest fire-fighting truck was sent for here from Lebanon, but its arrival was so delayed that much of the benefit that might have been derived from its use was lost.

Attempted Break in Store

Three boys, all of them in the very early teens, were before Deputy Judge [illegible] S. Francis in the town court this morning. The trio attempted last night to break into the Henry A. Myers store on Mechanic street. Mr. Myers happened to hear them tampering with a door leading into the store and upon investigating found that he knew one of them. A state officer rounded them up promptly. Each was sentenced to the state reformatory this morning, but execution of the sentences was suspended during good behavior, and the boys placed in Attorney A. G. Bill's care as probation officer.

Miss Marion D. Chollar, Miss May L. [illegible], Mrs. A. H. Armington and Miss [illegible] F. Pilling are the delegates selected from the membership of the Killingly Woman's club to attend the annual meeting of the Connecticut Federation of Women's Clubs to be held in Waterbury Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week. The meeting is held there by invitation of the Waterbury Woman's club, the Bunker Hill Literary club and the Woman's Educational club of Waterbury. This will be the 34th annual convention. Many attractions are included in the programs that have been arranged for the convention, which opens next Tuesday morning.

Committee chairmen of the Killingly Woman's club have been selected, as follows: Civics, Miss M. J. Mendell, Mrs. A. J. Tucke; home-making, Mrs. T. E. Hammett; literature and art, Miss Dorothy Atwood; music, Mrs. William Levin; service, Mrs. Arthur A. Dean; social, Miss Laura Jacobs; hospitality, Miss May L. Young; friendliness, Miss Miriam Boomhower.

OBITUARY

Miss Minnie F. Green

A death today at the Day Kmball hospital in Putnam was that of Miss Minnie F. Green, in her 60th year. Miss Green was a native of Griswold, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Green. Practically all of her life was spent in Jewett City up to two years ago when she came here to make her home with Mr. and Mrs. George Robertsen, after having cared for Mrs. Robertsen's parents during their last illnesses. Miss Green has been in feeble health throughout the past winter season. She entered the hospital last Friday to undergo a surgical operation. She leaves one brother, Arthur A. Green, of Jewett City, and a niece, Mrs. Robertsen, of the West Side.

Nelson I. Woodmansee

A death last night at the Kies place in the Horse Hill district of the town was that of Nelson Irving Woodmansee, 8-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Woodmansee. Prior to her marriage the child's mother was Miss Helen Grover, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grover.

Applications of tarvia, being tried out on borough streets for the first time, have been made during the past 48 hours to Reynolds, Hawkins and L'Homme streets, all of these having grades. Tarvia has penetrating qualities expected to yield fine results. It so happens that splendid weather has favored the road oiling work here since it started this week, in contrast to the almost constant rain that came while the work was being done last year. This afternoon Cottage street was getting attention from the oilers and the men that quickly cover up the appli-

PUTNAM

THREE PUTNAM YOUTHS RESPONSIBLE FOR ROBBERIES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, May .—The mystery of the series of burglaries committed in this city during the past three months was solved late last evening with the arrest of three local youths and by the signed statements of two of them, admitting their guilt. Two of the boys under arrest are Lionel Derosier, 17, 89 Woodstock avenue, and Norman Favereault, who lives with his mother in a tenement on Providence street, over the store of Abraham Weiss, which, it is alleged, he burglarized Monday evening. The third youth is a Putnam lad whose name is not disclosed, since he is a minor and is before the juvenile court. In city court this morning Judge M. H. Geissler, after hearing pleas of guilty, entered on behalf of the boys by Probation Officer Peter A. Gardner, to robbing the mill candy store at Perkins-Strongman plant on Church street, on four different occasions, and for the robbery of the Weiss store, found probable cause and bound the boys over to the superior court under bonds of $1,000 each.

Prosecuting Attorney Eric H. Johnson conferred with State Attorney Howard C. Bradford this morning and made arrangements to have Favereault and Derosier arraigned on bench warrants before Judge Arthur F. Ells of Waterbury in the superior court in this city Friday morning.

The arrest of the trio, who have admitted committing five robberies, was brought about yesterday by Captain of Police A. J. Dubreuil, who, acting on a hunch that Favereault might reveal some valuable information concerning the Weiss break of Monday evening, took him into custody and after much questioning by the captain and County Detective Rowe H. Wheeler of Willimantic secured from the boy a confession in which he implicated Derosier and the juvenile. The latter two were rounded up and soon after admitted their guilt in the matter.

According to the police, Derosier, the elder of the three, is responsible for the engineering of the burglaries. At the Perkins-Strongman mill, where he was employed, his careful observations pointed out the simplicity of obtaining easy money. In company with the other youths, he forced an unlatched window, entered the mill, made his way to the desk where the cash draw reposed and on the first trip stole $1; on the second, $2; $3.15 on the third, and on the last escaped with the sum of $21.37. The loot on each occasion was divided among the three. Derosier executed the plans, while his confederates remained outside the plant in order to give a signal, in case someone happened by at an inopportune time. The loot obtained in the Weiss store robbery was $14, of which $9.62 was recovered by Captain Dubreuil.

The youths denied that they robbed the Arnold Sea Grill, Putnam Steam Laundry and the Rafferty Plumbing Co.

PUTNAM PEOPLE VIEW NAVY AIR SQUADRON

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 8.—Flying in perfect formation, V-shaped, resembling a flock of wild geese on the wing, part of the detail of 139 planes of the aircraft carriers, Lexington, Saratoga and Langley, of the United States navy, passed over this city at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon en route to Hartford and other cities in this state, which is part of their 72-hour tour of New England. The "eyes of the fleet" presented a beautiful spectacle as they winged their way over the city.

The squadron was in battle array. Three distinct V's were formed by the ships as they flew along beneath a ceiling that was gradually lifting in the face of a mid-day sun, doing its best to fade away the mists that beclouded the skies. With motors purring smoothly, the ten navy planes crooned a delightful tune, the strains of which died away as the squadron gracefully glided out of view behind the southwest hills.

The navy air fleet that flew over the city today is perhaps the largest Putnam has ever witnessed in the history of aviation. The planes were flying at an altitude of about 500 feet. Hazy conditions of the sky did not permit as good views of the ships as were expected, although the naval insignia of the "wasps" could be seen.

TONIGHT'S REPUBLICAN CAUCUS

Already Norwich is looking forward to the kind of government it will have for the next two years. In advance of every election day there comes the caucus, the time when candidates are selected for the administration of city affairs in case of election. Thus the caucus is more than a matter of routine, or at least should be.

In the selection of candidates, thought naturally turns to the past, to the kind of city government we have been receiving and its consideration in the light of the type of administration that is needed and desired.

In looking back over the past two years during which Mayor Lee Roy Robbins has been at the helm, there cannot fail to be an appreciation of the efforts that have been put forth in behalf of good government, the things that have been accomplished, the efficiency displayed in the various departments and the good impression which has been made by the administration as a whole.

As the result of such a survey it is inevitable that there should be a desire to have it continued. It is an old saying that one good term deserves another. There is no getting away from the fact that Mayor Robbins has given his attention to city affairs in a manner that makes it apparent that he has had the welfare of the city at heart, that he was concerned in giving the community a sound, business-like administration, and that he has succeeded. He has done what was expected of him and, that being the case, it is natural that there should be a strong desire to have him continue the good work. With his two-year record of accomplishment there was good reason why the republican town committee should endorse him for renomination.

That he will be renominated is certain, but instead of taking that for granted and staying away from the caucus there should be a representative gathering of the republicans, not only to insure that nomination but to give a rousing endorsement to his candidacy. Give the city campaign the start that it deserves.

Furthermore, it is of much importance that there should be nominations for the other offices which will give assurance that the head of the ticket will have the support of able and experienced city officials. Those who have served the city are in close touch with its affairs and its problems. The retention of such services means much in the continuance of the successful handling of city affairs, and it is at the caucus that the republicans have the opportunity to put forth a ticket that will command the confidence of voter and taxpayer.

The time for shaping the course of the city government for the next two years is at tonight's caucus. Have the satisfaction of participating in it and insisting upon the continuance of as good an administration as in the past two years and a better one if possible. A caucus is always something to get interested in even if there is no contest indicated.

Let the candidates and the town committee know you stand back of them in their policies and efforts to give Norwich the best government possible.

ARBOR DAY

Today by proclamation of Governor Trumbull is Arbor and Bird day, the day for giving special thought to trees and birds and for devoting as much attention as possible to setting out trees and shrubs that those in the years to come may be able to share their beauty and shelter, and to the birds that they may receive the encouragement and protection which are necessary for our pleasure and benefit.

In his proclamation the governor sets forth that "As population and standards of living improve, the preservation of our trees and plant life becomes worthwhile, not only from an esthetic standpoint, but also in connection with such basic problems as food and shelter."

In order that our thoughts and activities and educational facilities may be directed to this phase of our out of door life this special day is designated and it is the governor's recommendation that it be especially observed in the schools "by special exercises and instruction that will awaken and stimulate in the minds of our youth the need of preserving the blessings of our plant and bird life. All of us are prone to forget that these blessings, originally ours by the bounty of God, are preserved to us only by the industry of man."

Through the instructions in the schools the youth will receive valuable lessons. They will consciously and unconsciously give more thought to trees and birds because of it, but there is also the opportunity for those outside of schools to further stimulate such thoughts and set inspiring examples by making certain efforts on this day that will create a greater appreciation of the blessings that come to us through the trees and the birds. Make it a day in fact as well as in name that will actually carry out its purposes. There is no probability that there will be aroused any more interest than is actually needed in this direction.

IMPROVING PAROLE

On various occasions much attention has been attracted by the manner in which the parole system of New York state was failing in its purpose. It seemed to be easy for those who ought not to be favored by leniency to get the benefits while no more advantages were secured by those who were deserving.

The result was that this system came in for much criticism. It was found that the board was organized and obligated in such a way that it was giving only partial time to its duties. It would visit several prisons, hear the statements or receive the reports of the officials and take action without actually getting in personal touch with the situation and the justification for their action. Those who received parole were without supervision on the part of the parole board. The arrangement was one which failed to accomplish what was expected. It made undesirable conditions possible and it was the natural outcome that there should be a demand for a change.

That change has been brought about. Instead of a part time board, the recent legislative session in New York state provided for a full time board and made the necessary appropriation to carry on the work. This will overcome the weaknesses of the past, make it possible as well as necessary for the board to study the various cases as they develop and provide it with information upon which it can act with understanding and for the protection of society as well as for the benefit of prisoners who are deserving of considerations.

It took some glaring demonstrations of inefficiency to bring about the change but New York has apparently recognized its shortcomings and taken action which should produce different results.

THE FLYING DEMONSTRATION

No better demonstration of aviation progress could be asked than that which was given yesterday in the flight in group formation of the planes of the Atlantic fleet from New York to Boston and return. It was a flight which took many of the planes over Norwich in both directions and gave to residents in this part of the state a flying display that outdistanced anything that had ever been seen in this locality, and created a lasting impression as to the value of such forces in defense of the country. More than that, it set forth in a convincing manner the growing dependence that is being placed upon this method of transportation.

It was but a few years ago that such a thing existed only in the imagination. In a comparatively short period fanciful dreams have been brought to realization and each year sees marked progress toward greater accomplishments, better flying machines, faster speed and greater safety.

It is inevitable that such a demonstration should direct more attention to aviation, both for pleasure and business. There is nothing like the actual sight to convince the skeptical of the possibilities.

Norwich has long been considering the establishment of a flying field that it may get the benefit of airplane service. Nothing does more to bring that to a successful conclusion than just such a demonstration of what is actually being done in the way of flying.

That this city and this end of the state had the opportunity to witness this unusual flight was due in no small degree to the efforts that were put forth by the chamber of commerce through Secretary Richardson and other officials, and to the influential services that were rendered by Congressman Freeman. In many ways it can be expected that the gratitude of the observers will be manifested. It was the talk of the day.

MORE DEATHS AT COLUMBUS

That two sleeping convicts in the Ohio state penitentiary should have been killed by the accidental discharge of a machine gun is a deplorable affair. That it was accidental seems evident since there was no trouble and the men killed were in their cells creating no disturbance, in fact, were killed while they slept.

It is probably too much to expect that the convicts in that institution who made such a rumpus following the fire will in anyway assume the responsibility for these deaths and yet they must realize, if they stop to consider it in that light, that there would have been no machine guns there, and the national guard would not have been furnishing protection for the public were it not for the demonstrations which they made against the control of the prison by the guards.

When the unruly prisoners made it necessary to surround the institution with an adequate military force to bring about a restoration of order in the prison they forced the taking of unusual steps for seeing that the prisoners were kept under control, within bounds and reason. They were not satisfied until it was assured that the military authorities would take command. That command knew its responsibilities to the public in the prevention of trouble and a prison delivery. Machine guns were part of the protective measures.

Just why the machine gun should have been discharged, even by mistake, will be found out through investigation. There was no justification for it and it was most unfortunate that it was so aimed as to have a deadly effect. It was equally unfortunate that such protective measures were made necessary.

LUCKY DOG

Maxine Thayer turned the key in the door of her apartment stepped into the elevator and scrutinized the reflection that she found in the mirror at the back of the small bronze cage. Beauty, style, success were reflected in the glass. Only one trait did the mirror seem to neglect. And Maxine had taken care to camouflage it so that it registered only in her heart. One period in the day, however, it approached the vortex of acute comprehension, and that was in the morning as she left the apartment house for the office.

Always there were others leaving at the same time, others who turned and waved their hands to people watching their departure from windows above. There was no one to watch or wave to Maxine. Sometimes she had considered looking up at her window and waving anyway, pretending that there was somebody, but that seemed so dishonest.

"Ground floor," announced the operator of the gilded cage.

Maxine swept onward toward her Waterloo behind a pair of masculine shoulders. Her eyes climbed above the shoulders and discovered an interesting face. "He's the sort to wave and to have some one to wave to," she thought, and was surprised when he failed to do so. She lost sight of him in the traffic jam at the corner.

That evening after work Maxine started homeward. At the street intersection opposite her apartment she paused. The traffic light showed green, and the giant four-wheeled beetles swarmed along the asphalt. From the curb Maxine watched the churning motion, then a small object caught her attention, hurdling in and out between the wheels. The next instant a dog's yelp pierced the roar of motors and the small twitching body of a fox terrier was flung upon the parkway.

"Oh, you poor little fellow." Maxine went down on her knees beside the whimpering animal. She stroked him affectionately, wondering what to do. Then it occurred to her that she might take him home. She had never thought of having a pet. She might teach him to watch her from the window was she started to work. She might wave to him. A dog would be better than nobody to wave to. But then, perhaps he had a master or mistress. Still nobody appeared to claim him. Yes, some one was stooping beside her. It was the man who had come out of the apartment just ahead of her that morning.

"The poor little rascal," he said in a voice that matched his substantial looking shoulders and kind face. "He's a good dog and far from dead. Is he yours?" Maxine shook her head.

"No, I just happened to see the car strike him."

"If nobody claims him I'll take him," agreed the stranger. "I live in the apartment across the way and I need just such a pet."

"Oh," Maxine's voice was full of protest. "I live in the apartment, too, and I want him. You see, I haven't anything alive and I always did like dogs."

"I haven't anything alive, either," grinned the stranger, "and I've always liked dogs, too. Still, if you've set your heart on having him, I shan't interfere. Perhaps, though, you will allow me to carry him across the street."

"That will be very kind of you," beamed Maxime.

And presently the stranger deposited the whimpering animal on a silk-covered sofa pillow in one corner of Maxine's davenport. "I've taken quite a notion to this terrier," he explained and suggested somewhat sheepishly. "Maybe you'll let me bring him a chop now and then."

"Of course I shall," purred Maxine sweetly. Later she whispered to the snoozing occupant of the sofa pillow. "You lucky little dog."—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 8—The "gentlewomen" of congress, like those mythical well regulated children described in the old adage, are more frequently seen than heard.

Joining debate in the house requires unusual vocal powers. It's a big and noisy place. Here is no hall or round-table argument as with either lords or commons in England.

A member who likes a conversational tone in addressing the house, which is the almost invariable rule with London legislators, merely conducts chats with the official reporters of debates. Few others hear him, not even the press gallery, which is very important.

Loud Speakers

Once the house experimented with loud speakers — mechanical, not human. It always has plenty of able human broadcasters. But the experiment did not work out satisfactorily.

If the ladies are going to enlarge their political activities and more of them come to the house, sooner or later something will have to be done. Perhaps the British parliamentary system of providing the press gallery with ear phones may solve the difficulty.

Most of the women members fight shy now of actual participation in house debates. There were two notable exceptions during the veterans' bill affair in the present house, Mrs. Norton, the gentlewoman from New Jersey, and Mrs. Rogers, the gentlewoman from Massachusetts. Both are members of the World war veterans' legislation committee.

Real Relief

As a matter of fact, the question of whether the bill was to authorize expenditures estimated all the way up to half a billion or merely some $30,000,000 additional for certain classes of disabled former soldiers turned on Mrs. Rogers' amendment for the smaller figure. When she was beaten on that, she stood staunchly with the little group that voted first to recommit and failing in that, against the bill.

"I want $30,000,000 worth of real relief rather than a gesture that can not become a law yet will raise the hopes of sick and suffering veterans," is the way Mrs. Rogers explained her attitude.

And here are samples of what the two gentlewomen think about what is going to happen if and when the bill reaches the white house, which is looking a long way ahead as it still has to get through the senate and then through a conference committee and be finally voted on by both houses:

Mrs. Norton, democrat:

"If the bill costs $300,000,000 or $500,000,000 it will never compensate them (the ailing veterans) for what they have endured. I cannot believe President Hoover will quibble over a question of that kind."

Mrs. Rogers, republican:

"My great fear has been that the bill would carry such a large amount that it would not be signed by the president. While you have been talking I have been looking over past history. No bill has ever been signed by a president which authorized more than $30,000,000 for compensation of disabled world war veterans."

YOUR HEALTH

Diabetes—Its Treatment And Prevention

By Elliott P. Joslin, M. D., Boston.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

If a diabetic dodges the three plagues—gangrene, coma and the quack—and takes his insulin, when his doctor says he needs it, he stands a good show of living as long as his neighbor of the same age.

A diabetic's tongue or his toes. "Put out your tongue," said the diabetic's doctor of the old school: "Show me your toes," says the doctor of the new. And the reason is plain, because many more diabetics succumb to troubles with the feet and legs than to those of the face and head. Formerly one diabetic in eight above the age of fifty died of gangrene, but today only one in eleven. The number would be far less if every diabetic washed his feet every night, softened his calluses with lanolin, had a chiropodist or someone with bright eyes and clean hands pedicure his cleaned feet instead of hacking his own unbathed toes in the dark with an unsterilized knife or an old pair of scissors. Old diabetics have poor circulation and diminished sensation in their feet, therefore they should protect them day and night. This means care in choosing shoes and in breaking in the new pair, in avoiding injuries, and the substitution of woolen socks at night for hot water bags or electric pads.

Intelligent diabetics need not fear coma. Intelligent diabetics no longer need to fear diabetic coma, which only half a generation ago caused more than half of all diabetic deaths. It is almost as stupid and careless for a diabetic to fall into coma as it is for him to neglect the care of his feet. Diabetics should never omit insulin as long as sugar shows in the urine with the benedict test and this test every diabetic should know. If a diabetic feels sick, he should (1) call his doctor, (2) go to bed, (3) drink a cup of hot liquid every hour, (4) take an enema, (5) keep warm and, (6) secure a nurse or someone to care for him.

Insulin the only diabetic medicine. If you are a diabetic and wonder about the value of any advertised remedy for diabetes other than insulin, consult your doctor or write the Medical Director of your insurance company or of any large insurance company. Insurance companies are organized to make money and their profits come from the long lives of their policy holders. It pays them to tell you the truth.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Our Wandering New Year Day Never Came Home.

Why do we start our new year on January 1?

And why is our newest year numbered 1930?

"Put the first question to the first ten persons you meet," suggests a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographical society, "and you will probably get three or less satisfactory answers.

"Put the second question to the same persons and perhaps half of them will insist that exactly 1929 years have elapsed since the birth of Christ.

"It would be reasonably correct to answer both questions by the statement: 'Because of an error.'

"There is really no reason for starting each year on the day called January 1, except Julius Caesar so decreed it when he reformed the calendar approximately 1976 years ago. But the day of the year that Caesar called 'January 1' is not the day that we so designate. Instead it is the day that we now call 'December 28.'

"Because Caesar assumed the year to be 11 minutes and 14 seconds longer than it really is, the dates 'crawled' through the centuries, away from the positions that Julius Caesar gave them, until by 1582 they were 14 days out of place. 'January 1' had advanced almost to the middle of the 'January' marked out by Caesar. In attempting to correct this discrepancy, Pope Gregory turned the calendar back, not to its position in Caesar's day, but to its position at the time of the Church Council of Nicaea in 325 A. D. when the calendar already had crawled forward four days. Had Pope Gregory made a complete correction, January 1 would have fallen on the day that we now call 'December 28.'

"But after all, the fact that January 1 is still four days away from the position fixed by the fiat of a Roman emperor is of no great significance. The really important matter is that the date shall not drift from its moorings, so to speak, and take up new positions with reference to the seasons; and its stability within a very tiny range was properly assured by the corrections which Pope Gregory made.

"The year is a repetition of the same months and days, and can best be thought of as a circle. A trip around a circle can start at any point; and similarly the year could be thought of as starting on any day. In fact, throughout the past, different peoples have started the year in all four of the seasons. The Jews began their year early in September, the Romans on March 25, the Egyptians on September 21, the Greeks on December 21, and the Persians on August 11.

"There are, however, four logical places to start a new year, based on astronomical considerations. These are: the winter solstice, which now falls on December 22; the summer solstice, June 21; the spring equinox, March 20; and the autumn equinox, September 23. Julius Caesar and his astronomical advisors, when they abitrarily started their reformed year at the point called January 1, missed by only seven days one of the most logical possible yearly starting points: the winter solstice. This is a logical starting point for the people of the northern hemisphere (and their interests have so far dominated world arrangements) because at that time the sun has completed its apparent yearly retreat to the south, and apparently turns back northward, bringing increased light and warmth.

"When Caesar reformed the calendar this significant astronomical event took place on December 25. When growing Christianity, after experimenting with other dates, chose December 25 as the date on which to celebrate the birth of Jesus; it chose the day that had been marked out under the Julian system by the winter solstice. But even then the date, owing to the Julian error, had moved from the solstice; and by the time the Christmas celebration became general, the calendar had crawled forward until the day called Dec. 25 occurred four days later than the solstice. As the centuries passed, Christmas crawled ten additional days away from the solstice. When Pope Gregory applied his correction to the calendar he pushed Dec. 25 ten days back of its farthest advance from the winter solstice.

"The Christian era as a time measuring device, distinguished by the numbering of the years in both directions from the supposed birth year of Christ, was not proposed until about 527 A. D. and did not come into general use in Europe until about 1000 A. D. In the year 527 the evidence as to the time of Christ's birth was not very dependable, and it is now believed by many scholars that the calculations on which the Christian era was based were in error by from three to seven years. We call our new year '1930,' therefore, not because we know it to be the nineteen hundred and thirtieth year since the birth of Christ, but because between 1933 and 1937, A. D.

Little Talks on Thrift

Old Age Independence Made Sure Through Thrift

At the present time when there is apparently some distress due to unemployment, it is well to have brought to our attention the great value of systematic saving and thrift in providing for one's old age. Some interesting figures have been worked out by the American Society for Thrift showing how one may become financially independent at the age of sixty-five. It is to be assumed that most persons are able to maintain an income until they reach this age at which time most of them feel that they would like to retire and take life easy for the rest of their days. It is true, of course, that no rule or formula can be laid down that will apply to all cases but it would seem that a plan which calls for a modest amount of saving during one's productive years and provides an income of $100 a month after the age of sixty-five, would come close to filling the requirements of a vast number of people.

It would require the sum of $30,000 invested at 4 per cent to provide a $1200 annuity. If one should begin saving at twenty-one years of age it would only be necessary for him, according to the American Society for Thrift figures, to lay aside $259.34 a year to achieve this financial independence at sixty-five.

The following figures will show the age at which one may begin saving and the amount necessary to be saved each year until one reaches the age of sixty-five in order to have an income of $1200 a year thereafter:—twenty-five, $315.70; thirty, $407.32; thirty-five, $534.90; forty, $720.36; forty-five, $1,007.16; fifty, $1,498.26; fifty-five, $2,498.72 and sixty, $5,533.82.

These estimates are based on savings being deposited in a bank or invested at 4 per cent compounded annually. It is more than likely that during at least a number of years the average man could increase his savings above the schedule here referred to. It is also possible to get better than 4 per cent. This would mean either that one would not have to wait until sixty-five before retiring or that one would have a larger income than $100 a month after reaching that period in life.

There is indeed no surer way or better way of providing for a comfortable old age than through some such a plan as has been here briefly outlined.—By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift.

He is a lucky man who can stretch the truth without breaking his word.

No More Piles

Quick Relief—No Cutting

External treatments cannot permanently end Piles. Nor does cutting remove the cause.

The cause is internal—bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel. The veins are flabby—the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles an internal medicine should be used to heal and strengthen the affected parts.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, after years of study discovered a real internal Pile remedy. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients, with the marvelous record of success in 960 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID from their own druggist with a rigid money-back guarantee.

Before thinking of the pain and expense of an operation, get a package of HEM-ROID from Lee and Osgood with their guarantee of money-back if it does not end all Pile misery.

AGREEMENT REACHED TO ELIMINATE FOUL DECISIONS

DETROIT, May 8—(AP)—For the first time in fistic history, an agreement has been reached to eliminate the danger of a decision on a foul in a championship bout.

The management of Olympia stadium, where Jackie Fields will defend his welterweight crown next Friday night against Young Jack Thompson, San Francisco Negro, announced tonight that the managers of both fighters had agreed to substitute a five minute rest period for a decision in case of a foul.

Tomorrow the Michigan Boxing commission will meet here to consider such a ruling. A favorable decision is anticipated since James "Bingo" Brown, chairman, has expressed himself as favorably impressed with the suggestion, which came from Gig Rooney, Fields' manager.

Ray Alvis, Thompson's manager, said he would join in Rooney's request for such a ruling.

The five minute rest period for a fouled fighter, under the ruling sought, would be granted by the refereee. Elmer "Slim" McClelland, only if the combatant and his seconds feel it is needed to recuperate from effects of the foul blow.

Fields won his championship from Joe Dundee by the foul route here last year.

A mistrial was declared in New London Thursday morning by Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court in the case of Andrew Link of Willimantic whose trial on a charge of manslaughter was to have been continued in court Thursday. Trial in the case started Wednesday.

Juror Brady was unable to report for jury duty Thursday morning and court was held up pending the report of a physician to the effect that the ill juryman would not be able to continue.

Link was on trial for manslaughter because of the death of John E. Shea of Willimantic who was in Link's automobile when it was in collision on Dec. 6, 1929 on a Colchester road with a car driven by Henry Reis La Bara of Hartford.

Link is making the defense that he was not driving his automobile at the time of the accident but that Shea was driving it.

LACOMBE IS HELD ON MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

As a result of the motorcycle-truck accident Wednesday, a short distance south of Thamesville, in which Robert Cleaves of No. 74 North Main street was instantly killed, Leo Lacombe, 21, of No. 111 Orchard street, was held Thursday on a technical charge of manslaughter. Lacombe was held on orders of Coroner Edward G. McKay, pending his finding in the case. Bonds were set at $750 when the case was called in the city court Thursday morning and continued until May 22nd.

Cleaves was driving a motorcycle, with Arnald McFarland of No. 16 Penobscot street riding on the rear seat of the machine, in a northerly direction on the Norwich-New London highway, and seeing a light delivery truck ahead of his, turning into Bushnell place, tried to stop his machine. The cycle went over on its side and Cleaves and the cycle slid along the highway and crashed into the side of the truck, near the rear wheel, which was smashed.

Lacombe, driving a motorcyle immediately behind Cleaves, jumped from his machine which overturned and also slid along the highway. There is a question now as to whether Cleaves was killed when he slid into the truck, or whether Lacombe's motorcyle, sliding along the highway, struck the unfortunate man, causing his death, which was instantaneous. Both machines and Cleaves' body lay close together in the middle of the highway some feet north of the truck. Cleaves' head was badly crushed and a number of bones broken in the crash. The truck sustained a smashed wheel and a dented running board. Both motorcycles were moving at an excessive rate of speed, it is said.

McFarland was thought at first to have sustained a broken back but examination at the W. W. Backus hospital later showed that he was not severely injured. He was able to leave the hospital Thursday. Lacombe escaped with a slight cut.

There will be seven 26-foot poles in the cented lines, with 11 6 foot poles on either side following the lines of the hall, which enclose the quadrangle, and in which additional eyebolts will be set for securing the ropes.

The weight of the canvas is two tons. To facilitate handling, therefore, it was necessary to make it in three sections, which will be double lapped and faced together.

"Pathways to the Light" will be a pageant telling the history of the church. Over two hundred church members, assisted by some children and other townspeople, will take part in the spectacle. A replica of the Mary and John, on which the original members crossed the ocean, has been obtained from New London and will add a realistic touch to several episodes. The level flood plain of the Farmington river makes the church grounds an ideal place for a pageant as 1,000 seats will be built on the sloping bank adjoining the church. There will be extensive parking space available as it is expected many persons whose ancestors came from Windsor will attend at least part of the three-day celebration.

The First Church of Windsor was organized in Plymouth, England, March 20, 1630 and, except for the Southwark church in London, is the oldest Congregational church in the world. The majority of the church members were young men, among them being Captain John Mason, noted for his later successful campaigns against the Pequots. In 1794 the present meeting house was built and today it is widely known for its remarkable preservation and its fine simplicity of design. From this church grew numerous other Congregational churches in central Connecticut as formerly much of this territory was included in the original town of Windsor.

In the 136 years since the present church was erected there have been only fifteen pastors, some served for as many as 42 years. The present pastor, Roscoe C. Nelson, who has served it for 38 years, is well known throughout southern New England.

FRENCH CAR MAKERS SEEK A NEW UNITY

PARIS—(AP)—American cars aren't exactly welcomed in France by French car makers. Their real concern, however, is not competition here, but in other countries.

France formerly exported more than half her cars. Last year exports were only two-fifths, and this year the exports are running only one-tenth, says Charles Faroux, a recognized automobile authority.

Since American cars sell well here at double their American factory prices, they have an advantage in many places, though not in France and her colonies.

For years some industrial leaders have urged standardization, cooperation by makers and removal of the 12 per cent de luxe tax as measures essential to the French automobile industry's existence.

Gradually there have come changes. Three French manufacturers, Citroen, Renault and Peugeot, are credited with three-fourths of the output. Four others make up a seventh. Sixty other manufacturers therefore are relatively unimportant in volume of output, although some are valuable in maintaining the prestige of the French car.

With this as a start, it is argued that French makers have only to go further in concentrating factories, cutting overhead and in standardizing materials and methods.

Costs, it is admitted by automobile engineers, could be reduced greatly by general adoption of a few sizes of bolts and threads, formulas of steel and the concentration of accessory and parts manufacture in a few factories.

THE WORLD AT FIFTEEN

"It certainly is the limit," Ernestine began, searching for a chocolate with a hard center in the box just passed to her, "how so many perfectly gorgeous persons are utterly ruined by some crazy idea! Why, even my father has a little of the same kind of an idea I'm speaking about. All parents have, in fact. Eternally they are pointing out to us the wonders of a bank account. And I can't see that money is of the slightest use except to buy stuff with—theatre and railway tickets and new clothes and hats and chocolates and silk things—

"Why, when I stop to consider all the things I'd like to buy it makes me positively giddy. Especially note paper with a monogram done in three colors, which looks utterly divine and in which my mother doesn't take the slightest interest when I speak about it or try to show her some in a stationer's window.

"Do you see, that's exactly what I mean—when you aren't young you don't care about the real things. It makes me feel all thrilly just to imagine sitting before a French enameled desk set and writing notes on heavy paper with a spiffy monogram in silver and black and blue. Why, would you believe it, my mother declares it makes no difference to her whether she has a monogram or not just so there's a return address on the envelope flaps? I think it is positively pitiful to be so blind to—to—well, to beauty and things like that.

"That's the trouble with Fat Graham. All the girls think he is just about impossible. He does have the most peculiar view—about money, for instance. He showed us a big sheet of paper the other day all covered with figures, which prove that if he cut out two ice cream sodas a day and put the money in the savings bank at compound interest he would be the richest man in America or something when he was 50. Imagine! As though it made the slightest difference what you are when you're that old.

"Why, all you can do when you're 50 is to sit and think of the past, and if you haven't had a past I'd say you were out of luck. All of us girls have decided that the most foolish thing you can do is to go without what you want when you're real young and things are important so that you can have them when you're tottering around on crutches and your hair and teeth are dropping out. There doesn't seem to be any sense to that, does there?

"I am fully resolved when I am married never to nag my husband about saving money. I shall spend all he makes as fast as I get my hands on it, and if I want a fur coat or real pearls I certainly shall get them. The girls all decided the other day when we were talking this over that a wife who wore lovely clothes and didn't worry about the future, as all our mothers seemed to be doing, stood lots more chance of hanging on to her husband than one of the economical kind, who always make folks feel so guilty and uncomfortable.

"To be sure, we couldn't think of any husbands and fathers we knew who didn't come right home to dinner every night and kick like everything at the mere notion of going out anywhere and who didn't seem perfectly contented—but nevertheless we know all about how many divorces there are. And I am positive most of them might be avoided if only the wives would stop talking about bank accounts and savings books and cutting corners and going without that new rug so the interest can be paid and all that sort of tiresome stuff.

"H'm?" Ernestine wanted to know at a question interjected into her communion with her own ideas. "Where's the money coming from when you're old if you don't save it?" Her eyebrows arched. "I declare, you sound exactly like a parent when you talk that way! Why, the world's just running over with money and it seems to me all a man should have to do when he needs some more is just sort of go out and get some!

"I pointed that out to my father the other day when I wanted a $2 advance on my allowance and he certainly acted queerly — he just threw up his hands and groaned as though about to die and opened up his newspaper right in my face and obliterated me.

"You can't argue with men when they act like that so no matter how foolish they are—so I borrowed a dollar from my mother, which she says I have got to pay back. Women are terribly particular about those little things I find. I can't afford to do that when there are so many things I want to buy—so I guess in spite of his queer ideas I'll just have to speak to father again!"—Exchange.

Navy Planes Flew Over City

Nearly a hundred of Uncle Sam's navy planes, in three squadrons, flew over Norwich Thursday morning between 10:45 and 11:15 o'clock. The planes were on a flight over New England from New York, having left their base at Norfolk, Va., Wednesday. They hopped off from Valley Stream, N. Y., some of the planes flying to Boston, others to Hartford, Providence and Springfield.

About 5 o'clock in the afternoon a number of the planes flew over the city on the way back to Valley Stream. Hundreds of men, women and children watched the aerial demonstration. Children were allowed to come out of school to see the planes.

GRINDS TEETH? MAYBE IT'S WORMS

If your child grinds teeth—beware of worms. They are much more common than most mothers think.

Look also for the following symptoms: picking the nose, crossness, crying in sleep, offensive breath, loss of appetite or weight, nausea or general restlessness. Any one of these signs may be your warning that worms are present.

Wise mothers take no chances with these dangerous and disgusting childhood pests. Even if worms are only suspected they give the child

THREE NATIONAL CHAMPIONS FROM MELROSE CLUB TO RUN HERE MAY 30

James McDade, 10 mile champion of the United States, together with two other national champions, all members of the Millrose A. A. of New York city, will run here on Memorial day, according to information given out last night by officials of the Duwell A. A., sponsors of the National A. A. U. 10 mile championship run, which is to be staged at the fairgrounds. In addition to McDade, who will defend his title, the Millrose team includes Harvey Michaelson and Fred Ward, 15 and 20 mile champions, respectively. Michaelson was a member of the American Olympic team in 1924, and Ward, who only recently returned to New York from California, won the 20 mile title at Texas early in the year.

Other members of the Millrose team are George Kukkonen of the 1928 Finnish Olympic team, Harvey Frick, Canadian marathon champion, in 1925, Arthur Gavrin, Metropolitan champ in [illegible] Max Lamp, former German 10,000 [illegible] titleholder, Arthur Prestia and several others. The entry blanks of the Millrose runners have not been received as yet but Coach Marsh of [illegible] has written that his men will [illegible] appear. This team alone is enough to put over the coming race [illegible] is only one of the many that are expected to enter.

McDade will have trouble defending [illegible] against his own teammates, [illegible] the remainder of the field. [illegible] and Ward are at the present [illegible] considered two of the outstanding distance men of the world [illegible] Gavrin always stands out as a [illegible] threat. The latter, it will be remembered, was running in the lead [illegible] Duwell run last year until he [was sud]denly forced to drop back because of cramps. Michaelson finished [illegible] year ago, Lamp third and [illegible] fifth, close on the heels of Gav[illegible]. The present champ has never appeared here, but according to all reports he knows his business. He is confident that he will retain his title, regardless of how large or selective the field may be.

A number of official entries have been received during the past week but the rush is not expected to start until after the twelfth. The entry list closes on the 20th but many of the athletes usually wait until the last minute to register. There have been nearly 250 requests for entry blanks and it is expected that at least 100 will officially register.

Interest locally continues to mount daily and it is expected that by the time Memorial day approaches not only Norwich but practically all of the surrounding cities will be all wrapped up in the affair. It is expected that next week the various committees will get together and announce the program, to be presented in connection with the national title run. It is understood that a two and a half hour program will be presented and other features, in addition to the big race, will be provided. The program is expected to draw the largest crowd that Norwich has ever seen. During the past week, representatives of the citizens' committee, which is assisting in financing of the affair, have been soliciting advertisements for a program, through which funds to help defray expenses are to be raised. The co-operation about town has been splendid and it is almost certain at this time that enough money will be raised to defray all expenses. The probable bill of expense, it is understood, will run close to $1,500.

BOXMEN EASILY BEATEN BY ROBERT GAIR NINE

Bullet Buck Shahan of the Robert Gair team pitched a three hit game Thursday night in the Montville Industrial league at the Gair diamond in Uncasville and his team defeated the Robertson Paper Box Co. easily, by a score of 10 to 1. Hanson and McGinnis led the Gair hitters, each with two safeties. Hanson made a three-bagger and a single and McGinnis a double and single. Welchel also played a fine game, by collecting a two-bagger, stealing three bases and scoring three runs. Pachedo and McKinney [illegible] Paper Box men with two hits [illegible]. Walter Tiskev of the Boxmen played a nice game at second.

U. S. TO BE REPRESENTED AT INTERNATIONAL CONFAB

NEW YORK, May 8.—(AP)—The United States will be represented by delegates at the convention of international sports federations opening in Berlin May 18.

Among the American delegates are Avery Brundage, president of the Amateur Athletic union. The others will be Daniel J. Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the A. A. U.; Murray Hulbert and Gustavus V. Kirby of New York, and Joseph B. MacCabe of Boston. The International Olympic congress also will be held in Berlin, starting May 25, and the Americans will attend its sessions.

Of particular interest to this country will be the meeting of the International Amateur Athletic federation, governing body of track and field athletics.

The use of starting blocks will come up for discussion as will a suggestion from Germany that no performances shall be considered as records where the wind velocity was more than two miles an hour. If this latter suggestion is adopted several American record performances will not gain international recognition.

The delegates will sail from New York Saturday morning.

CUBS LAUNCH HOME RUN ATTACK TO BEAT ROBINS

CHICAGO, May 8—(AP)—A home run attack in the late innings today gave the Cubs their seventh straight victory and their third over the Brooklyn Robins by a 7 to 4 count.

Kiki Cuyler hit the most important homer, driving the ball into the center field bleachers in the eighth inning with two on base to give the Cubs the lead for the first time. Hack Wilson followed, putting the ball into the same section. Lester Bell hit a home in the seventh.

For the first seven innings the game was a close battle between Ray Phelps, Brooklyn rookie pitcher, and Bob Osborn. Lynn Nelson finished the game for the Cubs after Osborn gave way to a pinch hitter and got credit for the victory. Score:

RIXEY BESTS CUNNINGHAM IN PITCHERS' BATTLE

CINCINNATI, May 8—(AP)—Rixey had an edge over Cunningham in a pitchers battle today and the Reds took a light hitting 2 to 1 game from the Braves. Boston scored its lone run on a single by Berger, Neun's sacrifice and Maguire's single. The Reds, blanked for seven innings, scored two runs in the eighth on a walk to Stripp, single by Ford, and two sacrifice flies by Heilmann and Critz. The Reds won three out of four from Boston.

PIRATES DROP OVERTIME GAME TO GIANTS, 13 TO 10

PITTSBURGH, May 8.—(AP)—The New York Giants again outslugged the Pirates to win the final game of their series today, 13 to 10 in ten innings, and to take three of the four games.

The Pirates made a great rally to tie the score with two runs in the ninth but Grantham's wild heave in the tenth when he was trying for a double play gave the Giants one run and left two men on bases where Leach's triple brought them home. Freddy Lindstrom led the hitters with a home run, a triple, a double and two singles in six times at bat. Jackson and Grantham also hit homers.

FIELDS-THOMPSON FIGHT TONIGHT

DETROIT, May 8.—(AP)—Jackie Fields was three-quarters of a pound [illegible] weight as he finished training to [illegible] his welterweight title tomorrow night against Young Jack Thompson [illegible] San Francisco.

[illegible] handlers said, however, the champion will have little trouble in taking off the excess weight before 2 [illegible] tomorrow when he will step on the official scales. The time for the weigh-in was advanced an hour as final arrangements were made. Thompson weighed 144 today, three pounds under the maximum.

Madison Square Garden came to Detroit today in the persons of Frank M. J. Bruen and Thomas McArdle, who were accompanied by Pop Foster, manager of Jimmy McLarnin. The trio will be interested spectators, with negotiations for a bout between Jimmy and the winner in their minds.

Ray Alvis, Thompson's manager, this afternoon expressed satisfaction over the announcement of Referee Elmer (Slim) McClelland that he will not call the fight tomorrow night a draw. McClelland said that if the affair goes the full 15 rounds, he will announce a winner, no matter how close the match is. A draw would mean that Fields would retain his title. The no-draw announcement thus gives Thompson a slight mathematical advantage.

Olympia stadium today employed 248 persons to care for the big crowd expected at the fight. The management predicted that the "gate" will exceed $77,000 in the Tom Heeney-Johnny Risko bout in 1927, which holds the local record. Fields will receive $37,500 and Thompson $10,000.

FOXX CLOUTS OUT HOMER IN A'S WIN OVER BROWNS

PHILADELPHIA, May 8—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics captured the series with the St. Louis Browns three games to one by winning the final today, 7-3.

Three home runs sprinkled the conflict, two off Dick Coffman who went the distance for the Browns, and one by Heinie Manush off Bill Shores. Manush's drive, which came with one on in the third inning, ended the Brown's outfielder's batting slump of 18 times at bat without a hit.

Jimmy Foxx hit his fifth home run of the season with two on in the fourth and sent the Athletics ahead for the balance of the game.

RUSSELL KEEPS BINGLES SCATTERED AS BOSTON WINS

BOSTON, May 8—(AP)—Jack Russell held the Chicago White Sox to six hits today and the Red Sox took their second straight game from the westerners, 3 to 1. Only in the sixth inning did the visitors get more than one hit in an inning and their two safeties in this frame yielded the one run.

Tom Oliver hit safely in his 17th consecutive game and with Berry led the Boston attack. Oliver also contributed two stellar catches. Cedric Durst, formerly of the Yankees, reported to Boston today and started off with two safe hits. The score:

WEST STARS AT BAT AS SENATORS TRIM DETROIT

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP)—Sad Sam Jones faced Detroit for nine innings today at the end of which the Senators emerged victorious, 8 to 5, in the final game of their series here with the Tigers.

Sam West, Washington centerfielder, made Jones' task simpler by contributing two three-baggers and a double in five trips to the plate. Three Detroit pitchers looked alike to Washington's hitters, who unloosed their big bats for 14 safeties. Alexander, Tiger cleanup man, hit a homer.

N. F. A. TRACK MEN TRAINING FOR MEET WITH WESTERLY

The Academy's track team, with a record of one win in three dual meets this year, is now getting ready for its next start, against Westerly high at the campus next Wednesday. The fact that this school broke the winning streak of the baseball team is making the boys work harder and harder in order to gain some revenge for Wildcatdom.

Coach Murphy is giving his relay team much work in hopes of bringing them back to the standard shown in the indoor campaign. The two meets have been lost by failure of the Red and Whitesters to cop this event.

JONES WITH PRINCE OF WALES AS PARTNER BARELY ESCAPES DEFEAT

SUNNINGDALE, England, May 8.—(AP)—With the Prince of Wales as a partner in a Scotch foursome against Harrison R. Johnston and Sir Victor Sassoon, Bobby Jones today barely escaped defeat in his first golf encounter for 1930 in Great Britain. The prince and the open champion of the United States were saved at the last hole when his royal highness made a sensational shot from a bunker to place the ball on the green.

Sir Victor also had to play from a trap at the 18th but his ball struck the face of the hazard and failed to reach the green.

The two deciding shots were played after the two visiting champions had sent brassies off the line with the outcome of the match depending on the play at the same hole.

With his side one up and one to play, Harrison Johnston, amateur champion of the United States, sent the ball squarely into a bunker guarding the green.

Jones then took a brassie and slammed the ball into a bunker on the other side of the green.

It was then up to the prince and Sir Victor to determine the fate of the match. The prince cleared the bunker neatly and placed the ball on the green as accurately as Bobby himself could have done.

The three finishing holes were played by the prince and Jones 3-3-5, giving an idea of the golf produced by the Jones-Wales hook-up during the round which was played over the new Sunningdale lay-out, not the one where Bobby made his record 66-68 in 1927.

WINDHAM LEADING TEAMS IN SCHOLASTIC LEAGUE

Windham high of Willimantic is right now the undisputed leader in the eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island league chase. Coach Tom Callaghan's boys have two victories in as many starts to their credit and head the circuit with N. F. A., the champs, and Chapman Tech in second place, with two wins and one loss.

Windham bolstered its lead Thursday at Willimantic by defeating Stonington, 8 to 6, and thereby made Saturday's game with N. F. A. at Recreation park in that city one of the most important of the season. The Academy, completely upset by Westerly, is now faced with the task of fighting back to the top and can make it by tipping over Windham in this game. Bulkeley and Chapman Tech will also play in a league game Saturday, in the first of their inter-city tilts at New London.

The standing:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Windham	2	0	1.000
N. F. A.	2	1	.667
Chapman Tech	2	1	.667
Bulkeley	1	2	.333
Westerly	1	2	.333
Stonington	1	3	.250

At present this shapes up as one of the hottest races in the history of the circuit.

CARDINALS SCORE EARLY TO BEAT PHILLIES, 6 TO 5

ST. LOUIS, May 8.—(AP)—"Wild Bill" Hallahan won his third game of the season today, the Cardinals defeating the Phillies, 6 to 5. Hallahan fanned eight batters. He has lost one game.

The Cardinals scored all their runs in the first two innings, Sweetland and Collins pitching air-tight ball thereafter.

Chuck Klein, Philadelphia outfielder, hit his second home run in two days, the blow coming in the first inning with Thompson on base.

Tigers Win Again

At the Boswell avenue grounds Thursday afternoon the third grade team of St. Mary's school lost to the Roath street Tigers by the one-sided score of 16 to 5. The heavy hitting for the Tigers was done by Burke, p, and Barry, 1b, who contributed a three bagger apiece and Stone, c, who banged out a homer. The remainder of the lineup included Mallon 2b, Cubansky ss, and Dunlon 3b. The umpires were Art Cotter and William Dunlon.

ON THE SIDELINES

ONE of the outstanding surprises of the early games in the American league has been the sprinting of the Washington Senators.

Walter Johnson's team moved away from the barrier in fast style and soon stepped into the lead of the league.

At Biloxi the Senators seemed to be woefully weak in offense and "Big Barney," the popular manager, was emphatic as he said, "we need punch."

Of course Goose Goslin, the team's leading slugger, was not in Mississippi and did not join the team until it had moved on to Chattanooga. Myer, Cronin, Judge and Rice were hitting well in the exhibition games with minor league outfits, but not so hard as they did later when the safeties counted in the official averages.

Washington found itself unable to cope with the Philadelphia Athletics last season and won only four games from Connie Mack's team in the year's play.

This year the Senators won four from the A's in the first five played, coming back with a great drive after being shut out in their first start. Washington also ousted the Athletics from first place which must have been sweet revenge after the embarrassment of 1929.

SEVERAL members of the Chicago Cubs and White Sox will be able to go into the jewelry business before the 1930 baseball season closes.

A watch company is giving a watch to every player hitting a home run in either big league park in Chicago and as there are a number of players on the two teams who can hit the ball high and far away, the watch distribution will be on a wholesale scale before many weeks pass.

Each manager will be given a watch when his team reaches Chicago and the presentation to Gabby Street of the Cardinals moved the former battery mate of Walter Johnson to remark that in his 30 years in baseball the timepiece was the first present he had received.

OPPOSING managers were not very considerate of the Phillies' lefthanded batsmen as the 1930 season opened. The very first day out they ran into a lefthanded pitcher and although they nosed out Watson Clark 1 to 0 at Brooklyn they were not so fortunate against the Giants' three southpaws, Hubbell, Walker and Pruett. With a group of hard hitters batting from the left side of the plate, the Phillies saw just one lefthanded pitcher after another until finally at Boston, they found a righthander opposing them, but gained little consolation for Burleigh Grimes, with his spitballs, is no improvement over a lefthander without them.

Before the start, the Phillies were tagged a very dangerous team "if it gets the pitching." The pitchers have not started so well as Burt Shotton hoped and expected.

AMERICAN women golfers made a good showing against the British women stars in the informal match at Sunningdale and their playing was remarkable when it is considered that they reached England only two days before the competition and had only part of one day for practice.

The score of eight matches to six with one halved was close and the playing was interesting throughout. The public interest was attested by a crowd of near championship proportions.

Probably in another year or two the women will have full official sanction of the United States Golf association and the Royal and Ancient so that they may have an international competition all their own, possibly on the order of the Walker Cup biennial play.

Miss Glenna Collett was surprised at the enthusiastic response to her invitation to her fellow women players to join her in the visit to England and the informal matches as a preliminary to the British championship. She thought possibly a team of eight might be assembled and until the letters of acceptance began to arrive, she never thought at any time that she could muster more than ten.

Finally nearly two score expressed a willingness to make the voyage and 15 actually played in the foursomes and singles at Sunningdale.

AN ODD feature of the singles play was that the lower half of the American lineup fared better than the upper half. Of the first five, Misses Glenna Collett, Maureen Orcutt, Virginia Van Wie, Helen Hicks and Edith Quier, only one, Miss Orcutt, won. The next five returned three victories. Mrs. O. S. Hill, Mrs. Stewart Hanley and Miss Louise Fordyce won, while Miss Bernice Wall and Mrs. Leo Federman were defeated. Mrs. Hanley and Miss Fordyce played in the ninth and tenth positions, but gave good performances, Miss Fordyce defeating Miss Doris Chambers, a former British champion.

Miss Orcutt was the only American girl to figure in two winning matches. She won in the morning with Mrs. M. A. Martell as her partner and defeated Mrs. J. B. Watson, the Scottish champion, in the singles.

AS THE winter's medal play events are behind them and golfers, professionals and amateur, turn to match play, there is much discussion of the stymie.

Gene Sarazen is outspoken against it.

"I don't think it has any place in golf," said the former Open and P. G. A. champion. "And I think it should be thrown out. The stymie gives a reward for a bad shot. A stymie nine times out of ten results from a bad putt."

Leo Diegel, who saw Johnny Farrell twice knock his ball in the cup at the last P. G. A. final, said nothing but smiled at the vigor with which Farrell spoke. Farrell did not commit himself and Bobby Jones declared that there is something to be said on both sides.

BOBBY JONES believes that nothing can be taken for granted in golf and the same observation holds true for golf weather.

"In 1921 when I was preparing for my first trip abroad," said the champion, "I had an idea that there was nothing but rain and wind in England and Scotland, and I prepared accordingly.

"If a rain came or the wind blew I rushed out to East Lake and played right through the storm. If the sun was out and a pretty day invited I did not play at all. I was convinced that I was all set for British weather conditions.

"And then we went over and found that there had been no rain for weeks, and the whole country was parched with one of the longest droughts on record. We saw no rain while we were there and there was very little wind.

"Since then I have taken the weather as I found it and not worried about preparation for a particular condition."

The champion who is now seeking new golf worlds to conquer votes against the man who said, "I don't mind the weather if the wind don't blow." The Atlantan gets along very well with a moderate wind on the golf course.

"If there is a strong cross wind," he said, "the easiest way to combat it is to play your ball over and let the wind blow it back into the fairway. Of course there are chances of 'cheating 'the wind but they are very dangerous and apt to get one into a lot of trouble. I have found that it is better to make the wind help you rather than try to play against it.

"Some golfers, and good ones at that, get panicky when the wind begins to blow and decide at the outset that it will cause them a lot of trouble. If they feel that way about it, it surely will."

THE open champion carried two full sets of iron clubs to England but when he sailed he had not made up his mind to use the new ones. The new irons were designed to meet the change in playing conditions brought about by the new ball, which is larger and lighter, but when Bobby tried them out with the old ball at his home course—East Lake—they worked so well he returned a score of 65, six under par.

A possible switch in iron clubs will have no effect on the standing of "Calamity Jane," the champion's famous putter.

"I have two full sets of iron clubs," he said, "but I have only one putter."

Leo Diegel on the other hand carried nearly a dozen putters and will try most of them in an effort to strike a happy combination for use on widely scattered British greens. Leo thinks a putter should have a slight loft for British greens.

N. F. A. MEETS WINDHAM AT WILLIMANTIC SATURDAY

Thoroughly determined to get back in their regular stride before any more games are lost, the Academy was back hard at work Thursday, a fighting bunch of Wildcats.

The Red and Whitesters think they have gotten all the bad baseball, for the season, out of their systems in that terrible ninth inning against Westerly, Wednesday, when they blew a six-run lead and lost 13 to 11, and they are now pointing for Windham at Willimantic, Saturday, resolved to forget the past.

Butsy Weisgraber will get the call to pitch the team back onto the victory side while the rest of the lineup will probably be about the same as has been seen all season.

Interest in the team, strange enough, has been heightened with the defeat. Everyone is watching the boys now to see whether they can come back and present indications are that fully 1,000 will accompany the squad to the Thread City tomorrow. The fans should be willing to forget that one slip and give the boys a chance to get back into the fight.

Weisgraber was officially charged with the loss of the Westerly game because he placed the winning run (the 12th) on base with a pass to Stenhouse. On earned runs Wednesday the Academy would have won, 7 to 2. Only two of the twelve Westerly tallies were free of errors, one off Green and one off Weisgraber. It's over now, though and another game is coming tomorrow.

RUSS FISHER TO HURL FOR J. B. MARTIN SUNDAY

As has been the custom in past years the J. B. Martin nine tackles the Universal Winding of Providence in its opening game at the J. B. grounds at Taftville Sunday afternoon. The two teams are considered to be about evenly matched, with the locals having a slight edge to win the game as they are playing on their own grounds. According to the records the nines have always engaged in a good game, the outcome being in doubt until the final inning.

The Velvetmen have been practicing faithfully for the past few days in preparation for this encounter and from reports the team is running very smoothly. With four of the veterans in the lineup that performed so well during the 1929 season the boys are confident to take over the Rhode Islanders. These include Krauss, Eccleston, Murphy and Liberty. Fisher is slated to hurl Sunday.

The grounds have been put in excellent shape for the opening game.

WANER'S AVERAGE DROPPED 20 POINTS, STILL AHEAD

(By The Associated Press).

Tom Oliver and Al Simmons made the only gains in the batting averages of the Big Six yesterday, each of them getting two hits in four times at bat. Oliver's mark went to .407, a five-point increase, while Simmons lifted his seven points to .387. Paul Waner again took the lead in the Big Six and the National league although he got but one hit in five attempts and his average dropped 20 points to .473. Frank O'Doul, Wednesday's leader, went hitless in four times at bat and fell from .500 to .468. Babe Ruth was kept out of official action by rain while Rogers Hornsby failed as a pinch hitter and went down to .227.

KOZIOL FIGHTS TONIGHT AT PROVIDENCE ARENA

Al Koziol, Norwich mauler, returns to the ring tonight at Providence after an enforced absence of about a month due to an injury received to an ear in a previous fight there. His opponent will be Tony Ruggerio of Providence, who has a good record in the squared ring. Ruggerio makes his first professional appearance tonight.

In the amateur ranks he met Koziol several times, and in nearly every case was compelled to take a beating, but has improved considerably since then. He recently won the Golden Glove championship at Providence.

Morgan today but the attempt to launch her was unsuccessful because she stuck on the ways. After two hours of effort, the launching was put over until Saturday morning. NEW YORK, May 8.—(AP)—Affidavits filed in supreme court today alleged that William (Billy) Gibson, former manager of Gene Tunney and Benny Leonard and one of the best known fight promoters in the country, has become metally incompetent and unable to manage his affairs.

Upon petition of his brother, John Gibson, of the Bronx, Justice Edward J. Gavegan appointed William F. Schneider commissioner to hear testimony with a sheriff's jury as to Gibson's mental condition.

Witnesses said Gibson is now a patient at the Neurological hospital, where he went last March 14.

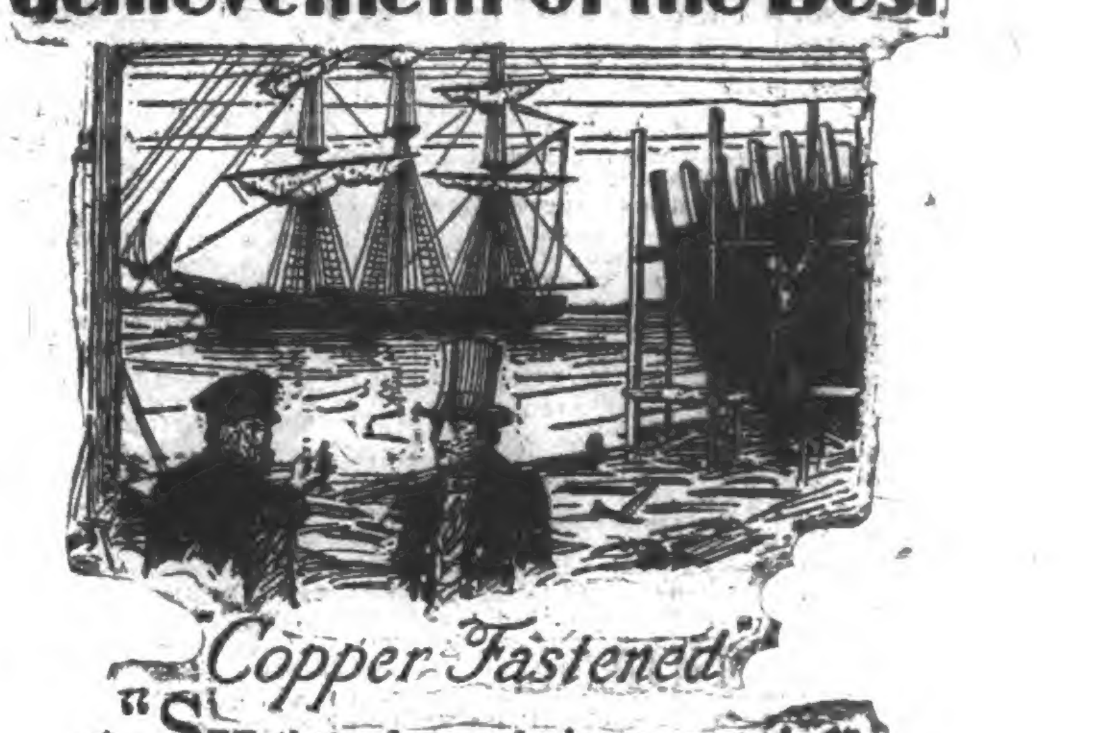
Pride—still impels the achievement of the Best



"SEE that schooner laying over yonder?" said an old shipbuilder beaming with pride. "Well, sir, the man I built her for wanted to be satisfied to have her fastened with iron. 'No, sir,' said I. 'If I build her she's going to be doweled and copper fastened.' 'What's it to you? It's my vessel,' said he. 'What's it to me? It's my self-respect; it's my pride in my trade,' said I. 'It's my reputation for building only the best that can be built.'"

Conscientious pride in the achievement of the best still lives. It is the spirit upon which in 1874 at Manchester, New Hampshire, Roger G. Sullivan laid the foundation of 7-20-4—now the largest strictly hand-made cigar industry in the World. It is the same spirit that today—after fifty-six years of public confidence—refuses to lower its standard of workmanship and tobaccos at the sacrifice of the finest cigar Quality.

Stafford Springs

HARWOOD MEMORIAL CHAPEL READY FOR INSPECTION

It is planned to have the new mortuary chapel in the Stafford Springs cemetery open for public inspection Memorial day. This chapel was made possible through the thoughtfulness of Miss Grace E. Harwood who by the terms of her will left $40,000 for building the chapel as a memorial to her parents, Charles F. and Ella P. Harwood. Mr. Harwood was for many years treasurer of the cemetery association, also was treasurer of Stafford Springs Savings bank. The chapel is 58 feet long and 27 feet wide and is located on a knoll in the northwest corner of the cemetery, near the state road. The foundation and floor are of reinforced concrete. The exterior walls are of seam-faced granite with Indiana limestone trimming. The steps are granite and the roof is of slate with lead gutters and leaders. The windows are of leaded amber glass set in bronze sash. The interior walls are of red pressed brick and the door and window frames are of limestone. The vestibule is 16 feet long and 7 feet wide with a reception room on the left of the entrance. At the right is a hall, with stairs leading to the basement. The chapel proper is entered from the vestibule through double doors and is 33 by 21 with a raised chancel at the north end. The floor and ceiling is finished in gray tile. The pews and pulpit furnishings are of oak to harmonize with the ceiling and trusses, which are of fir. The crypts are built of steel and slate. There are 16 separate compartments each with a heavy slate door. At the northeast corner of the building there is a flight of stairs which gives access to the crypts. In the basement are located the water tank and electric pump, water being pumped from a nearby brook. Heat is supplied by a hot air heater which will burn either coal or wood. A culvert has been built over the brook which separates the chapel site from the remainder of the cemetery. A bronze memorial tablet has been placed at the left of the entrance on the outer wall bearing the words "Harwood Memorial." The lighting fixtures are electric candles in bronze wall brackets. The transition—Gothic type of architecture has been followed throughout; one of the characteristics of this type is the use of unequal arch stones. The chapel will seat about 70. Miss Harwood who left the bequest for this chapel resided with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Harwood on Highland Terrace in Stafford Springs. She was a native of this town, attended the local public and high schools and was a graduate of Bay Path institute, Springfield. She was the first commercial teacher in the Stafford high school where she did very successful work for a number of years, later going to Rockville high school where she was in charge of the commercial department until failing health compelled her to relinquish her duties. Her splendid legacy to the Cemetery association will perpetuate the Harwood name in this vicinity for generations.

Aiding Eleven Families

A report has been current that more than 200 families in Stafford have been receiving help from the town. Industrial conditions in Stafford Springs at present are poor and a number of persons are receiving town aid, but there is a good deal of exaggeration concerning the situation. Textile conditions have been far from encouraging and it is pretty hard sledding for many people. However, First Selectman Burt T. Eaton states that only eleven families are receiving town aid at the present time.

The spring clean-up has begun and many lawns are now looking their prettiest. The clean-up has not been wholly confined to lawns and front yards but in many cases back yards also have been given a thorough cleaning.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Lawrence Tibbett, famous Metropolitan baritone, makes his bow in talking pictures in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's operatic drama, "The Rogue Song," which will come to the Palace theatre Saturday where it will be shown through Tuesday of next week. Lionel Barrymore, who is also a musician and composer, directed the new picture.

Tibbett is supported in this picture by Catherine Dale Owen, Nance O'Neil and the team of Laurel and Hardy. They play the parts of two bandits and their continuous clowning through the story furnishes hilarious comedy to an otherwise serious plot. There is also the Albertina Rasch Ballet in a spectacular all-color number with a hundred girls who dance to special music written by the modernistic composer, Dimitri Tiomkin.

Although "The Rogue Song" is primarily a story of love and adventure it is also the first production to give the audience a taste of opera music and ballet. Tibbett's gorgeous baritone is heard ranging from grand opera calibre to simple love songs, and it is a treat that will never be forgotten. The music was written by Herbert Stothart with interpolations, by Franz Lehar, composer of "The Merry Widow."

The story deals with a mountain bandit chief who loves a Russian princess, his hairbreadth escapes, the final test of his love, and the outcome which furnishes a dramatic ending. The setting is laid in the Caucasus mountains and the costumes and scenery all lend themselves perfectly to the use of technicolor. Several hundred people in gay costumes appear in the elaborate court scenes, the picturesque Gypsy village episodes and other incidentals of the big production.

The double-feature bill combining "Spring is Here" with Alexander Gray and Bernice Claire and "This Mad World," a drama of love and patriotism with Basil Rathbone and Kay Johnson will be shown at the Palace for the last times today.

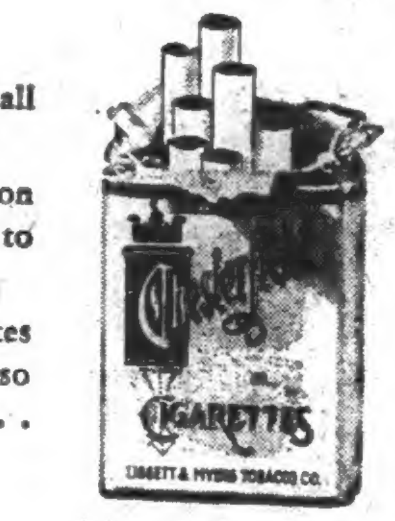
In a sportsman it's Fair Play

in a cigarette it's Taste

POPULARITY IN A SPORTSMAN rests first of all on fair play; in a cigarette on better taste.

CHESTERFIELD'S POPULARITY is fairly won with finer tobaccos, blended and cross-blended to give greater delicacy and richer fragrance.

IT TAKES TIME and is costly to make cigarettes the Chesterfield way, but no other way arrives so surely, so completely at what you want most . . . "TASTE above everything".



We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield cigarettes are of finer quality and hence of better taste than in any other cigarette at the price.

GIFTS FOR MR. AND MRS. MORIN ON TWENTIETH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Morin of Main street were given a covered dish party at their home, Saturday evening, by a number of friends in celebration of their 20th wedding anniversary. The dining room was artistically decorated with flowers and ferns. In the center of the table was a beautiful wedding cake with 20 candles. The cake was made by Mrs. Henry Cur of Willimantic. The table decorations were flowers, with lighted candles in silver candlesticks at each place. The menu consisted of various kinds of salads, baked beans, sauerkraut and frankfurters, spaghetti, cakes, cookies, fruit, peanuts, salted nuts, candy, fruit cordial and coffee. Those who served were: Mrs. G. Lafleur, Mrs. Henry Cur, Mrs. Lydia Allard, Mrs. Alfred Lucier and Mrs. Henry Peltier. During the evening Mrs. Morin was presented a handsome set of sherbet glasses and tray in behalf of several of her friends. She also received a beautiful sugar bowl and creamer from Misses Carmelita and Rose Valentine. Games were played and dancing enjoyed to music by the radio. Mrs. George Lafleur sang a song in French, especially dedicated to the bride and groom of twenty years ago. Cleo Morin and Rose Valentine sang "If You Were the Only Girl in the World," and "I Gotta Have You" was pleasingly sung by Miss Carmelita Valentine. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Louis Peltier, Mr. and Mrs. George Lafleur, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Lucier, Mr. Joseph Allard, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Lucier, Joseph Lucier, Roderick Lucier, Philip Duhaime, Benton Ridgeway, Miss Blanche Lucier, Donald and Cleo Morin, Gerard Lafleur, all of Baltic; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cur, Mrs. Regina Gerard, Leo Gerard, Thomas Geard, the Misses Emilienne and Gertrude Dufresne of Willimantic; Mr. and Mrs. F. Charboneau, Mrs. Charles Charboneau, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Chartier, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Lucier and daughter, Delores, of Norwich; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Peltier, Lionel and Lucien Peltier, and Dorothy McGowan, of Taftville.

Miss Hazel Casman of Washington, D. C., and Miami, Fla., spent Tuesday with Baltic friends. While in Baltic Miss Casman performed a number of difficult swimming feats in the waters of the Shetucket. She jumped from a point know as the "high rock," turned a somersault in the air and landed in the water on her back. She continued to swim on her back from the eastern to the western shore of the river. She also gave an exhibition in long distance under water swimming, showing exceptional endurance.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall or Liggett Drug Store.

NO INDEED! I JUST SOAK THEM SNOW-WHITE IN RINSO SUDS
NEXT DAY
SEE HOW WHITE YOUR SHIRTS ARE TOM. THEY NEVER TOUCHED A WASHBOARD—WITH RINSO I DON'T NEED TO SCRUB OR BOIL
GREAT! AND YOU DON'T LOOK A BIT TIRED AND THE GRANULATED SOAP
Rinso
in tub or washer ... gleaming white washes

(Millions use Rinso. Thousands write us letters like this.)

"Snowy wash every time!" says Mrs. H. P. Beausoleil, Sr., 183 Broad Street

"Of all the soaps they make nowadays, I like Rinso best. I don't scrub or boil, yet I hang out a sweet, snowy wash every time! All I do is soak the wash in Rinso's safe, active suds; the dirt loosens and rinses off. I like Rinso for dishes, too—it loosens grease like magic."

MRS. H. P. BEAUSOLEIL, Sr.,
183 Broad Street, Norwich, Conn.

All you need on washday

Rinso alone gives thick, creamy suds. You need no bar soaps, chips, powders. Rinso in tub or washer means gleaming, snowy washes—easily. And the makers of 38 famous washing machines say, "Rinso for safety!"

Cup for cup, Rinso gives twice as much suds as puffed-up soaps. Get the BIG package. You'll like it for dishes, too—and for all cleaning. It saves work.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Robertson Bleachery & Dye Works, Inc., New Milford.

Drawn away from the long established textile centers into a community of hatters and tobacco growers solely by the unquestionable assurance of an adequate water supply both in volume and quality. The Robertson Bleachery & Dye Works, incorporated in Connecticut in 1916 and built its plant in 1916-1917 in New Milford.

Operations first began with a few inexperienced employes, but now over a hundred skilled people are at work in the plant which has a capacity of from 500,000 to 750,000 yards weekly. There have been two complete changes in the complexion of the business since organization.

Originally a white goods plant processing corset cloths the corporation was forced to enter the dress goods and shirting fields with the passing of the corset. Then as the vogue for guaranteed fast colors developed, the plant was converted into a dye works for the dyeing of vat colors guaranteed by the corporation to be fast to all usage.

Today, cotton, rayon and cotton-rayon mixed goods from all parts of this country, as well as foreign lands, are delivered here from the weaving mills to be bleached, mercerized, dyed, finished and finally delivered by train and truck to the market.

The present officers are: Charles N. Robertson, President; W. H. Robertson, treasurer; L. U. Gridley, secretary; Robert W. P-le, New York representative.

EASTERN VOLUNTOWN

The big fire at the south of Beach Pond is still burning. It has burned over many acres of land. It also burned about 300 cords of wood of Carl Gallup and burned over 1000 feet of lumber of Joseph Gerard.

William Bitgood and George Green went to Beach Pond Tuesday to see where the fire had burned over. It burned two cottages and an Ice house at Beach Pond that belonged to Providence parties.

Warren Tanner got over heated and fell down and scratched his face. The fire and smoke were too much for him.

Henry Gray got his arm cut some way while fighting fire and had to go to the doctor's and have it sewed up.

Mrs William Bitgood had a nice mess of cowslips sent to her from her grandson, Otis Remington, of Sterling Hill.

Mrs. William Bitgood has not been feeling very good for a few days.

Sunday Lee Remington and three sons, Samuel Rose, James Riley and two sons of Oneco, Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood of Pachaug, Henry Wallace and Fred Condon of Lisbon, George Green and Mr. Holmes of Eastern Voluntown were callers at William Bitgood's.

Albert Dawley and grandson, Maurice Harrington, called at William Bitgood's Monday; Mrs. Albert Dawley was home over the week end. She isn't feeling very good.

The party that hunted the wildcat at Mt. Misery have taken off their boots and put on rubbers and are going to Mt. Misery and try their luck on the flying fish. All you have to do is take a little air rifle and and go and sit on the bank and wait a few minutes and pretty soon you will see the fish begin to fly out of the pond and light on the bushes. Then take your little rifle and let them have it and you will be surprised to see the big load you get, not wildcats but flying fish.

George Green has sold his farm to parties from Boston. They have moved on to it. Their names are Holmes.

William Bitgood has peas, onions, beets and a few other things up in his garden.

Apple, pear, plum, peach trees and huckleberry bushes are all in bloom. They are beautiful and such a nice smell, so sweet and nice.

In the fourth both teams scored two runs leaving Dudley in the lead. In the sixth Dudley got two runs by an error, a walk and a two-bagger by Noel.

Blid led the attack for the locals by smashing a double to deep left field. Valade got to first on an error and Mandeville got a single scoring Blid from second. Valade went to third and Blid was on second and H. Ravenelle got a single scoring both Calade and Blid, making the score 7-5.

Little Ikey came up to his father with a very solemn face. "Is it true, father," he asked, "that marriage is a failure?"

His father surveyed him thoughtfully for a moment. "Well, Ikey," he finally replied, "if you get a rich wife, it's almost as good as a failure."—A. C. M. News.

Working feverishly for four days in order to liberate a fox terrier from a crevice in a cave near Rushville, Ill., into which the animal had fallen, Albert Lynn and a group of companions were rewarded when the dog emerged from his involuntary imprisonment. The men had been trailing a fox which took refuge in the cave and the dog was sent in to drive the animal out but failed to emerge.

For generations ocean-going birds, blinded by the bright light, have dashed their brains out against the walls and windows of coastal lighthouses. A new lamp has been developed at Hamburg that reflects the rays in such a manner that the birds can see where they are going. Recent tests of the new lamps having proved successful, all the lighthouses along the German coasts are to be equipped with them.

COLUMBIA

Theodore Lyman spent the week end at the home of Mrs. Raymond Squier. Mrs. Lyman has been spending the past week with her sister, Mrs. Squier.

Mr. and Mrs. Avery of Wolcott hill, Wethersfield, were in town Sunday and attended the morning service at Columbia church. On their return they were accompanied by Mrs. Avery's sister, Mrs. Julia Mix, who has been in Columbia for the past two months taking care of Mrs. Emily Little.

Another fire in the Hop River district burned over 500 acres Friday afternoon and evening. The fire was in the vicinity of the fire of two days earlier and some think the fire may have been smouldering and broken out anew. A young apple orchard was ruined. The fire wardens were tired men that night as they had been helping fight fire in Lebanon in the morning, coming home just in time to go to Hop River, some of them not even having time for dinner.

A severe electrical shower Friday night cooled the air from the excessive heat but was disappointing in that the rain was of short duration and did little good. For many years it has not been as dry this time of year, as usually heavy spring rains fall in April. Wells which had only partially filled from last summer's drouth are already going dry again, and the situation will soon become serious, as farmers are unable to get their early crops started.

Miss Bertha Buell has been spending the past week with Hartford friends.

Miss Harriet Fuller is visiting relatives in Lebanon.

Twelve members of the local girls 4-H club accompanied by their leaders went to Hartford Sunday to the state round-up.

The pulpit of the Columbia church Sunday morning was occupied by Rev. Wm. Taylor of East Providence, R. I. The communion service was held.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Hunt, Clayton Hunt, Jr., and Mrs. Jennie Hunt went to Storrs church Sunday afternoon to attend the musical service sponsored by the Conn. State grange, each Pomona grange in the state furnishing a musical number.

MANSFIELD DEPOT

Connecticut Agricultural college sophomores held a banquet at Brigham tavern Saturday night. The banquet was conducted by the women members of the class. The patrons and patronesses were Capt. and Mrs. H. B. Crowell and Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop Tilley. Fifty-four members and guests were present. The menu was: Soup, steak, French fried potatoes, peas, hot biscuit, fruit salad and strawberry shortcake.

A four o'clock dinner was served to a party of nine, members and relatives guests at the Johnson-Johnson wedding held in Willimantic Wednesday, at the Brigham tavern.

Smoke from three large forest fires was visible from here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hansen, Mr. and Mrs. George Cosgrove attended the second state-wide meeting of grangers held at Storrs Sunday. After the meeting they motored to Pleasant View and reported seeing much timber recently destroyed by fire.

Plum, peach and crab apple trees are in full bloom.

Henry Haddad, who has been employed in a silk mill in Mystic the past two years, is at his home here with his father, Kalil Haddad.

Warm days have burned the fruit trees and early apple and pear trees are in bloom.

G. B. Dimon and son Richard unloaded two cars of grain Monday at the Chestnut Hill station.

Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Kennedy and two children of Monson were guests recently of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Stiles over the week end.

Rev. J. H. Knott gave a talk on What it is to be a Christian, Sunday morning, before the communion service.

A vote was taken Sunday morning at the church to have the morning service commence at 11 o'clock (D. S.) and evening service at 8.

The magnolia tree on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Oehlers is in full bloom.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Davoll had as guests Tuesday their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dunham and daughter, Mrs. James Burr, of Middletown.

cation with sand. Many of the borough streets that are to be oiled have not yet received attention, but the work will go forward as rapidly as possible.

Town Tree Warden Henry G. Gilbert will lend his experienced services Friday afternoon to the planting of a small spruce tree on Davis park incident to Arbor day observances by members of the fourth, fifth and sixth grades of the Danielson grammar school, arranged under the auspices of Leo J. L'Homme post auxiliary, American Legion. It is hoped that this tree will some day have grown so that it may be used for the annual community Christmas tree exercises.

A resident makes protest that children are just ruining Davis park by playing baseball on it and doing other unseemly things and the inference is left that borough officials should do something about the matter.

James Mahoney of the Putnam Theatres corporation and Manager Henry Johnson of the Orpheum theatre, one of the chain, left here this noon for Great Barrington, Mass., where the Mahaiwe theatre has been taken over by the corporation.

Supt. John W. Titcomb of the state fish and game commission has been in this territory inspecting leased streams and other waters. He was accompanied by Homer H. Judd, field representative of the commission.

Judge James N. Tucker, who has been quite ill, was reported as improved today. He is able to be up and about his home at East Killingly.

Not quite so hot in Danielson today, yet the temperature was up to 87 degrees in the sun at the noon hour. Only a bit of relief from the heat wave came as the result of the shower of last night.

Mrs. Harding W. Gaylord is issuing registration cards for the Older Girls' conference to be held in Willimantic May 17-18. Members of the Girls' council, the Misses Phyllis Kenworthy, Ruth Mellor and Henrietta Thompson also have them for issue.

Thompson—Frank Bates, Frank Her- [illegible] Woodstock, Ray Eddy, George Burns.

A meeting of the board of trustees of the Day Kimball hospital was held Tuesday evening in the chamber of commerce rooms, Main street, at which routine business was transacted.

Again this year, members of the Connecticut Sheep Breeders' association cooperating with the Connecticut Agricultural college, Storrs, will meet at the Eastlands, the beautiful country estate of Charles Van Brunt Cushman at Pomfret, on Saturday of this week for an all-day session which will begin at 9 o'clock in the morning. Sheep shearing contests, for which prizes will be awarded winners, sheep herding and meat cutting demonstrations to be given by experts, will feature the programme. Among the list of men prominent in agriculture who will speak at the meeting will be S. McLean Buckingham, state commissioner of agriculture. An invitation to the public to attend has been extended by Mr. Cushman, but because of his father's recent death the usual luncheon and musical programme have been eliminated this year.

Rev. John C. Mathieu, pastor of St. Joseph's church, North Grosvenordale, has returned to his parish after a brief vacation in the Canadian wilderness, and among the curios that Father Mathieu brought back with him was a beautiful lake trout, caught in the waters of Lac Des Iles—that will tip the scales at close to four and a half pounds. The fish was on display today in the windows of A. Gilman Co., Main street. Proud of his catch, and all sportsmen agree that he is justly entitled to pride himself with being the owner. Father Mathieu had the speckled beauty carefully preserved by a taxidermist and mounted on a birch-bark-covered shield. The fish, the like of which has not in recent years been caught in local waters, is attracting the eye and envy of many fishermen who talk about "big-'uns," but never catch them.

WINDHAM

The annual meeting of the Parent-Teacher association was held Monday afternoon, the president, Mrs. Vantine Anderson, in the chair. The secretary's report was given by Mrs. Harry Moseley. The treasurer, Mrs. L. P. Oehrig reported receipts of $169.76, expenditures $161.80 with a balance of $7.96. Worn out playground equipment has been replaced, money spent for the tennis court, $20 given for junior achievement work in connection with the school, $5 given to the welfare bureau in Willimantic, $5 to Newington home for crippled children, $5 to the Salvation army. It was voted to increase the tennis court fee to be $1 for local people and $3 for out of town players, all grammar school pupils free. Mention was made of the summer round-up in June of children from 2-6 years when medical and dental examination will be given free, about eighteen having already been entered and any wishing must report to Mrs. Frank Smith or Mrs. Vantine Anderson. The chairman of the nominating committee, Mrs. Dewitt Lathrop, presented the names of Mrs. Ray Smith for president, Mrs. L. P. Oehrig, Mrs. David Light, vice presidents, Mrs. Harold Leffingwell, secretary and Mrs. Harry Moseley, treasurer. They were elected. E. meeting was led by Mrs. David Light. At the business meeting which followed it was stated that the four society union meeting would be held with the Scotland society next Sunday evening.

JEWETT CITY

FOUR-TEAM BALL LEAGUE TO BE FORMED IN BOROUGH

A meeting was held Wednesday evening in the interest of forming a borough baseball league, to consist of four teams known as the K. of C., Campers, Ashland and Slater's. Always a baseball town, it is proposed this season to put over something new and in a larger way than ever before. The four teams are already organized and rearing to go. A check-up Wednesday evening showed 40 men, every one in the semi-pro class, with established records made last season. The plans will include two games each week; from the scores will be figured regular standing and percentages which will be published regularly in this column. In order to see what sort of baseball timber is produced right on the local sand lots, it is only necessary to inspect the records of any summer time games and players. It was pointed out at the meeting that the operating expenses would be small. Those who were present at the first meeting: representing the K. of C., Thomas Barnett and Eudor LeClaire; the Campers, Herbert Thompson and H. Gordon Willis; Ashland, "Hal" Chase and John Burda; Slater's, John Bush and Stanley Derda. A meeting will be held Monday for the election of officers.

TOWN HAD A FINE VIEW OF AIRPLANE SQUADRONS

People living in the east part of the town were afforded a fine view of the airplane squadrons Thursday forenoon. Although some distance away, over 100 were counted. At 4:35 in the afternoon a division of 15 monoplanes, west-bound, flew over the northern boundary of the town in full view from the borough streets. The roar of 15 motors gave warning of their approach and many thus gained a sight of the big ships. When over the town they were flying in formation, three in each of five divisions. At 5 o'clock nine big biplane bombers appeared from the north, and spreading in a long single line passed directly over the borough, flying much lower than the 15 that preceded them. People tossed their hats and waved, in recognition of which the leading plane dipped in salute.

OBITUARY

Miss Minnie F. Green

Miss Minnie F. Green, 60, a native of Griswold, died at the Day Kimball hospital, Putnam, Thursday morning following a major operation. She was the younger daughter of Aaron and Amy Ann Wilcox Green. Born in Jewett City, all her life had been passed here except that for the last two years she has made her home with Mr. and Mrs. George Robertsen in Danielson. Mrs. Robertsen is her niece. During her earlier life here she attended the public schools and later was a spooler and warper tender for the Ashland Co. The late Mrs. Henry Jones, her only sister, was almost a helpless invalid for many years. To see that she had every attention possible was Miss Green's greatest concern. Day after day and year after year, she devoted every energy in seeking to give comfort and relief to her sister, whom she survived a little over three years. A brother, Arthur Green, of this place, older than Miss Green, is the only surviving relative of that branch of the family, all of whom lived in Jewett City practically all their lives. Miss Green made no claim upon the social side of life and belonged to no orders. When people spoke of her Thursday the stories were all the same—her life's duty was where she did it, in her home.

Souvenir of Big Game

Chet Stafford, Bill McCluggage and Leo Gilbert were in Boston to see the series between Cleveland and Boston. During one of the games, Jamieson, the Cleveland leftfielder, poled a high one over into the bleachers. Chester saw it coming, as did dozens of others. The coveted sphere came nearer everybody was on tip-toe, when Bill suddenly recalled the acrobatic stunts that he and his friend used to do in Robinson's circus. In the twinkling of an eye Chet was standing on Bill's shoulders. The rest was easy and the cherished trophy of the trip of the trio is to be seen in Charlie Carey's window.

CHURCH SCHOOL CLASS GIVES ENTERTAINMENT

Ma Cucu and her family kept the audience in the Congregational church vestry in continuous laughter at their performance Wednesday evening. Before their appearance, Mary Gertrude Howe played a piano selection and Leah Gill and Olga Zegeer a piano duet. Then Ma, who was impersonated by Lucille Tomlinson, entered with her "Yes, Ma" family. The characters were taken by: Margery Webster as Araminta Arabella; Eva Shorey, Caroline Cordelia; Leah Gill, Isabella Iphigenia; the twins, Mary Gertrude Howe as Katrinka Keziah and Eileen Nichols as Loretta Lillybell; Arlene Symington, Elizabeth Eliza; Olga Zegeer, Betsy Belinda; Ivy Geer, Jemimy Jerushy; Eunice Webster, Dorothy Delilah; Helen Geer, Hilda Hortensia, and Charlotte Albertine, Glorianna Gadabout. Their performances were indescribable, for they were most unexpected and ludicrous. Later, fancy work was sold by Leah Gill, Olga Zegeer and Eva Shorey. Home-made candy was sold by Lucille Tomlinson and Margery Webster. Estelle Shorey was cashier. Twenty-four dollars was the receipts. The entertainment was given by Miss Virginia Goodenough's Sunday school class, under her instruction, the proceeds to be added to the new singing books fund. The amount necessary has now been exceeded, and the books will be sent for at once. The money has been entirely raised by the Sunday school, with a puzzle social, mile of pennies strips, and entertainments and candy sales by Miss Goodenough's and Mrs. Edith Soule's classes.

The Congregational Missionary society meeting at Mrs. E. A. Faust's Thursday afternoon was unusually well attended, Miss S. K. Adams, the president, presided. After the business session, Mrs. Carl Holdredge of Ledyard, gave a most interesting account of several of the addresses given at the recent state meeting in Hartford, also of the plan for the work of the Missionary societies. She was given a rising vote of thanks. Mrs. Faust served punch, wafers and candy.

Albert Langlois, a two and a half year old boy, was struck on the ear by a swing at Ashland park playground Wednesday night, the cut requiring six stitches by Dr. F. E. Rainville. The swing is on chains and had only been put up Wednesday.

Heart Disease Menace

How serious mortality arising from heart disease has become is shown in a study by the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, of persons with leaky heart, scientifically termed mitral regurgitation. The company's statisticians point out in its statistical bulletin that the death rate among white males in a large group of policyholders having this disease was more than twice that of normal persons, while the death rate among the white females in the group was nearly three times as high as the normal.

For many years, the Bulletin states the life insurance companies declined to write policies on persons having any sort of a heart murmur, but by degrees became more liberal, so that insurance has been issued in cases where the disease had not become advanced.

Some people never would get married if they didn't marry in haste.

Rheumatic Pains Go Swollen Joints Vanish

Sore swollen, unsightly joints are quickly freed from pain and brought back to normal with Ru-Ma.

Lame people walk without aid; sleep comes to those who have been unable to lie in bed; hands that were helpless because of terrible rheumatism are now able to do their share for the support of the family.

Ru-Ma is a wonderful remedy for stiffening of the joints, rheumatic pains, gout, neuritis and lumbago.

It is a wonder-worker; it never falters, never gives up until every vestige of the dangerous poisons that cause rheumatism are expelled from the body.

There is no guess work about Ru-Ma's ending your rheumatic misery. That's why Lee and Osgood and good druggists everywhere can sell it with guarantee of money back if it does not give quick and lasting relief.

THE FARMER'S TALK TO FARMERS

COMMUNITY FARMING

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

Another Wise Man of the West has arisen to show farmers which way to go and how to go it.

There's one thing we rooral sons of soil can bank upon with reasonable assurance, to wit, that is to say, namely upon the annual appearance of some agricultural John the Baptist to make plain our ways, and to explain what's the matter, what we need, what we must do.

If a whole year should pass without some new and pink-tinted scheme [illegible] out of the west proposing to move all the farmers of the country right over on Easy street, instanter, the mudsills of the back farms and [illegible] roads would begin to look for other signs of the end of the world. Such a stoppage in the accustomed course of spoofery would be significant if not ominous. But we needn't worry. There's no basis for fear that the annual supply of [illegible] and dreams will run short.

The newest is reported from [illegible] Mo., where Theodore Gary [illegible] what he is pleased to [illegible] "community farming."

It seems that Mr. Gary, having [illegible] enough wealth through [illegible] of a telephone pro[illegible] [illegible] in what is known [illegible] "a [illegible] dollar estate" near [illegible] felt that this gave him the [illegible] to speak to and for the farmer [illegible] something of authority.

He is apparently, a man of kind[illegible] and sincerely desirous [illegible] others prospering as well as [illegible] he was troubled in his [illegible] when he found that nine of [illegible] men employed on his estate at [illegible] wages had at one time [illegible] their own farms. These [illegible] they had lost through the de[illegible] of land values, the exactions [illegible], the lowering of market [illegible] rising of tax-rates, and [illegible] Gary thought this was sadly [illegible] if not actually unjust. [illegible] called on his experience at [illegible] via the telephone, to [illegible] a way out for the agricul[illegible].

The result is to be an experiment [illegible] "community farming." Briefly summarized, this plan is for Mr. Gary to "finance" 20 farms of about 20 acres each, supplying them with stock, tools, etc. They will be turned over to 20 individual farmers, including the ten now employed on the Gary estate. They will be employed half the time on the big estate, the other half they will be free to work for themselves. Mr. Gary will put over them an "agricultural expert," whose rules they will be expected to follow. Also a supervising "housekeeper," to "provide the wives with the training to make them more efficient as farmers' helpers."

Now it is perfectly easy to see how a benevolently disposed capitalist who had acquired wealth in ways having no relation to farming might think that some such plan would work.

We practical farmers, who have had our little knowledge of the trade pounded and ground into us under the flails of experience and between the millstones of hard luck, don't need to know more of the plan than I have summarized to feel just as confident that it won't work.

One can readily appreciate Mr. Gary's reasoning. If a man is sure of paid employment for half his time, he will be enabled to put a good deal of the energy which now goes into worry into productive work .... If it takes ten men working full time to care for the Gary estate, then 20 men working half-time should do as much .... If ignorance of best methods or lack of information about markets leads individual farmers into costly mistakes, then the supervision of an "expert" in such matters would tend to prevent much loss .... And if the farmer's wife, to use an old country saying, could "throw out with a teaspoon faster than her husband could shovel in with a scoop," then the advice of a competent housekeeper would tend to economy .... One can't blame a telephone-enriched magnate, with a good heart and a generous hand, for figuring things out in some such way.

The first great trouble with all such well-meant schemes is that they don't take human nature into consideration. In this particular one, for example, it is pre-assumed that all the 20 Gary-financed farmers and their 20 wives will be docile, eager to learn right ways—or what the "expert" considers right ways—scrupulously fair, and the whole 40 sweetly reasonable.

Now, if 40 human beings, all sweetly reasonable, were ever assembled in one bunch, history has failed to note the miracle. It never has happened, and is not likely to happen, now, in Missouri. Each man and each woman of the 40 will be imperturbably confident of his or her own utter reasonableness—and the un-reasonableness of all the other 39, to say nothing of the agricultural "expert" and the "supervising housekeeper."

Imagine, just for illustration, the "expert" undertaking to tell Farmer Snooks, who was brought up on a Wisconsin dairy, how to milk the cow in the modern way. Or the "supervising housekeeper" assuming to show Mrs. Snooks, who has at last learned how to boil his breakfast eggs so as to suit her husband, why they are better for him cooked some other way. Eh?

Consider another phase: Each of the 20 farmers is to work half the time on the big estate for wages, and half the time on his own place for himself. Which half? There is no possible way of dividing the time so that the vagaries of weather and the devilishnesses of bugs won't work a hardship to some of the 20. And the bearing of imposed hardships is more than apt to engender hard feelings. If the potato-bugs invade Farmer Snooks' patch the day he is due to work on the big place, d'ye s'pose the wages he earns that day will salve the sore of his ruined potato-crop?

It's not so very difficult to plan out, on paper, a scheme which manifestly ought to work as smoothly as a clock or a new automobile. But when you try to put the machine together, with all sorts of cross-grained parts and mis-shaped wheels, that's another affair. I recall how, in the days when I was still "on earth," as poor, crippled Martin Bagg used to say of his sturdy manhood, I used to plan out my eight or ten acres of garden during the long winter evenings. The peas were to go in here, and the sweet-corn there, and the melons yonder, and the cabbages and the kukes and the beans and the squash and the onions and the beets all just so. It was really something of a lark to plan out those gardens; almost as much fun as putting a jig-saw puzzle picture together.

But, somehow, something unexpected always happened. It might be the weather, it might be the failure of fertilizer to arrive on time, it might be a late frost which froze tender plants to death—something was practically sure to happen to knock my plans into a cocked hat and turn my symmetrically laid-out garden into a crazy quilt. My only chance of salvation was to be "johnny-on-the-spot," ready at an hour's notice to revise and revamp the whole scheme. Even then it was more than probable that some of my most promising ideas would turn out complete fizzles. And that, when I had all the time there was and all the freedom a farmer can ever have to straighten out the various musses.

If farming could be done in a shop, under a roof, with the temperature thermostatically controlled and the windows screened against all form of insects, why, then it is possible that it could be done as shop-work is done. But, thus far, no way has been discovered to do real farming except out-of-doors, and subject to utterly uncontrollable outdoor conditions. Consequently, it must be done as circumstances demand or as conditions warrant. It is the most highly individualized occupation on earth, and no more amenable to rules than a fly's orbit is to the rules of conic sections.

Men who have succeeded in some commercial or industrial occupation often seem to feel that such success has qualified them to give instruction in regard to success in farming. Really, this does not follow. Because a man can make the best mouse-trap in three continents he is not necessarily fitted to advise a watchmaker in repairing a chronometer. The fact that another man has made a million dollars on the stock exchange doesn't make him a proper adviser in the selection of dairy cows.

It's always easier to sit on the fence and criticize the other fellow's plowing than it is to take the handles and steer the old plow across a quack-sodded, snag-infested field with your own hands.

It's much—very much easier to tell some discouraged farmer how to make money farming, than it is to make the money that way, yourself.

Two or three years ago Henry Ford, who is reckoned fairly successful as an auto maker, proposed to settle the whole matter, so far as southern Michigan was concerned, by hiring men to work six months in his River Rogue shops, and letting them off the other six to farm. Somehow we haven't heard much about that great scheme, lately. It rested, theoretically, on a much sounder basis than Mr. Gary's "community farming" plan.

But theories are only useful to explain what has happened in farming; they aren't practically of much value in telling what is going to happen.

Which is one reason why, as you may have noticed, no two farmers are ever likely to agree about any agricultural theory.

THE FARMER.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

VITAMINS IN FISH OILS MAY CHEAPEN FARM FEED

Immense quantities of fish oils containing vitamin D are available and farmers can use them profitably in animal feeding. This is announced as the result of recent investigations by the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils of the United States department of agriculture and the bureau of fisheries of the United States department of commerce.

The investigators believe that these oils are obtainable at one-third to one-fourth the present cost of cod-liver oil, which is widely used in stock and chicken feeds because of its high content of vitamin D, now considered essential for the raising of chicks and other young animals as well as for the proper feeding of children. From this information it appears that farmers may obtain a more economical supply of vitamin D with which to supplement the vitamin A content of such feeds as yellow corn and alfalfa.

Pilchard oil, four million gallons of which are produced annually from California sardines, is as rich in vitamin D as cod-liver oil. Tuna oil, equally rich in this vitamin, is less abundant. Salmon oil is about one-half as rich in vitamin D as cod-liver oil, and its vitamin A content is about the same as the poorer grades of cod-liver oil. Because of the great supply the price paid for vitamins A and D in salmon oil is now lower than the price paid for those vitamins in cod-liver oil. The federal chemists believe that manufacturers can change their methods and improve the vitamin A content of salmon oil. At present the production of salmon oil is slightly less than that of cod-liver oil. The supply, however, can be increased five or sixfold, because millions of pounds of salmon offal from which the oil could be recovered are dumped into Alaskan waters every year.

E. M. Nelson of the protein and nutrition division of the United States department of agriculture and J. R. Manning of the bureau of fisheries, United States department of commerce recently reported their findings on vitamins in fish oils in a paper delivered at the meeting of the American Chemical society in Atlanta, Ga. The departments of agriculture and commerce will continue their cooperative investigations into this subject and into the use of other by-products of the fishing industry.

PLANT LATE CABBAGE SEED NOW

Early cabbage should now be getting large enough in the hotbed or seed box to be pretty close to good transplanting size. It is past time to start seeds for early fall crops and by May 1 the winter and late fall crop seed may be sown in ample time. The three sowings of cabbage seed are needed to maintain a crop of cabbage from late June until winter.

The home gardener is getting acquainted with the superior quality of the dark green crinkled leaved Savoy cabbages. They are especially recommended for the home garden because of their fine flavor and quality. They are reputed to be poor keepers compared with the smooth leaved types and are therefore not a main crop type. To be cut for table use when desired, they have no superiors in the cabbage line.

As they are not often seen in the market, this is the cabbage for the home garden.

Cabbages like a soil rich in nitrogen content as their whole effort is to be devoted to foliage building. They like a mellow soil and need abundant moisture. Under these conditions they will produce solid heads of the finest quality. Nitrate of soda or some commercial fertilizer of high nitrogen content should be applied at intervals of three or four weeks to speed growth.

Give the cabbages plenty of room, at least two feet each way and keep them hoed well.

Cabbage worms which are inevitable visitors discourage many people from growing cabbages but they may be destroyed easily by sprinkling the cabbage with some arsenate insecticide. If there is fear of using arsenical insecticides, although the danger is extremely slight, some of the non-poisonous slug shot or other insect destroyer may be used. The main point is to watch for the worms as soon as white butterflies are seen about the cabbage patch. The cabbage worm hatches from the eggs laid by this butterfly. A visit with a sprinkler of poison will make short work of the worms. If neglected, they will soon riddle the foliage

SUNFLOWERS MAKE EXCELLENT CHICK-RANGE SHADE

At one time thick growing trees or low bushes were considered ideal shade for a chick range, but this theory no longer prevails. Trees and bushes may harbor diseases spread by wild birds, and furthermore such places are quickly contaminated by the chickens and there is no opportunity for nature to exercise a natural clean-up.

Sunflowers are far superior to corn or other crops commonly used for chick range shade. They are semi-hardy and can be put in as soon as the ground can be worked, and they grow rapidly even in cool weather. Plow, harrow, and prepare the seed bed the same as for corn. Fertilize if necessary with something other than poultry droppings. Drill in rows 3 feet apart, the same as for silage corn. Cultivate until two feet high and thin to one foot apart in the row.

Sunflowers must be protected from early-hatched chicks by fencing until they are about 2 feet high, after which time the chicks will continue their cultivation and no further attention is necessary. Sunflowers should be planted in long narrow strips, three or four rows wide. This procedure in many cases helps to separate different ages of chicks, simplifying the brooding problem. When the sunflowers are well grown, the lower leaves die off, allowing a free circulation of air underneath, yet providing abundant shade. When the sunflower seeds are set, a few plants can be cut down each day so that the crop will be entirely consumed by the time the last pullets are housed.—Roy E. Jones

FERTILIZER PROMOTE LEAF, FLOWER GROWTH IN SHRUBS

Shrubbery beds and borders cannot be expected to produce luxuriant growth and beautiful blooms unlehh the beds are given a certain amount of cultivation and are properly fertilized. The common practice of spading out a small ring, the size is a poor substitute for thorough cultivation, and does not give the plants an opportunity to develpop attractively.

Nothing is beeter, as a fertilizer, manure. This should be put on in the fall and spaded in the spring. Wood ashes from the fireplace are valuable for mineral fertilizers. If commercial fertilizers have to be bought in small quantities it will be best to purchase the highest grade mixtures and apply according to manufacturer's direction.

Cultivating the Soil.

The care of shrubs and flowers the first season is also very important, as this is a time of extreme trial, on new plantations. The soil in the bed or border should be cultivated, giving it the same treatment that would be given a garden in which one was raising prize vegetables. After the soil has become packed from rains or from watering, cultivation should be done as soon as the ground has dried out enough to be worked easily. The purpose of this is to keep the ground loose about the roots and to preserve the moisture in the soil. Surface cultivation provides a layer of finely pulverized soil through which the natural capillary action of ater in the soil is discouraged. The fine earth acts as a mulch of the simplest form and thereby discourages evaporation.

The sight of the bare ground is objectionable to some degree, but if the beds are kept neatly edged and the cultivation is done uniformly, the appearance of the border will not be as bad as it might seem. The good that is done should more than offset this objection.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Clarence Sebastian

Mrs. Anna W. Sebastian, 42, wife of Clarence Sebastian of Mystic, died Wednesday morning at Norwich State hospital, following a short illness. She was admitted to the institution less than two weeks ago. She was born in Ledyard, July 27, 1877, the daughter of Ephraim and Sarah Williams. A great deal of sympathy is felt for the survivors, especially the smaller children. She is survived by her husband, her mother, seven daughters, Evelyn E., Anna G., Marian M., Josephine C., Jennie, Gladys and Gertrude Sebastian, and three sons, David L., Jonathan and Alfred Sebastian.

There were 11 tables in play at the Eastern Star whist held in Masonic temple Wednesday evening. Prizes in straight whist went to Mrs. Charles Anderson and H. Wallin, Stanley Dodd and Mrs. Harry Allyn. High scores at bridge were made by William McGregor and Miss Emma Albright.

Mrs. Harriet Brainard is making improvements to her property on Pearl street.

Miss Minnie Flynn is visiting New York relatives.

The tempest and wind storm of Wednesday evening did not amount to much in this vicinity, but in some places there was a very hard storm. The extreme heat of Tuesday and Wednesday warranted something of the sort.

Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, a picture, Men Without Women, an all-talking under-sea picture, was given in the local theatre for the benefit of the A. C. Latham camp, Sons of Veterans and Phoebe Packer Rathbun tent, Daughters of Veterans. The proceeds are to be used for defraying expenses of Memorial day.

NORWICH WOMAN DRIVER FINED $5 BY JUSTICE

Anna Mary Kelly, 29 Boswell avenue, Norwich, who was arrested Wednesday about 9 p. m., by Officer Howard Lamphere of Montville for failing to grant right of way, had her case tried before Justice of the Peace Oscar E. Church Thursday at 9 a. m. Miss Kelly, who was driving a Dodge sedan, was on her way to Norwich. When she approached Hubbard's gate at Uncasville she blew her horn to get the right of way from the car in front of her and when she came alongside the car the driver stepped on the gas and wouldn't let her pass. A model A Ford, driven by Francis R. Booth of 761 Montauk avenue, New London, who was coming from Norwich and driving toward New London, had to pull off the side of the road to avoid an accident; while doing this he hit a pole, completely demolishing his car. The driver of the car ahead of Miss Kelly didn't stop to see the damages that he had caused by his reckless driving. This kind of a driver is a menace on the public highways. Miss Kelly and the four women riding with her received slight cuts; her Dodge car had a broken bumper and headlights. Mr. Booth received slight injury to his left leg. Miss Kelly paid a fine of $5 and costs for failing to grant right of way.

Frederick Gowdy, of Pearl street, Springfield, Mass., was arrested by State Police Officer Frederick Winninger, of Groton barracks, when he was speeding on the Norwich-New London highway at Uncasville Wednesday afternoon. He was tried before Justice of the Peace Oscar E. Church Wednesday night and was fined $10 and costs.

ROCKVILLE, R. I.

The worst forest fire in the history of Rockville raged around the outskirts of the village Sunday night Monday and Monday night and was still burning south of the village Tuesday. No houses in this vicinity have been burned, but all the buildings on Pleasant street, were in grave danger and if it had not been for the fire companies from out of town they doubtless would have been burned. A line of hose was laid from the brook on Pleasant street and water was pumped to the houses nearest the fire and the fire was conquered after it burned through the woods and came very near several of the houses. An army of men has been fighting fire since Sunday night and some of the fire companies who came here had been on duty since Saturday fighting fires. Two summer cottages at Yawgoog pond were burned; one owned by Frank Hill and another which belonged to Earle Robinson, both of Ashaway. One of the buildings on the Boy Scout farm at Yawgoog caught fire but this was extinguished before it got much headway. Two houses on Woody Hill were burned, one on the Striepeck place and the other on the Hugh Tanner place.

Arthur Barber of Providence called on his sisters, Mrs. A. B. Kenyon, of this place and Miss Ella F. Barber of Woody Hill, Monday.

Elisha C. Burdick of Westerly was here Monday.

Mrs. J. F. Palmer has been ill the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Lougheaa and N. H. Lanphear of Westerly, attended church here and were guests at G. C. Irish's.

Mrs. A. S. Babcock has been ill for several days, as also has been Mrs. B. L. Kenyon.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Danny and Nanny Became Separated

Make plans with care, but don't forget,
The best of plans may be upset.
—Nanny Meadow Mouse.

Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse are old travelers. They have been around a good deal, living here and living there. Their last home was in the Long Lane. They had had a very comfortable home in the bushes where they grow along the fence on one side of the Long Lane. But Killy and Mrs. Killy the Sparrow Hawks had become very near neighbors, so Danny and Nanny thought they must move. It wasn't safe to live there any longer. It was Nanny who led the way.

"Don't ask foolish questions," squeaked Nanny in return

"Just where are you going?" squeaked Danny, who was right at her heels.

"Don't ask foolish questions," squeaked Nanny in return. "I don't know any more about it than you do. We'll know it when we get there. The chief thing is to get away from the hunting ground of those Sparrow Hawks."

"Right, my dear, quite right," replied Danny. "We must get away from those Sparrow Hawks. But I wish we knew where we were going. In getting away from the claws of Killy the Sparrow Hawk we don't want to run into the paws of Reddy Fox."

"Of course we don't," replied Nanny, "and we're not going to. I'm not half as much afraid of Reddy Fox as I am of Killy the Sparrow Hawk. Those keen eyes of Killy's looking down from above can see every little thing, even in the grass and bushes. It is a wonder to me that we have escaped so long as we have. Yes, sir, it is far easier to keep out of the clutches of Reddy Fox."

Nanny suddenly squatted very close to the ground. Danny did the same thing. For three or four minutes neither of them moved. Then Nanny once more started ahead. "What was it?" squeaked Danny.

"I saw a shadow," squeaked Nanny. "I think it was Spooky the Screech Owl. He is as bad at night as is Killy by day."

All that night, with frequent and rather long stops to rest and eat, Danny and Nanny traveled. When daylight came they had left the Long Lane and were well out on the Green Meadows. They had had no real adventures. Perhaps it was on this account that they had grown somewhat careless. At first they had kept very close together. Nanny had led the way and Danny had kept right at her heels. But now they were not so careful to keep together. They had separated because Danny had found young grass. He knew that he could catch up with Nanny. His nose would tell him just where she had gone.

Now, it happened that Flip the Terrier had gone down on the Green Meadows to look for excitement. He loved to hunt for Meadow Mice down there. It was very exciting to try to catch the scurrying little gray forms. It was just by chance that he surprised Nanny Meadow Mouse. Flip is very quick. It is a smart mouse that can escape him. He almost stepped on Nanny and, of course, Nanny ran. Instantly Flip was after her. Nanny was desperately frightened. She was so frightened that for a moment or two she simply ran blindly, without knowing where she was going or what she was doing. Flip was right after her, trying to pin her down with one of his paws. It was just good fortune that there happened to be an old can lying there—an old rusty can. Nanny dodged into it and Flip didn't see where she went. He hunted and hunted, but he couldn't find her. Then he trotted back in the direction from which he had come.

Now, of course, Danny Meadow Mouse had heard the excitement and he in turn had been badly frightened. When he heard Flip coming his way Danny ran. He ran as fast as those short legs of his could take him. He ran off to one side and hid under a little tangle of old dead grass. So it was that Danny and Nanny became separated.

SEVEN "LOST" ISLANDS GIVEN TO PHILIPPINES

Seven "lost" islands will be reattached to the Philippines by a recent convention between England and the United States fixing the boundary between North Borneo and the Philippine archipelago.

"Mislaying islands in the Philippines is easier than it would seem," says a bulletin of the National Geographic society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C., "because there are approximately 7,000 islands in the archipelago, distributed over an area equal in length to the distance from Palatka, Florida, to Mackinaw City, Michigan.

"Taganak, most important of the seven 'lost' islands, is only a mile long. Some of the others are merely clumps of trees on small rocks or coral patches. None is inhabited.

"Before the Spanish-American war, Spain had made a boundary treaty with Great Britain defining the line between Borneo and the Philippine Islands as nine miles off the Borneo coast. Later came the treaty by which Spain ceded to the United States the Philippine Islands, and this was found to have four errors, the last of which are being cleared up more than 30 years later.

"Soon after the treaty was made it was found that Cagayan Islands, of which the principal island has an area of 46 square miles and a population of 250, had been left as an island without a country. This was corrected in 1900. Last year the question of who owned Palmas Island, near the Celebes, was settled by an arbiter's award, giving it to Holland. Another error has been found in the northern line dividing the Philippine Islands and Taiwan (Formosa) but this does not involve actual territory.

"England has been administering the 'seven' lost islands off Borneo, giving them the little attention they need. On Taganak is a lighthouse marking the entrance to Sandakan harbor, the most important port on the North Borneo coast. The provision of the old Spanish and British treaty has been found impossible of fulfillment because 'nine nautical miles off the coast' creates an impossible surveying problem, due to the sinuous curves of the Borneo coast.

"So an imaginary line has been drawn across the ocean and it is specified that all islands and rocks north of this line, and this means most of the group known as the Turtle Islands, will go to the Philippines. In addition to Taganak there are Great Bakkungaan, Langaan, Lihiman, Boaan, Baguan, and the Mangsees lying north of the Mangsee channel.

"Although the islands are uninhabited and very difficult to reach, because of the barriers of coral which surround them, natives go to them regularly to gather cocoanuts and turtle eggs.

"The Turtle Islands, as they are locally called, and the Mangsees, lie along the southern edge of the Sulu Sea and are as far south of Manila as Charlestown, S. C., is south of New York city."

HOW HOUSES, "GANG FEUD" AND LAWS OF 1,000 A. D.

A Viking's house that was burned 819 years ago in Iceland has been reconstructed.

Viking hospitality will be extended in this hall to the visitors and representatives from many nations who journey to Iceland this spring to celebrate the 1000th anniversary of the world's oldest, continuous, democratic legislature, the Icelandic Althing.

"The new house duplicates, as nearly as possible, the historic home of one of Iceland's greatest lawyers," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Njal was a lawyer learned in the voluminous and technical law of Viking Iceland before William the Conqueror brought the English jury system to England on the end of a Norman spear.

"Iceland has rebuilt Njal's home because the fame of his legal skill, together with the story of his death amid melodramatic scenes, has been preserved in one of the most cherished of Iceland's sagas, 'The Story of Burnt Njal.' The saga came into being 11 years after Lief Ericson's journey from Greenland to American shores, which was in the year 1,000 A. D.

"Njal's reconstructed house is especially interesting to Americans because it is similar to the house reputed to have been the first built by white men in America. Thorfinn Karlsefin, the colonist, who followed Lief Ericson is believed to have built a Viking house somewhere on the shores now known as New England or Nova Scotia. Njal's rebuilt house has a floor plan not unlike that of Lief's own house, the ruins of which may still be seen in Iceland.

"The appearance of many Viking houses resembled a street of modern row houses in eastern United States and seaboard cities. The triangular Viking gable ends ranging in a line suggested a series of cottages shoulder to shoulder, but each Viking roof usually sheltered a single room. The whole sprawling Viking house of many gables was connected by a narrow hall that linked the rooms in the same way that covered passages link up the many buildings of a New England farmhouse.

"Turf often roofed the Viking's house and in spring he lived beneath a carpet of wild flowers.

"Leading men of the island, such as Njal, usually had one high-roofed, large hall in their houses. This hall had three divisions lengthwise; a nave and two low side aisles separated by low stone walls. The high roof of the nave was supported by two lines of wooden pillars brought over stormy seas from Norway in the small Viking ships. This hall was a sleeping, eating and living room for the chief and his retainers. Some of these halls, which served as eating, living and sleeping rooms, were very large. One in Iceland was 200 feet long and 60 feet wide.

"Down the center of the hall was one long fireplace. The smoke from the fire found its way out through holes cut high up in the roof. Benches for the family, servants and retainers ran along each side of the long fireplace. In the low-roofed aisles parallel to the long axis of the hall were bunks for sleeping. These bunks usually had swinging doors which locked on the inside so that the sleeper could lock himself in his compartment.

"Such a house was burned down over Njal's head. 'Lawyer Victim of Gangland Feud,' newspapers would have headlined the event if there had been newspapers instead of sagas.

"Njal had been too successful in the Iceland courts. He knew Icelandic law so well he could repeat it all from memory. So he, his sons, and his friends and servants were attacked by a rival gang. With spears and battle-axes they beat off the attackers who finally set fire to a haystack which in turn fired the house. Women and children were permitted to go out safely, except Bergthora, Njal's wife, who chose to stay with her husband. Njal, himself, was too old to fight so he and Bergthora lay down together, covered themselves with an ox hide and awaited their fate.

"One of the defenders managed to escape amid the smoke and confusion. He brought his enemies to trial, heard them declared outlaws, and finally followed some of them as far south as Wales to kill them for vengeance."

WOOD HOUSES WILL MODERNIZE EASILY

An old out-of-style house flanked by charming modern homes is particularly conspicuous. It is like the ill-garbed guest at a fashionable dinner. There are many homes which are in just this situation. They were built in outlying parts of the city years ago when each probably was the only house in the block. As they were located in districts which in recent years become popular, their owners have seen fine modern homes go up around them.

Homes of this type, though, can be made just as smart and attractive as the newer homes. Most of these old houses are of sound wood construction, which is to their advantage, because it is easy to transform a home of wood, regardless of how lacking in architectural grace it may now be, into any of a number of artistic and distinctive home types. The tastes of the owner can be fully satisfied. The old home can be converted into an interesting Colonial, an English cottage, a home with lines suggestive of Normandy, or some other architecturally correct type. This is because of the flexibility of wood in designing, because most of the lumber in a majority of old houses is sound and in as good condition as when it was first used and because most old wood houses are well constructed. No other building material lends itself so well to remodeling changes.

Owners of old homes who would like to modernize them will find that their local lumber dealers can give helpful suggestions, supply and new material that may be needed and recommend an architect or builder who can redesign a house and do the necessary remodeling work. Local dealers stock or can obtain lumber which is admirably suited for home building and home reconstruction purposes, including Douglas fir, West Coast hemlock, Western red cedar and Sitka spruce.

HEAT IS BEST FROM LONG RADIATORS

What is the "under the ceiling" temperature of the rooms in your house? What is the temperature at the breathing line? What is the temperature near the floor?

The answer to these questions determine the healthfulness and economy of a heating system as well as the comfort which it will give to the occupants of the room.

It is obviously not economical nor comfortable to have the air immediately under the ceiling several degrees warmer than the air at the breathing line and the air at the breathing line (five feet from the floor) warmer than the air two feet and six inches from the floor. It is most economical to have the air comfortably warm at the height at which people walk and sit. This is commonly referred to as the "occupied zone" of a room.

Research work during the last year at one of the leading schools of engineering has proved that this occupied zone of the room can be warmed most effectively by the long, low window type of radiator and that this type of radiator gives to the room a relatively low under the ceiling temperature while it concentrates its heating effects where it will do the most good.

FIVE NECESSITIES LISTED FOR KITCHEN

Architects of long experience always say that a successful kitchen plan must consider five necessities, namely: The stove, sink, a center of working operations, storage space and refrigerator. The first two are indispensable in even the most unpretentious of kitchens.

The center of working operations, convenient to all other kitchen elements and making all accessible with the least lost motion, is the central theme of most any kitchen arrangement. Built-in cabinets and cupboards provide for this center of working operations.

Such built-in equipment can be so placed to fit any kitchen, regardless of its size and wall space. Made of best quality woods, and finished with high grade paints it adds cheer and color as well as convenience.

STOCK PRICES MOVED IRREGULARLY IN LIGHTEST SALES SINCE MARCH 17

NEW YORK, May 8.—(AP)— With much of the corrective readjustment from the recent break apparently out of the way, the stock market turned dull today. Prices shifted erratically and final prices showed a wide assortment of gains and losses, many of which were the smallest in about a week. Total sales were [illegible],755,990 shares the lightest volume since March 17.

In general the market's tone improved. U. S. Steel dipped to a new low for the year in the course of a brief bear drive during the morning, but quickly recovered. Short selling in this and other pivotal stocks encountered the strong resistance of substantial buying orders and the short interest surrendered after only brief skirmishes.

The strength of the copper shares developed on improved inquiry from consumers, who are making substantial purchases at 12 1-2 cents, and had a steadying effect. Short covering in this group, which has been losing ground steadily under the prospects of reduced dividends, went forward rapidly and leading shares like Anaconda and Kennecott moved up sharply, closing at or near the top for net gains of 2 to 5 points.

There was some surprise at the $[illegible] decrease in brokers loans. Although a decline had been expected in view of the recent break, it was believed that the borrowings for marke-down purchases as well as for new bond financing might offset to a considerable degree the heavy loan liquidation resulting from the slump in share quotations.

Not since November 1 last had so large a drop in the total been reported and not since March 21 had there been any decrease at all. The reduction brought the aggregate to $4,[illegible] compared with $5,551,000,- for a year ago.

The weekly statement of the federal reserve banks revealed a drop of about $[illegible] in bills and securities. Discounts were up about $4,000,000, while holdings of U. S. government securities fell off $2,000,000. There was another decline in note circulation and a reduction of about $[illegible] in the total of bills bought in the open market.

Money conditions remained favorable. The New York federal reserve bank cut its bill buying rate [illegible] per cent to 2 1-2 per cent [illegible] short maturities and 1-8 of one per cent to 2 5-8 for 60 to 90 day paper. Call money was freely offered at the renewal rate of 3 per cent which held all day. Time money, which had been easing for several consecutive days, was unchanged.

The morning selling in Steel carried the stock down to 165 3-4, a quarter of a point below its previous low minimum. On the rebound, however, it got back to 169 3-8 and closed at 168 1-4 for a net loss of only 1-4. Some of the motor shares were under pressure. Mack Truck went to another new low and suffered a 3 point net loss. Auburn Auto dropped [illegible] Allied Chemical tumbled 12 1-2, regaining all but 4 points. J. I. Case turned an 11 point loss into a gain of the same amount.

International Salt was carried to a new 1930 high of 121 7-8 on reports of higher earnings. Eastman Kodak sold off several points during one of the bear rallies but finished about a point higher. A few of the rails turned heavy, Atchison, Illinois Central and Missouri Pacific yielding 2 to 3 points.

Foreign exchanges improved. Sterling cables, which touched a new 1930 low on Wednesday, moved back to $4.85 15-16, up 3-32.

Wheat closed barely steady, with July 5-8 cent lower on smaller exports. Corn eased about a cent. Cotton, on the other hand, was firm with final quotations up 12 to 48 points. Sugar was unchanged to 2 cents higher.

NEW YORK, May 8.—(AP)—Fairfax Harrison, president of the Southern Railway Co., said today that because "industry has been in an air pocket" throughout the first quarter, seriously affecting railroad revenues, Southern Railway stockholders had inquired whether it was the policy of the board to maintain established dividends. "The answer is emphatically in the affirmative," Mr. Harrison said. "The board of the Southern Railway regards the present depression as temporary and will therefore do everything it lawfully and fairly may to maintain dividends without interruption.

The four months ended April 30 were $7,382,287, compared with $6,331,438 for the like period last year.

Subscription books on the offering of $17,581,000 Republic of Uruguay 6 per cent external sinking fund gold bonds have been closed, the issue having been oversubscribed. More than $9,000,000 of the bonds were placed in Uruguay, Europe and Canada. The securities were sold at 98 and interest to yield about 6.15 per cent

The New York federal reserve bank reported receipt of $82,000 in gold, chiefly from Latin America. There were no exports and there was no net change in gold earmarked for foreign account.

An 18-year-old floor page, Robert Palmer, acted as president of the New York stock exchange today, the eighth anniversary of the stock exchange's inauguration of Boys' day in industry. Palmer was chosen for the honor of assuming the duties of President E. H. H. Simmons for one day because of his outstanding record of service, attendance and scholastics.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, May 8.—(AP)— Curb market stocks worked irregularly lower today, in the dullest trading since March 17. Total sales were only 865,600 shares, compared with 2,540,900 on Monday.

Selling was fairly active for a time in the morning, but the market displayed a fairly firm undertone, and trading dwindled during the afternoon, as traders practically suspended operations pending publication of the weekly brokerage loan figures.

American Light and Traction new stock lost about 3 points. Electric Bond and Share, on the other hand, sold up a couple points, although it lost part of its gain later. American Superpower sold off 1 1-2 in active trading, but regained its loss and turned dull. United Power and Light A also sagged, then regained its loss and closed unchanged. American Gas, American Cities B, and American Commonwealth A lost a point or two, net.

Industrials were highly irregular. Aluminum company lost 4 points in a few sales, and Driver Harris, Copeland Products A, Niles Bement Pond, Libbey McNeil, Technicolor and U. S. Finishing lost 1 to more than 2 points. Radio Products dropped nearly 5 points to a new low. L'Aire Liquide declined 9 points to a new low for the year in a few odd lot sales. This foreign issue was a buoyant feature when listed on this market last fall, but after the autumn crash, has been comparatively inactive.

Oils were inclined to sag. Such issues as Gulf, Humble and Indiana closed a point or so lower. Cities Service sold off a point then rallied to close up a fraction. The few coppers on this market failed to participate notably in the rise of the copper shares on the big board, as the short interest had evidently been confined largely to the big board coppers. Newmont moved up 3 points, but Noranda moved in a narrow range.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, May 8.—(AP)—All deliveries of wheat except May dropped down today to new low price records for the season with May just escaping a break below $1.00. Crop news was unmistakably bearish, with European demand disappointing and France reported offering wheat to Great Britain at 98c a bushel. Under such circumstances buying power dwindled away on advances, but nevertheless sellers showed reluctance to continue pressing the market on declines.

Closing quotations on wheat were irregular, 5-8c lower to 1-4c higher, compared with yesterday's finish. Corn closed 3-4-1 1-2c down, oats a shade to 1-4c off, and provisions varying from 2c decline to 5c gain.

Unsettlement of the New York stock market and a late tumble in corn values contributed to nervousness shown today by the wheat trade. Downturns in corn prices were associated with enlarged rural offerings of corn, whereas shipping demand [illegible] for corn was not so good as recently has been the case. On the consequent downward swing of prices, December [illegible] outdid any bottom quotations [illegible] fore reached this season.

Numerous standing orders to purchase wheat at [illegible] and $1.00 a bushel, however, [illegible] today's declines and [illegible] only to check [illegible] was also helpful to [illegible] although [illegible] of the Liverpool [illegible] counted [illegible] wheat prices [illegible] did authoritative reports [illegible] of moisture [illegible] Canada [illegible] a factor [illegible] crop outlook. Provisions were sustained by upturns in the value of hogs.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Atlantic & Pacific Sales

[illegible] YORK, May 8—A steadily growing [illegible] ease in dollar sales is shown [illegible] made public today by head[illegible] of The Great Atlantic & Pa[illegible] Co. covering April. Sales for [illegible] week period ending April 26 [illegible] $46,127,606 against $77,324,068 [illegible] corresponding period in 1929, [illegible] an increase of $8,813,798 [illegible] percentage gain of 11.40.

[illegible] was even a greater increase [illegible] sold, since the lower level [illegible] food prices enables a customer to obtain more merchandise for [illegible] than last year. Figures for the [illegible] just closed were 404,319 compared with 359,129 for April, 1929, a [illegible] of 45,190 or 12.58 per cent. Adding [illegible] figures to those already announced shows that despite the recent [illegible] depression A. & P. sales have [illegible] a total of $68,335,658 for the [illegible] Sept. 1 to April 30 of this [illegible] the same period in 1928-[illegible] sales figures from Sept. 1, [illegible] April 30, 1930, were $712,720,-[illegible] compared with $644,385,318 for [illegible] months a year ago, representing [illegible] percentage increase of 10.6. TREND TO SIMPLE IN ARCHITECTURE

[illegible] present trend in architecture [illegible] the simple and unpretentious [illegible] of the early American and, coincident with this, our [illegible] and landscaping is improving, being adapted to the architecture of the home. A few years [illegible] felt that a large, and usually [illegible] iron dog or deer, set in a[illegible] arrangement of lawns and behind a severe looking iron [illegible] and a coat of paint on the exterior of the house every few years [illegible] that was needed to make the [illegible] of our homes attractive. The [illegible] and the grounds were more [illegible] forgotten in the search for [illegible] in the interior.

[illegible] gardening now seems to be well on [illegible] to being a strong competitor [illegible] as a pastime. Garden clubs [illegible] men and women are being organized in almost every town and community. But gardening, like golf, must be learned; even elementary [illegible] cannot be assimilated over night.

Plan For Use

The first requisite of a good garden is a good plan; gardens don't just grow. And too often they are disappointing because they were not planned to be used. They should have paved walks, not merely turf, for otherwise a shower or heavy dew will keep one out of the garden unless the walks dry off quickly. Common brick, tile, slate or variegated stone make charming walks, whether set in sand over a well drained base of stone or cinders, or in cement.

A rustic fence of slender saplings woven in wire, or a brick, stucco or stone wall frequently adds a necessary note to the garden. And gardens should have water, in pools and fountains. Fortunately for the small home owner this practice is not quite so expensive as it used to be. Fountains now operate electrically, a concealed pump throwing the water up from the basin, to which it returns, with only the water that evaporates or is blown away being replaced through an automatic valve on the supply main.

Of similar utility, but more remote from the house are garden pavilions or tea houses located to catch a comfortable breeze or to overlook the garden. A floor of tile or slate, a superstructure of wood, brick or cement a roof matching that of the house; perhaps screens of rustproof cloth in metal frames, and even winter windows of the new health glass for a sheltered sun bath or cooler days, comprise the principal structural elements. Equipment should include lights, convenience outlets, an electric fan, and a telephone connection.

COMMON BRICK FAVORITE MATERIAL FOR FIREPLACES

The growth of the appeal of fireplaces to the American homebuilder is a notable feature of contemporaneous architectural development. Where a few years ago, a fireplace was an occasional feature of the living room, small homes now include this feature in dining room and one or more of the master bedrooms.

Living room fireplaces catch the eye and provide a central feature around which the rest of the furnishings are balanced.

Common brick has long been a popular material for this use. It is equally adaptable in formal and informal settings. Slight irregularities and the wide variety of shadings in this brick make it very "flexible" and adaptable in the hands of the architect.

SAVING TIME AND LABOR

Of the many comforts, conveniences and time savers that have come into the life of the modern housewife during the past few years, probably nothing has produced more pleasure and satisfaction than electrical refrigeration. It is responsible for many early shopping expeditions of the housewife, whereby the saving of money at a sale is made possible, only because the iceman's hours for tracking up the kitchen floor are no longer a household problem. Food keeps fresh for a longer period, and the old Saturday morning bugaboo—cleaning the ice box and drain pipes—becomes a memory of the dim and distant past.

It is not essential that modern kitchens look like laboratories or hospital operating rooms in order to be sanitary, and we need not, after all, be unimaginative for the sake of cleanliness. Kitchens may be spic and span and still be exceedingly attractive.

Instead of gleaming white woodwork, white tiles, white stoves, all of which are attractive and inviting, nevertheless, there is no reason why the American kitchen should not be a symphony of color. The effect of color upon the health and happiness of individuals has been proven scientifically to be not unlike the effect of music upon the soul. Gay designs in colorful tiles, plus the ease with which they are kept clean, make a most appropriate flooring for the modern kitchen. If one's purse does not permit tile, then colorful linoleums may be used.

USE QUALITY MATERIALS

It pays in the long run to figure your home building problems in terms of service and value. It is poor business to "skimp and skin" to save a few dollars on the initial cost if in the end you have a continual outlay for repairs. You can build with cheap materials and poor workmanship, you can cut and prune costs, you can substitute with inferior materials and equipment. If, however, at the end of six months the roof leaks, the plumbing balks, the paint peels—don't blame the roof, plumbing or paint.

It pays to use quality materials. If anything goes wrong, if the plumbing, heating or piping fails, the makers of quality materials are ready to stand back of their products. Their reputation is at stake. They value it more highly than the fast profits they get. True economy in home building means getting full value for the dollars you spend. Quality materials will give you service, and service means value. It is worth while to remember this point in selecting your materials.

KEEP BOILER FILLED DURING SUMMER TIME

When the fire is drawn from a steam or hot water heating system in warm weather, and the system is unused, it is best to leave the water in the boiler and pipes as a protection from rust. Strange as it may seem, the interiors of boilers and pipes rust more readily when exposed to air than when covered with water. In the navy, boilers not in use are always kept filled with water for this reason.

Many householders draw off the water when the fire is put out in summer, and do not refill the system until the fire is built again at the approach of cold weather. This is a mistake for the reason just stated. When the water has remained in a steam or hot water system all summer, however, it should be drawn off before the fire is started in the fall, so as to get rid of rust, dirt and sediment, and the system should be filled with clean water.

PREPARE NOW FOR NEXT SEASON'S HEATING

Now is the time to get ready for next winter while the shortcomings of the present heating system—inadequate radiation, over-large fuel bills, and extra labor—are fresh in mind, and while the heating equipment is on the shelf for the summer.

Present day engineering methods and practices make it unnecessary to gamble on the worth of whatever system may be installed. One may now obtain as satisfactory as with an automobile.

Nor is the question of size one to stump the contractor; equipment is sold with a guarantee that each boiler will provide a specified amount of heat when it is connected to a correctly installed system and that recognized standard requirements are followed.

Boilers No Longer Eyesores

With the growing popularity of the basement recreation room the heating boiler has grown out of the eyesore class. Latest models, round and square, are encased in a steel jacket finished with vitreous enamel, with doors and trim of a contrasting color. Set in a niche in the recreation room, they appear to be merely unusual pieces of furniture.

Boilers should be chosen for adaptability to various fuels, particularly with a view to possible oil burner installation later. Boilers are now specially designed for ready adaptation to any good oil burner. They are given the plentiful combustion space and long fire travel especially important with oil burning. Beneath their attractive jackets a thick coat of rock wool insulation prevent loss of heat.

The best of heating equipment is within the price class of the small home owner. Wide range in models and sizes makes the best available in the very small bungalow as well as the pretentious mansion. The care which goes into the manufacture of good heating equipment makes it easy for anyone to "make his own summer with his own coals."

WINDOW CURTAINS CAN ADD BEAUTY TO HOME

Are your windows curtained for beauty, or for service, or have you combined these two features in the curtains of your home?

"Attractive curtains," says Miss Mary Aleen Davis of the U. S. bureau of home economics, "are not accidents." In her bulletin entitled, "Principles of Window Curtaining," Miss Davis writes: "To be useful curtains must not conceal an attractive view, prevent adequate ventilation, or shut out too much daylight. They should soften and diffuse the light entering the room and break the severe lines of the wooden casing around the window. Good design requires that curtains have strong lines and pleasing proportions and that through a careful choice of texture and color they link together the furnishings of the room.

"In planning curtains the attention cannot be confined to the window alone. The window and the room cannot appear at their best if the relation of the window to the rest of the room has been ignored.

"In selecting the color for draperies, consider walls, floor, woodwork, and all the furnishings of the rooms. When the draperies are figured a more harmonious effect is gained by selecting a fabric in which the background is the same color as the walls, only slightly darker and in which the principal color in the design repeats the color of the rug or upholstery.

"The window curtains form with the walls, floor and ceiling the background for the furniture and occupants of the room. The curtains may give accent to the room through appropriate choice of color and line, but in most cases they should be subordinate in interest. Only in exceptional cases should the window attract and hold the attention. A window of adequate size opening out on a lovely view or one that is the only attractive feature in a hallway may be made the center of interest.

"Each room may have one or more centers of interest. They must be so planned that each holds its place without trespassing on the others. If the windows vie with the fireplace, the fireplace with the rugs, and the rugs with the davenport for dominance, the room lacks repose. The lines, mass, color and texture of the draperies must be so carefully planned that they blend quietly into the rest of the room."

JUST THIS AND JUST THAT

Disregarding all superstitions about the bad luck that pursues those who sing before breakfast, Sybil merrily hummed a tune as she set the table. From the bathroom came the homely sounds of Harry struggling with his beard to the usual more or less musical accompaniment, and the coffee pot on the stove added its voice to the chorus. It seemed a morning for song.

Putting on his coat, Harry came into the tiny dining room of the apartment seated himself at the table, and started on his orange. As she poured his coffee, Sybil snatched the opportunity to tweak her husband's ear.

"Just think, Harry," she said gayly, "I have nothing to do today but loaf. And maybe I'm not going to enjoy it! What a relief it is not to have to go to that old office any more."

Harry, with his mouth full, uttered a sympathetic grunt. Ever since their marriage Sybil had kept on with her job, and he knew it had not been easy for her. She had rushed in the morning to get the dishes done and the beds made, rushed at noon to do the buying, and rushed in the evening to have dinner ready at a decent hour.

No wonder that Harry's vest buttons got dangerously loose before they were tightened, and that the pile of undarned socks sometimes attained disheartening proportions. He had realized that things were rather hard for her, and he had never raised his voice in complaint. But now that his salary had been substantially increased and Sybil had given up her job, he was just as glad as she was.

"Honestly, I don't know what I'm going to do with all my time," she went on as she started her own breakfast. "I'll never find enough to keep me busy around this little apartment."

"I'll bet I could make some suggestions," he teased.

"Well, you don't need to," Sybil replied promptly. "I'm going to have one grand loaf on this first day of freedom. As soon as you are out of the door I am going to snuggle down on that davenport with a book; and if you come home and find the breakfast dishes still unwashed and the beds unmade, you don't need to be surprised."

"It's all right with me," he said. "I don't blame you a bit."

Five minutes later the door banged behind Harry as he darted off to catch his train. Sybil turned, breathed a luxurious sigh, and threw herself upon the davenport. Oh, how wonderful it was not to have to hurry! Her book lay on the end table near her. She picked it up, found her place, and started to read, but after a few minutes her attention wandered.

After all, she would feel more like loafing if she got the beds made and those dishes done. She sang happily as she finished the dishes. Then, as she put the butter away, she screwed up her nose with distaste. She had been wanting to give that refrigerator a good cleaning for weeks. She just couldn't let it go another minute!

She cleaned the refrigerator, which was quite a job. Then her eyes fell on the stove. She wished that she had a new stove in a pretty color, but since this one was black, a little blackening wouldn't hurt it any. At last the stove was finished, and with the consciousness of work well done she returned to her book with added zest.

A dozen more pages were read, which brought her to the part in the story where the heroine was serving tea. Tea—cakes—those little chocolate wafers that Harry loved. She hadn't made them for months. She'd just stir up a batch of them and surprise him when he came home.

In the kitchen she found that she needed sugar. As long as she was going to the store anyway she made out a shopping list and finally came home with her arms loaded. Then she mixed up the wafers, put them in the oven and had her lunch. Well, the morning's work had certainly earned her an afternoon's leisure.

Just as she settled to her book the tailor's boy brought back one of Harry's suits. As she hung it up she decided that in the future she would press her husband's suits. There was no sense in paying out all that money when she could do it just as well. But could she? Why not find out? She picked up the two unpressed suits in the closet and carried them to the kitchen. It was rather a slow job, for she wasn't satisfied until the trousers had razor blade creases, but when she had finished she knew that the professional tailors had a real rival.

She discovered with a start of amazement that it was almost 5:30. With a horrible fear that she might be late with dinner, she dashed to the kitchen. She would make baking powder biscuits! Forty minutes later Harry burst into the apartment with a cheery greeting.

"Hello," he cried. "How was the day of loafing? Did you finish your book?"

"Why, no, I didn't, Harry," she admitted. "Somehow I didn't get around to it. I really didn't do much today—just a little of this and a little of that. But the time seems to go so fast when you are just loafing."

That Tree

Have you not heard of a beautiful tree
That blooms in this land of the brave and the free?
Its boughs are all laden with wonderful toys,
For sweet little maidens and dear little boys.
There are packets and packages, all sorts and sizes,
Filled with love's foolish and loving surprises—
A rattle for baby, for Tommy a sled;
There are boxes and bundles, all tied up with red—
A work bag for sister, a tool chest for brother,
A watch chain for father, a necklace for mother,
A picture for auntie, for uncle a tie;
Its branches are spreading, a feast for the eye;
Pop-corn and candy all kinds that are sold,
While right at the top shines a bright star of gold.
I couldn't begin to go through the list,
But I do know for certain that none will be missed
To share in the gifts of this wonderful tree,
Friend or relation, or stranger maybe.
All the trees of the forest are out in the storm,
But this one shall stay in the light and the warm.
This is the tree that hears when we sing,
Sees all our joy in the offerings we bring;
Radiant with tinsel, glorious with light,
My childhood's best dreams were centered in thee,
Wonderful, glorious, beautiful tree.

ETHEL C. TRITTON

A young okapi, one of the rarest of large animals and the latest to be discovered, has been brought out of its native jungles by a missionary, Brother Joseph Hutsebaut, and is now living in a Belgian zoological park with every apparent intention of continuing to do so. An earlier attempt was made to introduce this rare animal to Europe in 1919, but the specimen died after two months in captivity. This time a more careful program was followed. The young okapi was brought up by hand by the naturalist-missionary, and fed on bananas and Congo-raised European plants at the mission station until it had made the transition in diet successfully. A personally-conducted voyage to Belgium followed, under the personal auspices of Queen Elizabeth. Brother Joseph, who accomplished this unusual zoological feat, has already built a reputation for himself by his work in the domestication of the African elephant, hitherto regarded as too intractable for human handling.

Counted 36 Planes

Between 10:20 and 11 o'clock this morning 36 planes of the Atlantic navy fleet passed over New London en route from Curtiss field, Long Island, to Boston. The planes first appeared from the southwest and were traveling at a fast rate of speed. The winged fighters flew over the heart of the city and continued to a point opposite the submarine base when the planes headed for Boston. Five of the planes made a stop at the flying field in Groton, remaining there two hours, after which they departed for their destination. The fleet left Boston for Curtiss field late this afternoon.

Summer weather again prevailed today, the mercury reaching 86 at 2:30. A large crowd of pleasure seekers made the trip to Ocean Beach, many going by trolley cars and to accommodate the crowd open cars were again used.

RESTAURANT RAIDED—NAPLES AND WIFE UNDER BONDS

Joseph and Elizabeth Naples, husband and wife, residing at 189 Bank street, where they conduct the Venice restaurant, were in the police court this morning, charged with maintaining a house of ill fame. The accused requested a continuance and the case went over to Saturday. Naples and his wife furnished a surety on their respective bonds of $1,000, Carmine Zozzoras becoming surety. The arrest of Naples and his wife resulted when a raiding squad consisting of Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith, Sergeant John Courtney and Patrolmen Louis Pine and Clyde Murphy, went to the restaurant provided with a warrant for the arrest of the man and woman, also having a search warrant. The officers did not find anybody in the restaurant except Naples and his wife and a search of the two floors used for the conduct of the business and the residence of the proprietor and proprietress did not reveal liquor, the nearest to beverages of alcoholic content being found in a case of near-beer. It is understood that the raid and arrest of Naples and his wife was the result of allegations made by members of the United States coast guard. An effort will be made to have the uniformed witnesses against Naples and his wife in court Saturday next.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Tom Thumb Golf Played at Night

As the sandlots made baseball America's "great National game," so Tom Thumb Golf promises to popularize the ancient Scotch pastime.

Tom Thumb Golf, the fascinating sport which has swept through the south, has invaded the north with the passing of winter and the arrival of pleasant weather. Indications are that the game will prove just as much of a craze in the northern cities as it has south of the Mason and Dixon line.

Almost without exception, every live-wire community is astir, preparing for one or more of the popular Tom Thumb Golf Courses. Not only does this pleasant pastime prove itself a whiz by day, but because of its brightly illumined setting at night, it affords thousands of golf enthusiasts an opportunity to enjoy their favorite sport to the nth degree.

Tom Thumb Golf is a unique layout of a miniature 18-hole golf course, simple, entertaining, yet tricky in its play, furnishing what perhaps no other American sport has done to date by delighting its fans in a great New Outdoor Sport, played both day and night.

It is predicted that before the summer season is over, there will be a Tom Thumb Golf Course dotting every community which has heard about it. See adv.

Breed Theatre

New York, from river to river, serves as the background for a surprising amount of entertainment in "The Big Party," the Fox Movietone production which opened at the Breed theatre yesterday.

In its swift and amusing progress the film takes us from cheap nickle-and-dime stores to ultra-ultra modistes' establishments, from dingy tenements to the most luxurious apartments, from 50-cent-table d'hote cafes to glittering night clubs, while the romance of the slangy but lovable shop girl is carried out to everyone's complete satisfaction.

John Blystone, the director who has given us such noteworthy pictures as "The Sky Hawk" and "Mother Knows Best," has again scored with his sympathetic and human treatment of his characters and his deft telling of his story against its kaleidoscopic settings. Dixie Lee, whose blonde beauty won her general approbation in her portrayals with "Why Leave Home?" and "Let's Go Places," gives a splendid performance in this, her first leading role. Sue Carol and Walter Catlett are splendid in the other featured parts.

The supporting cast is perfectly chosen, headed by such favorites as "Whispering" Jack Smith, Frank Albertson and Richard Keene. Douglas Gilmore, Ilka Chase, Charles Judels, Elizabeth Patterson and Dorothy Brown also enact noteworthy roles. Catlett and Judels are especially funny as the two bickering and wife-dodging partners and Harlan Thompson's story and dialog is both clever and entertaining. The song numbers, particularly "Bluer Than Blue Over You" and "I'm Climbing Up a Rainbow," are catchy and are already becoming popular.

Broadway Theatre

With mid-August weather boldly intruding the first week in May, Norwich people have found a cool spot at the Broadway theatre, where the giant ventilating fan dispenses cool breezes without a draught, completely changing the air in the theatre every four minutes. Correctly chilled water at the sanitary drinking fountain is another hot weather comfort. With today's showings, S. S. Van Dine's most exciting mystery, "The Benson Murder Case," with William Powell as Philo Vance, the society detective, comes to a close, and tomorrow a hot-weather treat, frisky Maurice Chevalier, that lovable and oh so loving Frenchman, opens a brief engagement in his latest hit, "The Big Pond," in which Chevalier gets away from musical comedy and settles down to learn the mysteries of American big business. His engaging smile and infectious laugh are with him, however, in greater quantity than ever, and with lovely Claudette Colbert, the dainty and cuddly heroine of "The Lady Lies," as his reason for coming to America, he furnishes te fastest and funniest production of his whole career. Maurice has several song hits which he delivers as only he can do it. The short featurettes are especially booked for hot weather enjoyment, including Louise Fazenda in an Apache burlesque comedy, "So This is Paris Green"; Johnny Marvin, the radio and record star; Eddie Buzzell in a cool Klondike travesty, "Hello Thar"; York and Johnson, vocal favorites, and the latest Paramount Sound News.

Note 102 Navy Planes

Many of the local residents saw the three squadrons pass over the village Thursday morning about 10:50 o'clock. Many of the people counted the planes as they went over and there were many different estimates of the number of the planes. In the three squadrons there were 102 navy airplanes.

The sixth anniversary mass of requiem for the soul of Sister Mary [illegible] was offered at St. Mary's Memorial church on Tuesday morning at 7:30 o'clock by the pastor, Rev. George J. Donohue.

The committee appointed was Mrs. Charles Foster, Mrs. Jabez West, Mrs. John McNeely, Mrs. William Young, Miss Nellie Hayes. The hostesses, Mrs. Thomas Haslam, Mrs. Burton, Mrs. William Gorton, Mrs. Ringland and Mrs. Pedrick served a very delicious luncheon after the meeting. OCCUPANTS OF KEHOE CAR TESTIFY IN HIS TRIAL ON MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

Four of the five surviving members of the party of six who were in the automobile of John T. Kehoe on the night of April 1 testified Thursday in the superior court at New London in the trial of Kehoe on a manslaughtr charge for the death of Mrs. Roselda LaVallee Riley, 28, of this city, the sixth member of the party.

Besides the accused man, those to testify were Mrs. Beatrice Frenette, Miss Antoinette Dominique, and Mrs. Josephine Bessette, all of this city.

Paul Champlin, the other man in the automobile party, whose home is at 207 West Main street, has fled the city, according to the statement of Dputy Sheriff Oscar H. Main, who tried to serve a subpoena on him. Both the men were employed in the same ward at the Norwich state hospital.

The trial is before Judge Allyn L. Brown and a jury and the state is charging that Kehoe was driving recklessly and was under the influence of liquor at the time his car, a Nash roadster, left the road at Dead Man's curve on the Military highway, went through a fence and down a bank, causing the death of Mrs. Riley, who was crushed under the car.

Will Continue Friday Morning

Examination of Kehoe had been concluded when court adjourned for the day Thursday afternoon, but the trial is to be resumed this (Friday) morning and it is expected the case can reach the jury before the day is over.

Edmund W. Perkins as public defender is counsel for Kehoe who has been in jail since his arrest, as he has not been able to raise bonds. His wife spent the day in the court room and talked to him on several occasions.

State Attorney Arthur M. Brown is prosecuting the case.

Jury Chosen

The following is the jury chosen in the case:

New London—Thomas H. Troland. Groton—James Paul Brown. Stonington—James Bliven, Amos E. Burdick and George H. Meschendorf. Montville—Frank H. Rogers, David Estey and William Maynard. Ledyard—Calvin R. Main, Jr. Waterford—Andrew R. Mussell. East Lyme—Richard Beach.

State Policemen Testify

Two state policemen from the Groton barracks, William E. Mackenzie and John H. Smith, were the first to testify for the state.

State Policeman Smith testified that the car was overturned, with four wheels in the air and he identified an empty half pint bottle which he said he found underneath the overturned car. The state policeman also testified that when Kehoe was brought back to the scene of the accident by State Policeman Mackenzie, he (Smith) observed Kehoe had been drinking. There was the odor of some alcoholic beverage on his breath.

Mrs. Frenette Testifies

Mrs. Beatrice Frenette, 184 Talman street, who said she was married six years ago in August, testified that Kehoe and Paul Champlin came to her house in Kehoe's Nash roadster and Mrs. Rose Riley also came there. She and Mrs. Riley, with Kehoe and Champlin, took a ride to Baltic, Mrs. Riley sitting on Champlin's lap. They returned and stopped at the Frenette house, whee each had a couple of drinks before they left for Ocean Beach.

"Where did you get the drinks?" questioned State Attorney Brown.

"Out of that bottle," was the witness' answer, indicating the bottle on the table in the court room.

"Champlin had the bottle," the witness said.

"What was it," asked the state attorney.

"Gin," the witness responded, and later said that Champlin emptied the bottle on the way home. She said she saw Kehoe take two drinks before they left Norwich.

Mrs. Frenette told of going to Ocean Beach and then starting for home, on the way picking up Mrs. Josephine Bessette and Miss Antoinette Dominique, who were waiting for the bus at the submarine base main gate.

Said "Step On It"

After leaving the base, with the six people in the car, Mrs. Riley who was sitting up on the top, told the driver to step on it and all the others in the party also said that except Mrs. Bessette who said to go slower. Mrs. Riley, the witness said, told Mrs. Bessette not to be a fool but to let him step on it. The witness said Kehoe was driving fast, but was slowing down on the curves.

Some distance before they reached the curve, Mrs. Frenette said the speedometer showed 45 miles an hour and when they came to the curve Kehoe jammed the brakes on, the car went onto the shoulder of the road and through the fence and down the bank.

She said she and Kehoe and Champlin were under the car, Mrs. Bessette was against a tree, and Mrs. Riley was under the rear part of the car. When they got help to raise the car, she was the one who pulled Mrs. Riley out and then knew she was dead.

Miss Antoinette Dominique, 249 Yantic street, this city, testified that she and Mrs. Bessette had been to a dance at the submarine base and were waiting for the bus there when the Kehoe car came along. The witness said she sat on the roadster's top behind Kehoe, with her feet behind Kehoe's back. Next to her was Champlin and next Mrs. Riley, all on the top, with their feet down in front. The witness said Mrs. Riley was the first to urge more speed, saying to Kehoe, "Step on it; whoopee," and she and the others joined in, except Mrs. Bessette, who told Kehoe to go slower.

On cross-examination, Miss Dominick said there was no sign on the stone post to show the curve on the night of the accident.

Mrs. Josephine Bessette, 30, of 201 Yantic street, this city, the mother of five children, testified that she was the one who told Kehoe not to go so fast, saying, "My God, don't go so fast." Then Rosy Riley pushed her in the side with her elbow and said "not to be a fool, you won't be killed."

She said that she was sitting in the seat when she first got into the Kehoe roadster but Champlin was taken sick and had to get out. When he got in again he sat where she had been in the seat of the car and she took his place on the top.

All the women witnesses were asked if they saw any other car at the time of the accident and all said "No."

Can't Find Champlin

Deputy Sheriff Oscar H. Main of this city was called to the stand, testifying that he had been given a subpoena to summon Paul Champlin as a witness to come to court but hadn't been able to find him. The deputy sheriff said Champlin's mother said Champlin had been away three or four days and she didn't know where he is.

Medical Examiner Testifies

Dr. N. B. Lewis of this city, medical examiner for the town of Ledyard, testified to going to the scene of the accident with Coroner E. G. McKay about midnight on the night of the accident. Kehoe was not there then, but the medical examiner saw Kehoe there about two hours later in the coroner's car when the coroner was taking Kehoe's statement.

Public Defender Perkins objected to a question from State Attorney Brown whether Kehoe was under the influence of liquor then, but Judge Brown allowed the question and Dr. Lewis said Kehoe had unquestionably had had some intoxicating liquor, but he would not say he was drunk then, but he was able to act very intelligently. The odor of liquor was very strong on Kehoe's breath, the doctor said.

At this point the state rested and after a recess the defense testimony was taken up.

Accused Man Testifies

The accused man was called to the stand to testify in his own defense. He said be had been employed for six months at the Norwich State hospital where his wife had also been employed, but she was residing in Norwich at the time of the accident, having got through at the hospital some time before.

He told of visiting Mrs. Frenette's house, leaving there about 8:45, on the way to Ocean Beach, stopping at the state hospital on the way for his overcoat. They left Ocean Beach about 10:30 with himself, Champlin, Mrs. Riley and Mrs. Frenette in the car. At the submarine base he picked up the two girl friends of Mrs. Frenette. At that time three of the party were sitting on the seat of the roadster and three on the closed down top. At the time of the accident, Kehoe said he was driving. Mrs. Frenette was sitting next to him and Champlin on the right. The other three people were sitting on the folded down top. Kehoe said he had plenty of room to drive.

Brakes and lights on the Nash roadster he was driving were in good condition, Kehoe said. This was the first time he had been over the road at night, and only three times over it previously. His speed from the submarine base had been 35 and 40 miles an hour.

Kehoe said that an approaching car which had partly made the turn at Dead Man's curve blinded him and he got off onto the soft shoulder of the road.

Kehoe told of getting Mrs. Frenette out from under the car, but Champlin was stuck under it and Kehoe started up the road where he stopped an autoist who drove back and helped get Champlin out and then took Kehoe to the Norwich State hospital where Kehoe telephoned to his wife, to the state police and the Backus hospital.

Kehoe said he had heard the people in his car saying to step on it and another saying to go slower, but he was driving his own way and not paying any attention to these remarks. He told of taking a sip out of the bottle which Champlin had at Mrs. Frenete's house and also to taking another drink, but said these had had no effect upon him.

On cross-examination Kehoe said that he and Champlin had been at Mrs. Frenette's house the night before the accident and had arranged to come back the following night. After they got there Mrs. Riley came. Kehoe said he had never seen her before and he thought she came to the Frenette house because she had an appointment to meet another fellow there. This fellow didn't come so she went with them.

While they were at the Frenette house Mrs. Frenette had a telephone message from a traveling salesman who "wanted to meet her in the worst way," the witness said, but Mrs. Frenette didn't want to meet the man and asked Kehoe to take her for a ride so she wouldn't be there when the salesman came. Kehoe said Champlin went out of the house and got the half pint of gin. He didn't know where Champlin got the gin and he didn't see anyone passing the bottle around in the car.

Kehoe denied that he was going 45 miles an hour at Dead Man's curve, and said that Mrs. Frenette was mistaken when she said that was his speed and that all the women were mistaken when they said there was no other approaching car at the time of the accident.

TAFTVILLE

Attend Baldwin's auction today at 3 o'clock.—adv.

William Fournier of Providence street is to leave Saturday to spend the summer on his farm in Vermont.

Mrs. Richard B. Snow of North C street is visiting her sister, Mrs. Howard H. Payne of Pawtucket, R. I.

The members of Court Wequonnoc, No. 88, Foresters of America, met Thursday evening with Chief Ranger Patrick J. Fogarty presiding.

When memorial exercises are held the latter part of this month for the soldiers of France who are buried in the old cemetery in Norwich Town, J. Omer Tellier, basso of Merchants avenue, is to sing the Marseillaise.

Slightly earlier this year, the cliffs west of North B street and North Third avenue are covered with white dogwood blossoms, making a pretty sight for people who pass through those streets.

Most all the residents of the town, including school children, ran out of doors Thursday morning to see the airplane squadron en route for Boston, passing directly over the village. About 4:30 in the afternoon, a few of the planes were noted returning in the direction of New York.

Hormidas Gladue, overseer of the No. 2 carding department at the local mills who has been a patient at the William W. Backus hospital for the past several weeks following an accident in which he was struck by an automobile while crossing the street when leaving his work, has returned to his home on Providence street. His many friends are pleased to learn that he is getting along very well, considering the serious nature of his injuries, consisting of a broken collarbone, broken ribs, a severe scalp wound, and numerous bruises.

SHOWS OLD VIEW OF FRANKLIN SQUARE VICINITY

George Dufner, baker at Uncas-on-Thames, is one of a few Norwich men who possesses a picture of Franklin square, as it appeared about 75 years ago. The picture, taken from Shannon corner, shows the old Norwich bank, where the Shannon building now stands, also, a two story and a half building, the site of which is occupied by the Norwich Savings bank building, the original Wauregan hotel building, and three of the old time volunteer fire companies pumping water to a fire off Cliff street, in the vicinity of the square.

Mr. Dufner served six years as a member of the old volunteer fire department, and his certificate of service, dated February 17, 1900, shows the picture above mentioned. The certificate is signed by P. H. Harriman, J. J. Willis and A. S. Comstock, who comprised the board of fire commissioners at that time.

Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court has granted a temporary injunction in favor of the New London Malt Co. of New London against the National Economy Stores, Inc., of this state, which covers in New London county and enjoins the defendant stores from selling or offering for sale malt syrup labeled similar to that sold by the New London concern.

Judge Brown gives the following memorandum of decision which has been filed with Clerk John H. Walker of the superior court:

By this proceeding the plaintiff seeks a temporary injunction prohibiting the defendant from selling hop-flavored malt syrup under the name of "Eagle Brand Malthop," and under a label of the content, style, form and appearance of Exhibit A, in evidence. The plaintiff claims the exclusive right to use the word "Eagle," referring to a brand of malt syrup offered for sale and also the exclusive right to use the word "Malthop," as descriptive of the same when lettered in the form, and enclosed in the diamond pattern.

For the purpose of determining the present question at least, I find that the predecessor of the plaintiff in 1921 originated the trade-mark and label disclosed by Exhibit A, to use in marketing its malt syrup, and that either the plaintiff or its predecessor has ever since used the same for this purpose. I similarly further find, whatever doubt there may be as to the plaintiff's predecessor being the first to appropriate and use the term, "Eagle," in connection with the brand in labeling its product, that it was the first to design, appropriate and use the part of the label Exhibit A consisting of the word "Malthop," in the form there printed, and enclosed in its diamond border. This trademark was original and distinctive.

"The right to a trade-mark does not depend on originality, but is acquired and retained by appropriation and use. It is ordinarily founded on priority of appropriation; that is to say, the claimant of the trade mark must have been the first to use or employ the mark on like articles of production." To this sign, device, or mark, by which to distinguish its product from similar products of rival dealers, the plaintiff acquired a right, which, on two occasions when asseted against competitors attempting to usurp it by use in its sales territory, was promptly recognized.

It is clear from a comparison of Exhibit F, the label used by the defendant in marketing its product by its conduct here complained of, that the defendant's label contains an exact facsimile of this distinctive trade-mark of the plaintiff, and is so contemplated to mislead prospective customers to the plaintiff's loss. Against this the plaintiff is entitled to injunction relief.

A temporary injunction may issue restraining the defendant from selling or offering for sale malt syrup labeled with the plaintiff's distinctive trade-mark above referred to, within the confines of New London county, under penalty of $1,000, and until further order of court, upon the plaintiff's providing a sufficient bond in the amount of $1,000.

MOTOR VEHICLE CASES INCREASE IN COURT

An average of one in every twelve of the operators licensed to drive in Connecticut were tried by the courts of the state for violations of the motor vehicle laws during 1929, according to reports made by the courts to the state motor vehicle department. There were 27,588 cases tried, an increase over the previous year of 2,690. These cases included only offenses against the state laws and not violations of city ordinances.

Disciplinary action of some kind was taken in a majority of the cases, only 761 of those tried being found not guilty, while the number of absolute nolles was 3,474. More than half of the offenders were made to pay fines, 13,358 persons paying $402,615.73. There was also a total bill of costs against offenders which amounted to $221,261.47. The total of fines increased over that for the previous year by $27,866.43, and the costs by $33,012.85.

Jail sentences were given to 413 offenders. The amount of these sentences, plus the time served in many cases in working out imposed fines, amounted to 43,745 days in jail.

The most severe sentences were imposed for violation of the law against driving while under the influence of liquor. More than half of the total of jail sentences and almost half of the total of fines were imposed for drunken driving. Of the 1,983 persons tried on this charge, only 80 were found not guilty and discharged, 986 were fined, 269 were sent to jail, 122 cases were nolled, and disciplinary action, such as suspension or probation was taken in the other cases.

Violators of speeding and reckless driving laws were the most numerous. There were 5,007 cases of speeding and 4,438 of reckless driving. Both types of offense increased considerably during 1929. Other violations included driving without obtaining operator's license, 2,673; failure to obey traffic signal, 2,930; violating rules of the road, 1,927; defective or illegal equipment, 1,878; driving unregistered vehicles, 481; failure to carry license, 968; evading responsibility, 533; failure to grant right of way, 516; passing standing trolley cars, 233; overloading commercial vehicles, 393; parking without lights, 232; miscellaneous, 9,391.

TURKEY GROWERS TO INCREASE THEIR OUTPUT

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, May 8—A survey of 92 turkey growers in Connecticut by the state department of agriculture indicates that these growers expect to grow and hatch this season 28,530 poults, an increase of 45 per cent above the figures for last year, according to Dr. E. E. Perregaux, marketing specialist at the State college, in a radio talk over station WCAC. Eighty-two per cent of these are to be Bronze turkeys, 10 per cent Narragansett and the remainder distributed among the several different breeds.

Of the 16,451 poults bought or raised last year by these 92 growers, 72 per cent were raised to maturity, the economist stated. Bronze turkeys predominated last year as they will this season. Despite the fact that Thanksgiving and turkey are naturally associated, only 32 per cent of the crop was sold at that time, 26 per cent between Thanksgiving and Christmas and 26 per cent after the holidays. Nearly three per cent are for sale now, and 13 per cent are being kept for breeding.

Prices for the birds sold at wholesale averaged approximately 44 cents for live birds and 52 cents a pound dressed; retail prices for live and dressed birds were 52 and 61 cents a pound. The best prices were obtained at Thanksgiving time, Dr. Perregaux said.

Radox Brings Foot Comfort To Ameica

Nothing Like It Ever Sold by Druggists Before

CORNS — CALLOUSES — BURNING FEET

Now you can buy Radox in America at any up to date drug store. Lee and Osgood is selling dozens of packages a day.

Three or 4 baths according to directions and your corns and callouses are gone, your tired burning aching feet are changed to strong vigorous ones and bear this in mind—

If Radox doesn't do as advertised—money back.

Getting a corn out needs only a few Radox footbaths. In the last few years millions of packets of Radox have been sold to corn sufferers. Here is a typical letter:—

"My wife had a very bad corn for several years on the ball of the foot, and four small ones on the toes, also hard skin which was very painful. After a few soakings in a Radox footbath the hard skin began to peel off, and the corns came right out after a week. It is a pleasure for her to walk now." E. S.

1st November, 1929.

Radox contains four different Salts. One banishes odor, one is antiseptic, one softens the water, and one releases oxygen which carries the softening salts right to the roots of corns which are thus loosened so that they can be lifted out bodily. Only Radox contains this fourfold combination.

NORWICH MEN TO TELL OF CITIZEN TRAINING CAMPS

This (Friday) evening at 8 o'clock a meeting will be held at room 221, Thayer building, headquarters of the Robert O. Fletcher Post, No. 4, The American Legion, for the purpose of acquainting all the young men of the city or county between the ages of 17 and 21 who are interested in attending this year's course at the citizen's military training camps with the proceedure necessary for attendance at these camps. A detailed explanation will be given them of what these camps have to offer by two local young men who are going into the third year or white course. These young students, John Mingo who will attend the camp at Fort Ethan Allen, and John Murphy who is to go to Fort Adams, R. I., will have an interesting story to tell the prospective candidates and whether or not those that attend sign up for the camp it will give them a great deal of information about this movement of the government.

Fletcher post invites all those who can, prospective candidates and their parents, to come to this meeting. The best testimonial of the results obtained by the citizens' military training camps is found in the unanimous approval of candidates, parents and public spirited business men. The young men return to their homes not only improved in physical condition by the regular life of the camps, but also stimulated mentally and morally by the training. The number to be accepted is limited and all who apply can not be accommodated so it is advisable to get an early start.

Massachusetts is already over its allotment and is waiting with a list of candidates to fill up the quota of Connecticut when the time limit is up. This course brings no expense to parents and gives to the young man a month of real enjoyment as will be explained at this meeting. It is a matter that is well worth investigating by any parent.

[illegible] leaders pointed to the previous confirmation of Roberts by the senate as government oil counsel in 1924 by a vote of 68 to 8. His attitude on public affairs was thoroughly discussed then. He was selected at that time by President Coolidge.

Since then Mr. Roberts, with Atlee Pomerene of Ohio, successfully prosecuted the government's action for recovery of the Teapot Dome and Elk Hill naval oil reserve leases. In addition, he played a leading part in the criminal prosecutions of Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, and Edward L. Doheny and Harry F. Sinclair, who were given the oil leases by Fall.

Senators Walsh, democrat, Montana, who prosecuted the senate investigation into these leases, and Norris, who initiated those inquiries, both have spoken favorably of Roberts' work as government prosecutor.

Norris, who is chairman of the judiciary committee, said the nomination would be taken up by the committee on Monday at its regular meeting and would be referred to a sub-committee for study. Some senate leaders were hopeful of an early report on Roberts in view of his record with the government.

Of the eight senators who voted against Roberts as government oil counsel in 1924 seven are now in the senate.

Though Roberts is a republican he is understood not to be closely identified with the party and with its various factions in Pennsylvania. He has never served on the bench. He is 55 years old.

A story published by the New York Times in February, 1923, quoting a speech made by Roberts before the trust company division of the American Bankers' association was the basis for the discussion over his attitude on prohibition. The New York Times story was put in the congressional record in 1924 by Senator Walsh, of Montana.

With reference to prohibition the story said:

"Mr. Roberts said he was not an advocate of prohibition, but he denounced the 18th amendment as the insertion of a 'policy (police) regulation' into the constitution which was reduced to the status of a city ordinance."

NEW AMERICAN SEAPLANE ALTITUDE RECORD MADE

BRIDGEPORT, May 9.—(P)— Captain Boris Sergievsky, chief test pilot for the Sikorsky company, set a new American seaplane altitude record with a load of 500 kilograms, this afternoon at North Beach, L. I., when he soared 26,500 feet above the ground smashing the old United States record by more than 4,000 feet. However, he fell short on his attempt to set a new world mark.

Using a standard Sikorsky S-38 amphibian plane with the landing gear removed, Captain Sergievsky took off at North Beach at 1:15 p. m. He ascended rapidly above the old United States record, but the two Wasp motors started to lose many revolutions per minute after he had soared above 26,000 feet and he was forced to descend.

The old American record was 22,100 feet. The new mark set by Sergievsky surpasses this by 4,400 feet, but falls nearly 1,000 feet short of the world's record of 27,749 feet.

ENDEAVORING TO HALT ADVANCE TOWARD NANKING

NANKING, May 9.—(P) — While bandit armies were scourging several provinces of China, President Chiang Kai-Shek of the nationalist government hastened to Suchow, Kiangsu province, today to take command of troops endeavoring to halt the advance of the northern alliance toward Nanking, China's capital.

From Yungyang in Honan province came belated and unverified Chinese reports of 15,000 persons slaughtered by 4,000 bandits who sacked the town April 23, looting and burning it. Five hundred of the more prosperous residents were carried off by bandits to be held for ransom. So thorough was the destruction of the town that no word of it came until today.

The massacre at Yongyang was the latest reported of a long series of outrages that for many months have occurred in several provinces. They are attributed to cold, famine and communism.

DEATH TOLL AT ST. JOSEPH, 14, THREE PERSONS MISSING

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., May 9—(P)— With fourteen know dead and three persons missing and believed to have been killed, three separate investigations were started tonight to attempt to learn the cause of the explosion which demolished a 6-story brick unit of the packing plant of Armour & company in south St. Joseph late yesterday. Property damage was estimated at $450,000 by Armour officials.

Rescue work proceeded in efforts to find the three missing men. In the company's office, officials checked the entire personnel of 2,000 to ascertain whether any men or women from other departments were missing. Except for the three missing men, all regular employes in the unit which was wrecked were accounted for.

ITALY READY FOR FINAL NAVAL NEGOTIATIONS

ROME, May 9.—(P)—Premier Mussolini sat in the chamber of deputies today and heard his foreign minister, Dino Grandi, affirm that Italy is ready to enter forthwith into final naval negotiations with Great Britain and France.

The premier remained in the chamber throughout the entire reading of Signor Grandi's speech, which went fully into the London naval parley and Italy's participation in The Hague conference.

Minister Grandi's long awaited report told the deputies in detail of Italy's naval hopes. He declared Italy went to London not merely for limitation but for definite reduction of naval strength.

The foreign minister said that Italy, geographically, economically and strategically, was the most vulnerable of all the great naval powers.

He also asserted, dealing with the principle of parity, that it should not only apply to capital ships but should be extended to all armaments.

Expressing the willingness to enter immediately into negotiations for all-European agreements, he said, "collaboration between France and Italy, from whence the modern civilization of the world has sprung, is an indispensable condition for Europe."

ALCOHOL MAKING PLANT SEIZED IN WATERBURY

WATERBURY, May 9.—(P)—An alcohol manufacturing plant valued at close to $30,000 was seized by local police here today when they raided a garage at 298 Congress avenue and found one of the largest and best equipped distilleries ever uncovered in this city. Police found no one on the premises but expect to make an arrest as they link the still with the seizure three weeks ago of large quantities of alcohol found in a garage owned by Anthony Rimdone, of this city.

The building housed a 1,000-gallon still. In the cellar police found a 400-gallon cooling system, two 1,000-gallon vats, electric motors and hand pumps. On the upper floor were 60 gallons of finished product, 12 50-gallon empty drums and six 50-gallon drums of freezone alcohol, a paint mixture from which the finished product was distilled. There were also several barrels of caustic soda.

Neighbors told police that the garage was supposedly the home of a laundry and had been operating during the past two months. Police also seized a number of coal bags which the operators are believed to have used in transporting the five-gallon cans.

SEE PRESENT BUSINESS SITUATION AS FAVORABLE

NEW YORK, May 9.—(P)—Executives of the American steel industry, in exchanging views at a meeting of the American Iron and Steel institute, agreed today that the present business situation is favorable, with better times just ahead.

Charles M. Schwab, president of the institute and chairman of Bethlehem Steel; James A. Farrell, president of U. S. Steel, Horace S. Wilkinson, president of Crucible Steel, and other heads of steel companies all indicated that the present weaker price tendencies and reduced operations looked important only in comparison with the record-breaking production and better prices of a year ago.

Predicting that the second 1929 quarter would be better than the first, Mr. Schwab, whose corporation recently arranged a merger with the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., said each proposed merger must justify itself.

DEFENDS HOOVER'S WORK IN ECONOMIC CRISIS

WASHINGTON, May 9.—(P)—A defense of the work of the administration during the recent economic crisis was made today by Secretary Davis in a statement charging that the criticism yesterday by Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the democratic leader, had been "strictly political" in purpose.

Davis said industrial situations like those of the present are "too vital and too serious to our people to be made the subject of political controversy."

"Every statement issued from the bureau of labor statistics was computed on accurate information given by more than 12,000 manufacturing establishments throughout the country," the secretary continued, "and each statement issued by each manufacturer was a statement of the exact number of employes on his payroll."

SIR THOMAS LIPTON WILL BE 80 YEARS OLD TODAY

LONDON, May 9—(P)—Sir Thomas Lipton, whose greatest ambition now is, as it has been for the last quarter of a century or more, to lift the America's cup, will be 80 years old tomorrow.

Sir Thomas plans to make his birthday celebration chime in with his yachting activities. The veteran cup-seeker will spend the day aboard his yacht, the Erin, off Southampton, where he will watch further trials of his new challenger, the Shamrock V, with which he hopes in his fifth venture to capture the cup

Britain To Put Down The Revolt In India

Government Announces That 226,000 Troops Are Ready For Service In India.

BOMBAY, India, May 9—(P)—The British lion showed its teeth today to the unruly followers of Mahatma Gandhi's civil disobedience campaign.

While 40 airplanes were dispatched on a warning flight over the Peshawar district, where restive natives were suspected of preparing for a raid, the home government took occasion to announce that Great Britain has 226,000 troops ready to answer a call to arms in India.

The semi-official totals of yesterday's Scholapur casualties rested at 20 dead and upwards of 100 wounded. The outstanding fact of the clash was the burning by natives of several police, bound together and soaked in oil, and made into torches to illuminate the terror-ridden night.

Apparently the natives burned only dead officers, sparing the wounded. Accounts of the injured ranged from 60 to 400, the latter figures being supplied by horrified wives of police officials who reached Bombay in a special refugees' train under armed guard in the night.

As a first step toward tightening up on the activities of the national congress, the district committee at Kohat was declared unlawful, placing it on the basis of Peshawar.

At the same time arrests at several points indicated a gesture toward rounding up some of the most important congress leaders. At Lahore Dr. Gopichand, general secretary of the all-India body, was seized on a charge of sedition.

The fact that in none of the rioting had machine guns been brought into play was made evident, local authorities pointed out this afternoon. The police who have engaged Indian mobs thus far have had instructions, it was said, to use first their staves and then guns loads with buckshot. It was intimated that if these measures should prove ineffective, more severe methods would be employed.

The statements of Wedgewood Benn, secretary for India, of the government's confident attitude, were received here with interest and hopefulness. The secretary declared again today that Britain was full able to meet and handle any situation which might arise.

Negro Cremated In Court House Vault

Officers At Sherman, Tex., Had Fought Would - Be Lynchers With Tear Bombs.

SHERMAN, Texas, May 9—(P)—A mob today burned down the $60,000 Grayson county court house, cremating George Hughes, Negro, after unsuccessfully attempting to seize him from officers.

Hughes, who had pleaded guilty to assaulting a white woman, died in a vault in the court house in which he had been placed for safe keeping by Texas rangers and local officers when the mob stormed the building, crying for his life.

Driven back three times by officers who hurled tear gas bombs and fought with fists, and clubs, but did not shoot into the crowd, the mob finally set fire to the court house. An earlier attempt to dynamite the structure had failed.

The body of the Negro, Sheriff Arthur Vaughan said, remained tonight in the vault among the ruins of the building.

Five white youths were injured in the rioting, being clubbed on the heads. There were unverified reports that one man had been seriously wounded by one of the few shots fired by a member of the mob during the rioting.

Although the crowd apeared to have quieted down after the destruction of the court house the atmosphere was surcharged with tension. There were unverified reports that members of the mob planned to go to Negro sections of the city tonight and burn houses.

SHERMAN, Texas, May 9.—(P)—Violence broke out anew here tonight as a mob of several thousand persons divided into two sections, one battling a detachment of National guardsmen on the square where the courthouse had been burned earlier in the day and another mob storming the jail.

Jed Brown, 18, was shot in the chest and physicians held little hope for his recovery.

Several of the guardsmen were struck by stones, bottles and missiles hurled by the mob in its attempt to storm the county jail.

Meanwhile, another crowd battled a detachment of guardsmen on the square when they attempted to drive the crowd from the grounds of the wrecked courthouse.

The Negro quarter of the city was deserted and appeals were sent to neighboring towns to rush police officers here to assist Sherman authorities.

BISHOP CANNON'S ADMINISTRATION ATTACKED IN CHURCH CONFERENCE

DALLAS, Tex., May 9.—(P)— Four bishops named in charges preferred today at the quadrennial general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, attacking their administrations and in particular alleged political activities declined to show concern over the charges tonight.

Two of them, Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of Virginia and Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon of Charlotte, N. C., said they had no statements to make. Bishop John M. Moore of Dallas said he "wouldn't know what to say if I said anything."

Bishop H. M. Dubose of Nashville Tenn., in the absence of comment from the other three, declared the most serious view that could be taken was to regard the action of the bishops, the alleged deeds of misconduct, as "a commonplace of citizenship right and privilege under the law."

The charges were preferred by the Rev. Rembert Smith of Washington, Georgia, who mailed them to the conference secretary. Smith promised to be here himself next week to press them before the Episcopacy committee. The exact charges were not made public, and it is unlikely that they will be since meetings of the committee are executive and all members are sworn to secrecy.

Smith, soon after the last presidential campaign, wrote a book called "The Four Horsemen of Methodism" in which Bishop Cannon was called "Pope Cannon" and four bishops, including the other three charged, were "The Four Horsemen."

One conference delegate who had read the charges indicated that the worst allegation in them was to the effect that the four bishops named voted for Herbert Hoover for president, and urged their friends to do likewise. It was also said that some of the bishops had not accounted for "funds spent" in the campaign, and that the charges against Bishop Cannon were reported to refer to alleged stock market activities.

FATAL PLANE ACCIDENT AT BRAINARD FIELD, HARTFORD

Lewis H. Taylor of Washington Was Burned to Death—Milton H. Moore of Hartford, An Experienced Pilot, Was Fatally Injured—Failure of Motor Just After the Take-Off Was Fixed As the Cause of the Crash—The Impact of the Plane Left a Hole a Foot Deep In the Cinder Road Way

HARTFORD, May 9—(P)—Lewis H. Taylor, believed to have been captain in the United States army reserve, was burned to death, and Milton H. Moore, general manager of the Interstate Airways, died shortly after midnight as the result of an airplane crash at Brainard field shortly before six o'clock tonight.

Taylor's home is at 1910 K street, N. W., Washington, D. C., authorities believe. He has been living at 31 Whitmore street, here, and had been taking flying instructions from Moore for about two weeks.

Failure of the motor was fixed as the cause of the crash tonight by Chief Inspector George Pranaitis of the state department of aeronautics. Examination of the magneto, he said, showed a break in the mechanism there. In the opinion of Inspector Pranaitis, this defect was not caused by either the crash or the fire, and is the explanation of the crash. He notified department of commerce officials of the accident tonight, and a federal inspector is expected to arrive here tomorrow for an inquiry.

The plane had taken off into the wind and was over the hangars when, according to witnesses of the accident, the motor stopped. An endeavor was made to turn the plane and land on the aviation field, but the ship rapidly lost altitude, and it appeared to those on the ground that the occupants had no control of the plane. Then the wind, a brisk breeze, caught the helpless ship, sending it crashing, nose first, onto the road which borders the flying field in front of the hangars.

When the plane struck, it was said at the field, it was at such an angle that it appeared probable it would come to rest upside down. The impact, which smashed half the propeller to splinters and left a hole a foot deep in the cinder road way, however, righted the plane, but the damage had been done in the first crash.

As the event was reconstructed, the crash of the plane's nose drove the water pump into the gasoline tank, letting the fuel pour over a hot exhaust pipe. Before either the occupants or those who saw the crash could make any effective move, the craft was a mass of flames. Moore managed to unclasp his safety belt and crawled out onto the right wing, finally falling to the ground where others braved the heat to pull him clear of the fire

"How's my student?" was his first question.

Mrs. Moore, herself a licensed pilot, was standing on the ramp and saw the crash. She fainted.

The point at which the plane finally came to rest was within a hundred feet of a tank of chemical fire extinguisher which was quickly brought into play, but too late to save Taylor. Taylor, according to witnesses, made no outcry. The position of his body indicated that he had not moved after bracing himself for the crash.

Taylor, it was said at the field, had had only two or three hours of instruction. This fact, together with the position of his body, and the expert manner in which the ship had been maneuvered prior to the crash, was held at the field to give positive assurance that Moore himself was at the controls.

FOR WHOLESALE REVISION OF NATIONS CRIMINAL CODE

WASHINGTON, May 9—(P)—Virtual agreement upon further recommendations for a wholesale revision of the nation's criminal code, and the completion of another step in an 18-year task of "restating" the country's common law, stood accomplished tonight by 600 leading jurists and barristers at the eighth annual meeting of the American Law institute.

During the day, for the same of

During the day, for the sake of speedier deliberation, the institute divided into two camps. One considered the final chapters of a voluminous "model code of criminal procedure." The other debated points of the common law.

At one point, however, the two met on common ground—congratulating Owen J. Roberts upon his nomination by President Hoover today to the supreme court. Roberts is a member of the institute's council, and if his nomination is confirmed will be the third member of that body to be elevated to the highest tribunal within the past five years. He attended the opening sessions yesterday.

RALPH CAPONE OUT ON $5,000 BOND IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, May 9—(P)— Another irksome chapter was jotted down today in the family diary of the Capone tribe.

Ralph Capone flitted in and out of the Federal building, leaving $5,000 bond behind and noting in his date book an engagement to see a federal commissioner May 23 about a charge of liquor conspiracy resulting from raids on two Cicero night clubs.

During the fleeting visit he denied proprietorship of any airplane smuggling Canadian whiskey into the Chicago region. Federal officials said they had no evidence of the bootleg airway reported to have been in operation between here and Detroit.

Capone's arraignment was just another of the trials and tribulations of his clan since government, state and municipal officials in several states adopted the practice of inviting the Capones to leave town.

SAID ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE HAD BEEN "BORN OF GOD"

WASHINGTON, May 9.—(P)— An assertion by F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, that the organization had been "born of God" produced a lively controversy today before the senate lobby committee.

Senator Blaine, republican, Wisconsin, the only wet member of the committee, described the statement as "sacrilegious" and "an outrageous thing" and McBride retorted that Blaine's remarks were "sacrilegious."

The exchange resulted when Blaine asked the witness:

"What gave you the conception that God gave birth to the Anti-Saloon league?"

"The fact that it was born in a prayer meeting and that the organization has been a religious organization down through the years. We seldom have a convention without opening with devotional exercises. We never have a meeting of our national executive committee without the devotions. We are led by the leadership of God."

The exchange was ended when Chairman Caraway and Senator Robinson, republican, Indiana, insisted that the questioning had nothing to do with lobbying.

The committee adjourned until Tuesday when McBride will resume his testimony.

HEAD OF BOSTON NARCOTIC SQUAD RETURNS TO DUTY

BOSTON, May 9.—(P)—Sergeant Robert Caverly, head of the narcotic squad of the Boston police department, was returned to duty today by Commissioner Eugene C. Hultman. He was examined before a trial board appointed by ex-Commissioner Wilson, and was reported not guilty a week ago, but Wilson took no action before he was removed from office.

Commissioner Hultman, accepting the finding of the board, issued a general order today ordering the complaint dismissed and the chief of the narcotic unit returned to active duty.

The charges against Sergeant Caverly caused a sensation in the police department, coming directly after the Garrett investigation ended at the state house.

DANIELSON

FACE FIVE SEPARATE CHARGES OF BREAKING AND ENTERING

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 9—An entire series of breaks that have occurred during the past few weeks up and down the Quinebaug Valley appeared to be cleared up through admissions made to state officers here by Edward Gildard and Emil Brenek, both 22 years of age and both married. Both are of Putnam and have been employed as night weavers in the Bloom silk mill in that city.

They were being held at the barracks on North Main street this afternoon, after lengthy questioning, and on Saturday morning will be presented in the city court of Putnam, and, in all probability, brought before a justice's court in Thompson.

The pair have admitted breaks at the Jewett City creamery, at the Painton Brothers filling station and at Joe Simmons' filling station in the town of Plainfield and at Arthur Plouffe's filling station in North Grosvenordale. The loot they collected in these breaks included tires and tubes, cigars, cigarettes and other articles found in the stocks of the places raided.

Today State Officer Royal V. Scranton recovered in a garage on South Meadow street in Putnam some of the tires and tubes stolen from the Plouffe filling station, two guns taken from the Jewett City creamery and some cigars and cigarettes stolen from Joe Simmons' place.

One break was made at Plouffe's filling station on April 16, another at the same place about six weeks previously.

Gildard and Brenek find themselves caught in a jam through Gildard getting picked up in Pascoag during the very early hours of Thursday morning in a car for which he had no registration. Brenek was his companion. In court yesterday Gildard, presented by Chief Genereaux, was fined $28.50, for so illegally operating a car.

But there were other things about the machine that placed both of them under suspicion of more serious offences. It carried SX551 Connecticut registration plates which belong to the Metcalf service station in Putnam. They also had in the car a set of SX152 Connecticut license plates that belong to the Collins Motor Sales company of Moosup, and it appears that these plates were stolen on a recent evening from a car that was parked near Bonneau's dance hall at Killingly Center. They also had faked a set of SX plates on cardboard.

In the car was a pinch bar and a hammer, articles it has since developed they took from the Bloom mill when they left their work about 1.45 Thursday morning, without knowledge or permission of their overseer. It was for having possession of these things that they will be presented in the Putnam city court, and involves the least serious of the charges that will be filed against them. They are liable to prosecution in four towns—Griswold, Plainfield, Putnam and Thompson.

It develops that the pair have three old cars they have been using—the Studebaker in which they were apprehended at Pascoag, an old Dodge touring car and a Chandler sedan, the latter a fairly good car.

Brenek whose wife is resident in Jewett City, left the mill at midnight, according to the story he has since told, to get some beer and after having had it went back to work, remaining there in the mill until 1.45, when he and Gildard set forth for a raid they had planned to make in Rhode Island. They face at least five separate charges of breaking and entering all in the night season.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Charles H. Bacon

This afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home on Main street funeral services for Mrs. Alice M. Bacon, wife of Charles H. Bacon, were conducted by Rev. Harding W. Gaylord, pastor of the Westfield Congregational church, of which Mrs. Bacon had been a member for many years. During the service Mrs. Harold B. Atwood sang The Christian's Good Night. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were Eugene Fuller, George G. Guild, Arthur W. Logee, Thomas Beckett, Charles S. Francis and Burdette C. Hopkins. A. F. Wood was in charge of the arrangements.

Insufficient rain has fallen on this section as yet to warrant issuing of fire permits, all outstanding ones having been cancelled a few days ago. Though there have been heavy showers in many parts of the state they have with one exception circled around Danielson. The danger of forest fires in this territory has been somewhat lessened by the rapid growth of fresh green grass during the present week, but a serious fire hazard remains and every precaution again forest fires is being taken.

JEWETT CITY

LOCAL RED CROSS CHAPTER SENDS $100 FOR NASHUA

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, May 9—Jewett City chapter, American Red Cross, has received a telegram from headquarters at Washington, D. C., asking for contributions for relief of the sufferers from the terrible fire in Nashua, N. H. A large relief fund is absolutely necessary; 1,500 persons are homeless and the net loss of families is approximately $1,000,000. Jewett City chapter, through its emergency committee, responded immediately with a check for one hundred dollars from the chapter treasury. Other immediate plans to help alleviate the distress of the sufferers by gifts of money will follow. In the meantime any money may be given Miss Margaret Driscoll, treasurer of the chapter.

Last summer a pair of these great birds, these first reported in this section since before the Aspinook pond was flowed, nested in a tall hemlock, partly way up the side of Mt. Misery. Game wardens reported a pair of wild geese in the brook not 500 feet from the eagles' nest. The geese raised a brood of goslings and brought them up to flying stage, right under the eye of the male eagle, that daily swept the countryside in search of prey. Seemingly no attention was paid to the geese which he must have seen every day.

PUTNAM

YOUTHFUL LOCAL BURGLARS SENTENCED TO REFORMATORY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 9.—Probation sentences were meted out in superior court this morning by Judge Arthur F. Ells of Waterbury, to Lionel Derosier, 17, and Norman Favereault, 16, both of this city, who were found guilty of charges of breaking and entering and theft. Both were arraigned in the higher court on bench warrants signed by Judge Ells and State Attorney Bradford. The account of their depredations, which brought about their arrest Wednesday, was read by State Attorney Bradford and after careful consideration Judge Ells imposed a reformatory sentence, the execution of which was suspended and the youths committed to the care of Probation Officer L. Edwin Hill of Danielson for a period of one year. Before clearing the case, Judge Ells impressed upon the youthful burglars the fact that "they are marked boys." He said that a probation sentence in no way means that they are leaving the jurisdiction of the superior court free. He added that in the future, the police will immediately question them whenever a petty case arises and in the event of their arrest a second time, they will be sent to some public institution to serve their sentences.

Other cases before Judge Ells today were of a criminal and civil nature. Dr. Samuel J. Turcott, a Willimantic physician, whose wife secured a divorce from him in superior court in this city last year, appeared and entered a motion to have the court's decree pertaining to the amount of alimony, which he now pays his former wife, modified. After a hearing Judge Ells denied the motion and dismissed the application. Mrs. Turcott, who appeared in court this morning, won her legal separation from her husband last term on grounds of intolerable cruelty and by an order handed down by Judge E. M. Yeomans of Danbury she was awarded alimony of $35 a week.

Edgard Munier was arraigned on a criminal charge of contempt of court. The allegation presented by Attorney Bradford was that Munier, in refusing to pay a sum of $5 weekly to his estranged wife for the support of their son, had deliberately violated the terms of a court order and, in doing so, subjected himself to the possibility of a jail sentence. Upon a promise that he would continue payment, Judge Ells suspended the jail sentence and accepted the man's word of honor that he would comply with the court regulation in the future.

Frederick E. Greeno, formerly of Pomfret, was arraigned on a charge of neglecting and refusing to provide support for his wife and two children. Greeno was found guilty of the offense and was sentenced to serve a term of four months in the county jail at Brooklyn. He was arrested in New York, where police learned that he was affiliating with another woman. Extradition papers were issued and he was returned here by Windham county authorities.

Ernest J. Bernier of Killingly was awarded a decree of divorce on grounds of statutory offense from his wife, Ellen C. Bernier, who did not contest the action. The husband in court proved unfaithfulness on the part of his wife and the decree was immediately awarded by Judge Ells. Bernier was represented by Attorney Louis A. Woisard of Danielson.

Following the adjournment of court this morning, Curtis N. Dean, clerk, issued a notice to the bar that on Thursday, May 15, Judge Ells will be in Putnam to preside at a short calendar session of court, which will open at 10 o'clock. D. S. T. All notices for hearing at the session next week should be filed with Mr. Dean by Monday, May 12, at 8 o'clock, S. T.

Members of the bar today were also notified by Clerk Dean, that on Thursday, May 15, at 10 o'clock, (D. S. T.), in superior court in Putnam, Judge Ells will, at a session of court, call the docket and thus discontinue or otherwise dispose of such untried cases as have been pending one year, and cases in which there is default of appearance, unless cause be shown for the continuance of such cases. Upon the same day, all receivers unless previously excused will be present to answer for the condition of their estates and the accounting of their trusts. This notice was given by order of the court.

Among other matters of business disposed of at the civil session of superior court this morning, was the assignment of cases by Judge Ells, which will be heard at sessions to be held in this city on Wednesday, May 14, at 10 o'clock, and on Tuesday, May 27, at 10 o'clock.

The list of jury cases assigned for Wednesday, May 14, are: State vs. Frederick Peacos, alias George Johnson, forgery; State vs. Peter Urban, theft; Nora M. Hubbard vs. Frank B. Green; Albert Latici vs. Nelson Hebert. Court cases assigned for Tuesday, May 27, are: Town of Plainfield vs. Harry Green; Irene Boucher vs. Peter St. Rock; Henry G. Adams vs. Sadie Rosenthal, et al.; Stephen Barnufsky and Mary Barnufsky vs. Ben Bozaciuk; Dora Davies vs. Christopher Everett. Wednesday, May 28, at Putnam, 10 o'clock: Jean Coleman Legg vs. John Francis Legg; Oliver L. Willard vs. Leander Wright.

Following the assignment of cases court was adjourned until next Thursday, May 15, at Putnam, at 10 o'clock.

He comes to Putnam highly recommended, he being an expert in his trade and a capable tutor. Mr. Jennings is a graduate of the General Electric school at Lynn, Mass., and has a service record of eight years as a tradesman.

Patrolman Harry Wallen investigated an automobile accident which occurred early this afternoon on Main street, involving the cars of Simon Yarock of 195 Providence street, this city, and Ransom Lyler, colored, of Mechanics and Oak streets, Danielson. Lyler was operating an Oakland sedan, and was about to park on Main street, when the vehicle operated by Yarock came alongside, struck the Danielson car and mounted the fender, doing considerable damage to the body. The principals involved agreed upon a settlement. No arrests were made.

Many people who saw the cinema production, "The Green Goddess," starring the incomparable George Arliss, which was filmed at the Bradley theatre two days this week, recalled the appearance of Mr. Arliss made on the Bradley stage about 25 years ago Those who witnessed the personal appearance of the renowned actor said today that they observed little change in his unsurpassable characteristics, which have made him one of the most famous figures of the stage and are achieving for him equal honors on the silver screen. When he made his appearance in Putnam, Mr. Arliss had the leading role in the dramatic production, "Derteufel" (the Devil).

THE ROBERTS NOMINATION

Without any delay following the rejection of Judge John J. Parker's nomination for the supreme court of the United States, President Hoover has presented the name of Owen J. Roberts, of Pennsylvania, for that position.

This will be recognized as the selection of a man of brilliant attainments, one who has come into conspicuous attention in the last several years because of his prosecution of the government oil cases. He was chosen for that work because of his recognized ability. When President Coolidge selected him for that work he was weighed in the balance and received a high rating. Even the senate at that time was strongly convinced that he was the man for the difficult task.

It is believed that his selection at this time by President Hoover for a place in the country's highest tribunal will be generally regarded as excellent. He has made a fine record as government prosecutor. That he is not and has not been a judge doesn't need to influence the decision. That he is second choice and that the senate has indicated what sort of a balance it uses in weighing supreme court nominations has not deterred him from accepting the nomination. President Hoover has named him because of fitness, without thought as to geographical location, and the nomination is of a man who enjoys a wider reputation than Judge Parker, but, as in the case of Judge Parker, it has already been disclosed that there are those in the senate who are ready, without investigation, to voice their opposition and brand him as unfit. On the other hand, the fact that certain of the coalition crowd have spoken well of Mr. Roberts means nothing for there wasn't a thing they could say unfavorable of Judge Parker when he was named. It was then a case of digging up a lot of things that were not so, a lot of things that were misrepresented. It is to be hoped that such tactics will not be employed with Mr. Roberts, or if they are, that they will not succeed. He is the type of man that will add strength to the court and do credit to the country. He should be confirmed, but there's never any telling what the present senate will do.

AT STREET CROSSINGS

For years the understanding has been that the pedestrian has the right of way in the highway. With the coming of the automobile and its speed there has been manifested a disposition on the part of many drivers to cause pedestrians to stop in their tracks and permit the auto to fly by. At much-used intersections it has been necessary to establish signals for the control of all traffic, and then the pedestrian takes his chances, which are favorable in some instances and none too well defined in others.

When the question of right of way came before the police commissioner of New York city he declared that the pedestrians had it at the crossings which are uncontrolled by light or police and set forth that the driver of an auto must come to a stop if necessary in order to permit pedestrians to get across. It was a ruling and an order that encountered opposition. It was appealed to the court and a decision has just been handed down by the court of appeals in which the commissioner's ruling is upheld.

That means a victory for the pedestrian insofar as the law is concerned. What kind of treatment they will continue to get from many drivers remains to be seen. The law doesn't amount to much when the motorist insists upon rushing by and disappearing before the aggrieved pedestrian thinks of looking for the number plate.

On the other hand, there are the pedestrians who take delight in seeing how slowly they can get from one side of the street to the other. There are those who will deliberately walk in front of a car and present the attitude of inviting an accident for no other purpose than to show how fearless, independent and troublesome they can be in standing on their rights.

At street crossings there should be, and there is no good reason for any other attitude, full cooperation on the part of both pedestrian and motorist. It is where one tries to take advantage of the other that most of the trouble arises. The person afoot is deserving of consideration. If anyone is entitled to the advantage he is, but there is always opportunity for the spirit of fairness to manifest itself and when that is done there will be no question as to the result.

REDEEMING THE CURRENCY

Are you holding onto all the old paper money that you had out of preference, or a desire to put it aside and collect such premium as it may command a century or so hence?

When there was nothing else to be had except the large sized bills there was no thought on the part of the general public of keeping the currency out of circulation, but now with the new money issued it is next to impossible to find a large sized bill, and yet the treasury department reports that there is about a quarter of the old bills which have not been redeemed.

Even the preference for the larger size doesn't make it possible for individuals to use only that size, for banks are constantly withdrawing it from circulation in accord with the treasury plan, but there are probably many who are reserving a certain number of bills in expectation of increased value later on.

When the treasury department reports that there is more than a billion and a third unredeemed, it is probable that a considerable part of that sum will never be received back by the treasury. The situation with currency is much the same as with government bonds. There is always a certain amount which is never heard from again. It is lost, burned, destroyed. While a certain amount is coming back to the treasury each day, the redemption will be slower as time goes on. If the full amount of the $5,120,000,000 in the old currency is not presented for redemption it simply means that the government will be that much to the good. The larger the denomination the better the condition of the bills may be expected to be and therefore the longer the service that holders may insist upon from them. It is the smaller denominations that get the most wear and tear and likewise those which are most likely to be withheld from circulation for what many might regard as souvenirs. With 60,000,000 of the dollar bills as yet unredeemed there is a question whether they are still salted away or how many of them will never be returned. Inasmuch as the treasury has never received $38,000,000 in bonds which were called and on which interest has been stopped it is conceivable that the same will be true of much of the larger money which can be redeemed for the smaller, but which, nevertheless remains good for such use as the possessor desires to make of it.

MOTHER'S DAY

Fixed by act of congress in 1914, the second Sunday in May is Mother's day, an occasion when people may give free public expression of their love and reverence for the mothers of the country.

Mother's day was prompted by the arrangement of a memorial service for a prominent church woman in a Virginia town. The daughter carried the idea to the church people of Philadelphia and it was there that the day was first observed on the second Sunday in May, 1908, under the inspiration of Miss Anna Jarvis. It made such an excellent impression that it was widely copied and its extension throughout the country was quick to follow. Now the day receives general thought and attention.

There is nothing of greater importance to the youth of the land than mother influence. That beautiful and true love, that sacrifice, that ever-increasing influence for better home life, that constant safeguard for home, that ever-watchful care, can never be driven from memory, and yet there is good and sufficient reason for displaying our recognition and appreciation thereof as the years roll along.

It isn't enough that we should give a thought to mother and to mother influence only on the second Sunday of May. For most people it is a matter which comes much nearer to getting a daily thought, and yet there is no chance that it will ever be overdone. It means much to the individual, it means much to good citizenship and it means much to the nation if there is a full appraisal of the influence exerted by the conscientious, self-sacrificing, loving mothers. Mother's day may serve, if necessary, to remind some of their forgotten duty.

MOB VIOLENCE

Time and again Texas has displayed its liking for mob rule. Frequently has it insisted upon resorting to lynch law in its worst form. Not satisfied alone with the taking of life, it has done so in the most horrible manner, including burning at the stake.

The mob at Sherman, Texas, displayed not only the unwillingness to permit the law to take its course, after the accused had been caught and admitted his crime, but resorted to force and destruction of public property in order to remove the black man from the jurisdiction of the court, where in all probability he would have been quickly and fully penalized.

This is only one of several recent instances in the south which go to show that, while there has been a marked reduction in the number of lynchings, the time has not yet arrived when it can be said that the south has insisted upon its elimination. The hopes are that public sentiment will assert itself and insist upon respect for the laws of the respective states. Those who resort to lynching are displaying no more respect for their own statutes than do those against whom they apply lynch law.

Many of the crimes which arouse the southerners are atrocious. There is no question but what the death penalty is deserved, but there should be a fair trial, a conviction and a lawful execution. Even the admission of guilt should not justify the overpowering of officials and the killing of the accused in cold blood. Far less does it call for the destruction of a public building. For once the mob penalized the community in order to carry out its mad lawlessness, although the authorities must be given credit for offering more than passive resistance.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

The exact precision in what they have to give us, we must surely take off our hats to the scientists. The whole line of mathematics, of course, comes under this head and belongs to the field of exact sciences. The pupil who performs an example in arithmetic is either right or wrong in either or both process and answer. If the answer he gets differs in the minutest degree from the correct answer, his work is wrong, because he is dealing with an exact science. If on the other hand he writes an article on—let us say—the tariff, he can say almost anything under the sun and get something right, while most of it may be something that neither he nor anybody else is quite sure of. The reason is that the tariff, admits of so many differing interpretations. In a matter of this character geography has much to do with it.

Only a short time since this country had a most remarkable illustration of what one branch of the exact sciences can do. I refer to the eclipse of the sun on Monday, April 28, caused by the moon's buttin, into his regular pathway. During the season of the visibility of this eclipse the writer was motoring through the southeastern part of the state, and in all the towns and villages he passed through young and old of both sexes were looking through smoked glasses of every conceivable shape to take in the unusual phenomenom. Long before the day of the appearance men of science told us not only the day on which the eclipse would appear but the very moment it would be seen in such and such parts of the country, and where it would be most strikingly manifest. Not only that but we were also told how rapidly and with what degree of visibility the eclipse would pass over the continent.

Some of these items were committed to writing on the day when the members of the naval conference landed in New York. They had labored long and faithfully in London for reduction of armament on the part of the five nations involved. Now this item has nothing whatever to do with the political side of the conference. But it does seem that there is a loud call to emphasize the moral features and victory of this expedition. The very fact that these busy nations were willing to give time and also to bear the expense of attempting to find a solution that would make future wars unthinkable. It was all the more satisfactory because they did not hastily jump to conclusions without duly weighing all the intricate questions involved. The matter of geography and exposure to foreign attack had to be carefully weighed. It has certainly strengthened the previous work of Kellogg and Briand.

As we are all fallible creatures we ought to be very careful how we criticise other people. It doesn't take much of a probe to find some flaw in the very best of people, as the following incident shows. On one occasion a young minister was scheduled to preach in a certain church. He was accustomed to write out his sermons in full and deliver them from manuscript. But for some reason on this particular occasion he forgot to bring his manuscript. He apologized for his carelessness when he realized what a mess he was making with his sermon. In the congregation was a very precise man who criticized the minister unsparingly. This man had once had an accident that deprived him of his nose. There were only two glaring holes where the nostrils were once. That Sunday he was invited out to dinner and denounced the careless young minister. There happened to be a little girl at the table who had never seen him before. When he ended his tirade, the innocent little angel said: "But, Mr. Smith, haven't you left your nose at home?" Mr. Smith's hearty laugh saved the situation.

If there was ever a season when instructive lessons could be drawn from fires that season is certainly the first half of the year 1930. This brings to one's mind the philosophy of fire. While fire is the process of material in combustion, it is in itself intangible. It is the illumination of the particles of matter in rapid vibration; it is heat in highly visible form. The main purpose of fire in its practical uses is to contribute to the needs and comfort of man. It is one thing when fire is confined to the parlor grate giving forth its beautiful glow and adding very much to the comfort of the home; but it is wholly another proposition when it breaks through the arms of law and burns up your house, and mercilously tortures tour loved ones to death. When we think what a horrible thing uncontrolled fire is, let us think where animal and vegetable life would soon be in this latitude without fire! Like all great forces fire must be controlled.

Does not human action bring out clearly these two general phases of fire; the beneficial and the destructive? The writer will never forget the impression that was made upon him by three of the greatest orators that America ever had, Henry Ward Beecher, Wendell Phillips and John B. Goff. When Beecher was dealing with the slavery problem his whole being seemed to be literally on fire; his voice grew magnetic and thousands to whom he spoke were spellbound. It was this splendid fire that changed the attitude of England concerning the Civil war. Wendell Phillips was not so impassioned as Beecher but there was an incandescent glow about the man that was captivating. It is beyond all controversy that these men would have lost much of this splendid power had it not been for the fire in their souls that was contagious.

Now this was a sort of constructive fire that warmed the hearts and consciences of their hearers and urged them to action. But there are other speakers who have this fire but it is of a destructive nature. In one of our small cities the writer one day saw a small crowd listening to what is generally called a "soap box" orator. He was evidently an uneducated man with a strong bull-like voice that quivered with passion; his fists were clenched and he roared like a mad man. Now there was fire all right but it was not controlled. He was denouncing the rich employer who was grinding the poor workman into dust. He was hurling thunderbolts at all the rich without any discrimination. It was one of the most unreasonable and extravagant speeches I ever heard. It seemed to make him mad when he evidently failed to get the crowd. It was fire all right, but the kind that devastates.

Anniversary of Rev. Hugh Montgomery's Death—First Fighting Prohibitionist of Norwich

Thirty-one years ago this week—on May 4, 1899—the Rev. Hugh Montgomery, first fighting prohibitionist of Norwich, died at Marblehead, Mass. Born in the county of Fermanagh, Ireland, March 28, 1839, and came to the United States in 1853, and in 1861 was licensed as an exhorter of the Methodist church.

The history of Mr. Montgomery's crusading career against the liquor traffic in Norwich is given in a volume published in 1883 at New York by Phillips and Hunt and at Cincinnati by Walden and Stowe. The volume is entitled "Hugh Montgomery; or, Experiences of an Irish Minister and Temperance Reformer." The author is anonymous, but is thought to be Mr. Montgomery himself.

The preface says: "It was sympathy with the victim of the rum traffic that first, in his young ministry, roused him to contest with it; and probably no pastor in the country has given to this cause more time, thought or labor, or accomplished so much in the recovery of the inebriate and the punishment of illegal dealers in strong drink."

After serving in various small towns of Vermont, Massachusetts and New Hampshire, the Rev. Mr. Montgomery came to Norwich in April, 1877, as pastor of the Central Methodist Episcopal church, which was situated at 184 Main street. He was then 38 years old.

His biography says: "When Mr. Montgomery went to Norwich he found 135 licensed saloons, most of them violating the law in some way, and 75 unlicensed, with very little pretense on the part of anybod of punishing the law-breakers."

Right away he began a series of weekly religious-prohibition meetings in Breed hall, following them up with the establishment of a temperance center and chapel, which he called a "tabernacle," on the West Side. These meetings were conducted in addition to his regular work as pastor of Central church.

In his first year here he obtained evidence of illegal liquor-selling by seven out of the eight drug stores and cut the wet majority at the fall election from about 750 votes to 50.

"When it was resolved by the friends of temperance to enforce the law against all illegal liquor selling," says his biography, "no man in Norwich was in a better position to aid the officers of the law than was Mr. Montgomery." That was because he required all his reformed drunkards to become stool-pigeons. "If possible," says the book, "he (Mr. Montgomery) ascertains from them (the drunkards) where they procured their liquor. If they fail to tell him, he has but little hope of their reformation and expends but little time on them .... He pressed this point for two reasons: first, it puts a barrier between the seller drinker and the seller ....; and second it furnishes the means for the punishment of the violator of the law."

In 1878 the town went dry by about the same majority as the wets had received in 1877. Prohibition that year was a failure. The saloonkeepers brought in "schenk beer," which was held to be non-intoxicating; and under cover of this article they sold all the old intoxicants. Cases worked up by Montgomery and his stool pigeons were thrown out by the city judge, who held that evidence so obtained rendered the complainant a partaker of the crime. So in 1879 the city returned to the wet column by about 600 majority, and stayed wet thereafter as long as it was allowed to vote on the matter.

Naturally, Mr. Montgomery's crusading made him intensely unpopular in some quarters. Several times, his biography asserts, he was shot at. Once, "as he was passing one of the saloons, the proprietor was heard to say: 'There he goes now. I would rather see the small pox stalking through our streets than that preacher. It has come to such a pass that a man cannot enter a saloon without looking first over his right shoulder, and then over his left shoulder, to see if anybody is watching him'."

In 1879 he was appointed prosecuting agent for the county by the county commissioners, and was reappointed in 1881. As such he extended his dry crusade and enforcement activities into neighboring communities, among them Old Lyme, Salem, Bozrah, Sprague, Voluntown, North Stonington, Stonington, Mystic, East Lyme and Montville. Moreover, he was continually holding temperance meetings. In 1880 he declared that in the preceding three years he had held 112 of these, as well as speaking on the subject in Norwich 150 times, giving 100 lectures in this and other states and publishing a weekly temperance paper six months in each year.

In 1880 he was appointed to the Methodist church at Greeneville. In 1882 he became the first city missionary. In 1885 he went to Worcester and afterward held pastorates at Woburn, Lowell and Marblehead. In Massachusetts, as agent of the state temperance society, he made life a nightmare for illicit liquor-sellers by the same tactics that he had employed in Norwich. As a public speaker he showed great power of invective, as is indicated in the following passages extracted from an address entitled, "Is It Right to License?" which he delivered at Breed hall on Sunday evening, Sept. 21, 1879, on the eve of election, at the request of clergymen of the city:

"Go to the poor-house of Norwich, and see 60 poor wrecks of humanity supported by the taxes of the people; and of these 60, nearly, if not quite all, have come to their present degraded state through liquor.

"He that voted to legalize this liquor traffic has included in his vote disease, delirium-tremens, murder, suicide and eternal shipwreck; for all these lie in the bar-room.

"O Christian man, sit down and try to realize something of this ever-widening area of misery, before you vote for license. Is it nothing to you that there is at this moment a wail of anguish arising from millions of American women who, through the drunkenness of their fathers, husbands and sons, are simply sitting down in the ruin of their lives?

"Oh, think of this before you meet them at the judgment-seat; for then it will be too late to change your vote. Politicians, it will then be too late. There is no cutting of the stone after it gets to Jerusalem. Once lost, the chance is lost forever. All who vote for license must remember that God is a sure paymaster. He may not pay at the end of every election; but remember, I charge you. He pays in the end. So I would advise those who are going to vote for license, to halt and fling down the ballot, and say, in God's name, No.

"But a change in public sentiment must come in the grand future, when every breathing-hole of hell shall be turned into a factory, and when criminal judges and criminal lawyers shall find the greater part of their present occupation gone .... good men ever get into office where grog shops abound and gambling-hells are not interfered with, said good men must not fear losing political influence. And if ever officials close their eyes to the abominations of the dram shops and wink at the trickery of the rumseller, then we must, as Christian men, arise and put our hands on the helm before wicked men swamp the ship.'

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 9—Time has been kind to those American navy and army figures who bulked largest in the public eye during those April days 13 years ago as America plunged into the great adventure of the World war.

From Pershing and Sims who headed abroad the efforts of the sister services through the list of those who directed the war planning at home, Scott, Bliss, March, Benson, there had been no death until George Barnett, wartime major general, commandant of the marine corps passed on after nearly a year of illness.

All the others have long been retired for age, yet have shown very little effect of the terrific strain of responsibility they bore.

Booster For Marines

And to the energy of Barnett, probably more than anyone else, the marine corps owes the honors that go with the emblazoning on its annals of such names as Chateau Thierry, Belleau Wood, Soissons, Sedan and countless other hard fought fields in France. It was Barnett who induced Secretary Daniels to demand a place for the sea soldiers in Pershing's forces. And it was Barnett who never lost and opportunity to tell of what the "devil dogs" in France had done.

The marine chief's activities attracted much attention in congress. At one time, in 1918, while the war was still on, a move to raise his rank, or rather, that of the commandant of the marine corps, to lieutenant general developed in the senate and reached the house in the form of an amendment to the naval appropriation bill.

It provoked a very heated debate, Representative Butler of Pennsylvania, now dead, ranking republican of the naval committee and father of Maj. Gen. Smedley Butler of the marines, led the opposition. The general and Mrs. Barnett sat in the gallery and it could not have been a pleasant experience, looking back now to what was then said.

Social Lobbying

Gen. Barnett married into the navy, Mrs. Barnett is a granddaughter of Capt. Arthur Sinclair, USN, who had much to do with the founding of the naval academy at Annapolis.

The couple were very active in Washington social life whenever the husband was stationed here. That led to charges of "social lobbying" on his part in connection with the proposed increase in rank. The house defeated the project and it was never revived.

Congress always has guarded jealously ranks above that of major general or its naval equivalent, rear admiral. Admiral Dewey and Gen. Pershing alone achieved such permanent distinction in modern times.

Most other high ranks have been temporary, with the exception of Lieut. Gen. Jadwin, who went up on retirement due to long ago legislation designed to reward Goethals the Canal builder. Gen. Crowder, war time provost marshal general, came near to a lieutenant generalcy during the war. He also was blocked by congressional reluctance such as denied the rank to Barnett.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

Service and Reward

The disciple is not above his master and all who will live Godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer.

To the one we are the saviour of death unto death and to the other the saviour of life unto life, our lives should be a living condemnation of that which is sinful and if Christ live in us they will be. As evil men see Christ living in us now they will reproach both Him and us now, even as they reproached Him and His followers in the past.

Let us see this reproach in connection with our classes of people. First, the unregenerate. Is there one who has never borne this reproach, one who has chosen the riches of this world rather than the reproaches of Christ?

Let him change his dross for true gold and cast his lot with the children of God who have an heritage that passeth not away. Let him make the change now for the master saith, "Take up thy cross and follow me and His burden is light for He giveth strength to been it.

And how about the second class, Professing Christians. When it falls upon him it is very sure to drive him from his profession for he will soon weary of it and well it is that it does for he is but a spy in the army of the king and weakening its forces more by his presence than he could in any other capacity. But when it falls upon the possessing as well as profession Christian it will drive him to his knees before God that he may receive strength to live a deeper, fuller Christian life which shall be filled not so much with work as with the spirit. Lastly in connection with ernest or spirit filled Christians, as it comes to him, it brings him in closer and sweeter communion with his Lord and Master and he feels as did Peter in the fulness of Christian experience when he said, "If ye be reproached for the name of Christ, happy are ye, for the spirit of glory and of God resteth upon you."

Then in the glorious reproach which though it come as a stone hurled from wicked hands, yet as it passes through the fires of the conscience, it becomes as a cut gem of brightest lustre, most precious to our souls. Christian, that word intended as a term of reproach and abuse applied to the followers of Jesus Christ, becomes our fairest name.

Blessed are ye when men shall hate you and when they shall separate you from their company, and shall reproach you, and cast out your name as evil for the son of man's sake.

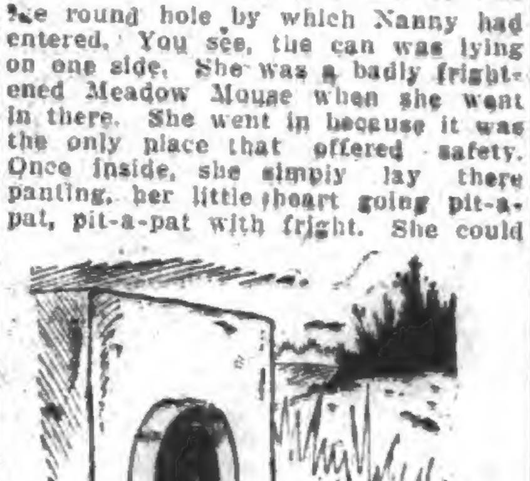
"Rejoice and be exceeding glad, for great is your reward in heaven, for so persecuted they the prophets which were before you."

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

The Wisdom of Nanny

They're fortunate who feel they know
Just when to stay and when to go.
—Nanny Meadow Mouse.

The old can in which Nanny Meadow Mouse had escaped from Flip the Terrier was a gallon can which had once contained oil. It was square at each end, or top and bottom, as you please. In one corner of the top was the round hole by which Nanny had entered. You see, the can was lying on one side. She was a badly frightened Meadow Mouse when she went in there. She went in because it was the only place that offered safety. Once inside, she simply lay there panting, her little heart going pit-a-pat, pit-a-pat with fright. She could hear Flip sniffing around outside. He hadn't seen her when she darted into that hole. Of course, he saw that old can, but he didn't give it a thought. Finally he went away.



In and out of the old can Nanny ran

Nanny remained right where she was for a long time after Flip had gone. She kept expecting Danny Meadow Mouse. Danny didn't come. Finally Nanny ventured outside. She would go look for Danny. But when she got outside she didn't know which way to turn. You see, she had been so confused by Flip that she had lost her sense of direction. So finally she went back to that old can.

"I'll stay here a while," said Nanny to herself. "Danny is sure to come looking for me, so the wisest thing to do is to remain right here."

This was a very sensible thing to do, especially as she had no idea in which direction to look for Danny. Having the usual amount of feminine curiosity, she whiled away the time by very carefully examining that old can. She went all around it. She jumped up on it. She went in and out of it a dozen times. Presently she forgot all about Danny. Yes, sir, she forgot all about her Danny. She had become so interested in that old can that all thought of Danny left her.

"This would make a wonderful home," said Nanny. "I could build a nest inside this thing and it would be a regular castle. I believe I'll make a bed in there just to try it. That's what I'll do—I'll make a bed in here and just see how it goes." So Nanny straightway began cutting grass and taking it into that old can. She was a very busy small person. Forgotten was all her fright. Forgotten was the fact that Danny was lost. She was just happy in what she was doing and that is a fine way to be. In and out of the old can Nanny ran. Every time she went in she had a mouthful of soft grass—soft dry grass, that would make the very nicest kind of a bed. By and by she had enough in the end of the old can to curl up in comfortably.

By this time Nanny was tired. She was tired enough to want a nap. So she curled up in the bed of dry grass and no sooner was she nicely curled up than she fell asleep. You see, as I said before, she was tired. She fell asleep inside the old can and while she slept Danny Meadow Mouse went straight past the old can.

You see, when Danny finally escaped from Flip the Terrier he at once started to look for Nanny. By that time he could no longer find her scent with his nose, so all he could do was to go in the direction in which he had last seen her going. He knew what that general direction was and, although he didn't follow her footsteps exactly, he was near enough to the direction to pass that old can. He didn't pass the end where the entrance was; he passed the other end. So of course he had no idea that he was so near Nanny. He kept on going and with every step he felt more and more lonesome.

YOUR HEALTH

Indigestion

By Halstead G. Murray, M. D., Framingham, Mass.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Except for the common head cold, indigestion is the most common ailment found in industrial clinics or dispensaries. In a factory employing three thousand men and women, it has been found that there will be over a thousand cases of indigestion yearly. The common causes for these cases of indigestion are: overeating; eating too much sweet sweet foods; eating to much meat, potato and bread to the exclusion of vegetables and fruits; a lack of water; drinking water that is too cold in extreme hot weather; drinking too much tea and coffee; chronic constipation; nervous or emotional strain; eye strain.

Overeating of any foods, of course should be avoided. Excessive amounts of candy and peanuts between meals are bad. Many persons today live almost altogether on a diet of meat, potatoes, bread, tea, coffee and sweets which are all acid-producing foods. By eating plenty of vegetables and fruit, which are alkaline producing foods, the diet is balanced. It is practically impossible to eat too much of fresh fruit and raw vegetables such as cabbage, lettuce and celery. Raisins are particularly alkaline and make good fillers for sandwiches as a variation from meat.

Many persons while working never take a drink of water. This of course is a very bad practice and often leads to indigestion or constipation. Six glasses of water every day are needed. Others suffer because they sit in a cramped position and never stop to stretch the muscles with a few bending exercises.

Emotional strain will often interfere with proper digestion and many other cases are found to be due to eye strain and when the proper glasses have been obtained, the digestive trouble promptly clears up.

The great majority of cases of indigestion seen among a large group of workers are of minor nature and can be prevented and corrected by advice in regard to diet and personal hygiene. The annual physical examination, at which time these minor ailments can be discussed with the examining physician, offers the best means of obtaining advice in regard to minor complaints which often appear to be too trivial to require a visit to the doctor's office. If you have a factory clinic where you may go for such advice and treatment, make use of it, and do it early, for it is only by caring for these minor ailments early that we may hope to prevent the major ailments from developing as a result.

FARMING BY IMMIGRANTS MISSION MEETING TOPIC

The May meeting of the missions department of the Women's Federation of Park Congregational church was held Friday afternoon in the parish house, Mrs. Allen Latham presided at the business meeting and Miss Alice W. Cogswell led the devotional service.

Miss Cogswell read a most interesting resume of the book under discussion at recent meetings, Edward Brunner's "Immigrant Farmers and Their Children." Statistics from the census of 1920 show that one-fourth of the foreign-born population of the United States have become farmers. They have come mainly from northern Europe, for instance, the Germans and Scandinavians and from southern Europe, the Italians and Polish, and have settled chiefly in the middle west, Minnesota having the largest number, although Connecticut has the largest number in proportion to area. Through hard, intensive work by the family and frugal living they have prospered. At first they are handicapped in adjusting themselves to the social and religious life here by their inability to speak English. At school there seems to be little difference betwen the intelligence of their children and that of native born children, but there is a difference in grade status.

The second half of the book deals with four individual colonies of farmers; one near Wilmington, N. C., where old plantations were cut up into ten acre farms to stimulate agriculture in that region, a project which has been most successful; one at Askov, Minn., made up entirely of Danish people who still speak the Danish language and strive in every way to preserve Danish culture. Their business is dairying and the raising of potatoes and rutabagas. Near Petersburg, Va., we find many farms owned by Czechs who peddle their vegetables and eggs from door to door. At Sunderland, Mass., there is a colony of Polish farmers who raise onions and tobacco.

Miss Edith M. Bliss gave a splendid report of the second annual meeting of the Council of Congregational Women of Connecticut, held recently at Hartford. She reviewed briefly the inspiring addresses made in behalf of the missionaries and their great work.

NORWICH HOMES LISTEN IN FOR FOURTH NIGHT OF C. OF C. RADIO BROADCAST

Norwich homes were tuned in Friday night for the fourth in the series of broadcasts from Station WTIC, with reception conditions very satisfactory so that it was easy to follow the Doctor and the Schoolmaster as they sat talking at the Inn. The broadcast was given as follows:

ANNOUNCER: The strains of "Yankee Rose" bring to you the fourth program of Norwich, the Rose of New England," a program sponsored by the Merchants Bureau, Chamber of Commerce, Norwich, Connecticut, the city of the famous nine miles square. It was incorporated as a township in 1685. Manufacture and trade soon followed, the first iron-works being established in 1750, and 16 years later the first paper-mill in Connecticut was erected here. In 1784, a city charter was granted

Norwich offers exceptional recreational facilities. Within a short distance of the center of the city is Mohegan Park, situated on the high hills, overlooking the city with an area of 375 acres. The park has been left in its natural state as far as possible, and here is beautiful Mohegan lake, where bathing, boating and skating may be enjoyed in season. Chelsea Parade, Little Plain, Franklin and Laurel Hill parks are all advantageously situated. The Lucas Memorial forest on the shores of Trading Cove appeals to the lover of the outdoors, while at old Norwich Town are the Green, Lowthorpe Meadows and Meeting House Rocks.

The old Doctor and the Schoolmaster have their accustomed chairs on the porch of the new Norwich inn as we open the program, the time is nearly noon, green meadows roll away to purple hills in the distance, the sun, nearly vertical, paints a ribbon of silver along the Thames, a bee drones past, a bird in a nearby tree calls impatiently, from the interior of the inn comes the clink of silverware, the patter of feet.

SCHOOLMASTER: They're setting up for dinner, doctor. Make you hungry?

DOCTOR: Professor, I haven't had a thought of any kind for the last ten minutes. This rural atmosphere of Connecticut has me down for the count.

SCHOOLMASTER: I was wondering what you were thinking about.

DOCTOR: Is it absolutely necessary that a man think constantly!

SCHOOLMASTER: Suit yourself, doctor, I won't interrupt you. I'm not a Rogerene.

DOCTOR: Huh? you're not a what?

SCHOOLMASTER: A Rogerene, never heard of 'em?

DOCTOR: I'd like to know where you pick all these bob-tails and rag-ends of history. What about 'em?

SCHOOLMASTER: The Rogerenes were followers of John Rogers, who founded the religion, if you can call it such, in the neighborhood of New London, some time before the year 1700.

DOCTOR: Yes? and in what did they believe?

SCHOOLMASTER: I haven't been able to find out yet. But there's many a tale about what they didn't believe. Apparently, they were against organized religion, the clergy, priests, ministers, and preachers in general. On Sunday, they made a practice of visiting services in various churches, once inside, they'd endeavor to stop the service.

DOCTOR: Charming people!

SCHOOLMASTER: Made noises, whistled, and yelled, I suppose.

DOCTOR: What could they hope to accomplish by that? they didn't have religion, they had a complex.

SCHOOLMASTER: They paid several visits to Norwich. Used to visit Dr. Lord's meeting-house. Whenever possible, the Rogerenes were taken up before the magistrate and fined, usually five shillings for travelling on Sunday. There's one case where your old Blue Laws were a blessing.

DOCTOR: Only they weren't blue enough.

SCHOOLMASTER: The Rogerenes enjoyed themselves until they struck Norwich in 1725. They were taken up before Justice Backus, prepared to pay the customary five shilling, but the justice jumped the price on them twenty shillings or ten to fifteen lashes apiece at the nearest whipping-post. And they forgot to bring enough money with them. They had to take the post.

DOCTOR: Things do turn out as they should, occasionally.

SCHOOLMASTER: While we're on the subject of New London, didn't Benedict Arnold lead an attack down there, or something of the sort?

DOCTOR: I'm sorry you had to mention Arnold, professor. To Norwich, that's like reaching in and rattling the skeleton in our closet. You see. Arnold was born in Norwich.

SCHOOLMASTER: Pardon me, doctor, I didn't know. Of course, you wouldn't brag of it.

DOCTOR: Arnold's father was a Rhode Island sea-captain. His mother was one of God's own women, a Christian, a wonderful mother, and a good neighbor.

SCHOOLMASTER: Yes, she would be!

DOCTOR: She died in Arnold's childhood. Perhaps, if she had lived well, it's too late for that, now. Arnold went to school in Canterbury, but came back to Norwich and became an apprentice in Deacon Lathrop's drug store. He tired of the drug business very quickly, and went to sea.

SCHOOLMASTER: That life would suit him better, if I visualize the man correctly.

DOCTOR: Toward the end of the Revolution, Arnold anchored off the port of New London with 14 British ships and a large detachment of British and Tory troops. He led an attack on the town and destroyed 143 buildings. Fort Trumbull was taken easily, but Fort Griswold, on the Groton side, put up a stiff resistance.

SCHOOLMASTER: The name Trumbull and Connecticut seems inseparably connected down through history.

DOCTOR: Don't they, though! Arnold ordered two parties to approach Fort Griswold from each side. There were more men in the fort than Arnold had expected. He tried to signal his men. They didn't get the signal, but kept on advancing on Fort Griswold. Both commanders leading the attack were killed.

SCHOOLMASTER: But they made it, finally! They got inside?

DOCTOR: By force of numbers, and with tremendous losses. Once inside, Major Bromfield asked for the commanding officer. Colonel Ledyard stepped forward and replied: "I was the commanding officer, but you are now, sir," and the colonel handed his sword to the major.

SCHOOLMASTER: With a stately bow, of course! Everything in those days was done with elaborate ceremony.

DOCTOR: A British officer, sickened at the sight, and stopped the slaughter. The story goes that the blood ran over the shoetops of the soldiers. A fuse leading to the powder magazine was lighted, and some of the wounded were loaded into a cart and pushed down hill, the cart made the descent alone, colliding with a cherry tree near the bottom.

SCHOOLMASTER: I wonder who thought of that!

DOCTOR: Original idea, isn't it! Four of the wounded were killed outright, Colonial troops came to the rescue, but too late. The British retreated. Arnold sailed away with one ambition ungratified. He wanted to destroy Norwich, his birthplace.

SCHOOLMASTER: Put the skeleton away, doctor. Why rattle dead bones on a day like this! There's better music to be found in Norwich.

DOCTOR: How're you spending your time, professor? still nosing around discovering things?

SCHOOLMASTER: Jewett City yesterday, doctor.

DOCTOR: Oh, yes, Jewett City, eh? the Aspinook company?

SCHOOLMASTER: Doctor, if you asked one question of a thousand women, how many do you think you'd get?

DOCTOR: Depends on the question, possibly a thousand answers.

SCHOOLMASTER: The Aspinook company had the right idea. They developed a new fabric and then went out to the ladies, a whole thousand of them, and said: "Ladies, what are we going to do with it?"

DOCTOR: A new fabric, you say? I'll stick to my original estimate, a thousand answers.

SCHOOLMASTER: Three hundred and eleven of the ladies said: "Wall covering." Two hundred and seventy-seven said: "Table covers." One hundred and fifty-two said: "Pillows and cushions." Eighty-one thought it might be useful for art novelties.

DOCTOR: Doesn't sound like a unanimous vote!

SCHOOLMASTER: Thirteen voted for lamp-shades. Fifty suggested book-binding. Four mentioned shoes and slippers. Two saw in it a good material for beach coats. There was a scattering of opinion from baskets to blackboards, vanity cases to trunk-linings, aprons to hats and caps.

DOCTOR: For goodness sake, professor, what is this fabric?

SCHOOLMASTER: You've seen it often, without knowing it. Haven't you noticed recently the kodaks in the store windows blossoming out in all the colors of the rainbow? Perhaps your spectacle case has a touch of color. You might be touching it when you take down a volume of the Encyclopedia Britannica.

DOCTOR: Am I supposed to guess? What is it?

SCHOOLMASTER: Permatex, doctor, a trade name for a water-proof, sun-resisting fabric, with a soft, lustrous satiny sheen, in fact, you'd swear it was satin, if you only looked at it. Put it up on your walls, cover your furniture with it, makes a good cover for a shower bath.

DOCTOR: Permatex, you call it? Any color, I assume.

SCHOOLMASTER: And a million designs, the pattern is printed on, by a patented process, almost any number of colors. Why don't you take a run over to Jewett City and see Permatex in the mills of the Aspinook company. You've mulled over colonial manufactures so long, why not see something that is modern to the present minute.

DOCTOR: Takes you to hunt out these things, doesn't it, professor? But why go over to Jewett City? From your description, I'll have a job keeping out of the way of Permatex. You say the ladies are using it for costumes?

SCHOOLMASTER: What aren't they using it for, hats, caps.

DOCTOR: Speaking about hats, we had a hat-maker in Norwich once, you'd be interested in him. Ever hear of Aaron Cleveland?

SCHOOLMASTER: Don't believe I ever did! Hat-maker?

DOCTOR: That's the way he earned his living, but he wrote a little poetry on the side. He became a leader in public opinion about the time we had our first misunderstanding with England. He also wrote prose, essays and sermons.

SCHOOLMASTER: Quite a versatile man, wasn't he?

DOCTOR: During the early stages of the Revolution he kept asking a very pertinent question. He didn't understand how a nation could countenance slavery and yet fight for liberty.

SCHOOLMASTER: Right to the point, doctor. Our forefather were slave-holders, weren't they?

DOCTOR: Old Aaron Cleveland was a member of the state general assembly in 1779, and introduced a bill for the abolition of slavery. If you look in the records, you'll find that many of the slaves held in this section of the country were set free, along about the time Aaron Cleveland was knocking off their shackles single-handed. He began what Abe Lincoln finished.

SCHOOLMASTER: Only Cleveland was about 80 or 90 years ahead of his time.

DOCTOR: Aaron had a son, William Cleveland, who lived and died in Norwich. The son was a silversmith. But Aaron Cleveland had a great-grandson you've heard of, Grover Cleveland, twenty-second president of the United States. And he is but one of five presidents of this country whose ancestries can be traced to Norwich stock.

SCHOOLMASTER: For that, we can forgive you your skeleton!

DOCTOR: There are many little bits of surprising odds and ends to be discovered in any city, Norwich, I think, has more than most cities. Take for instance the music teacher we had in our Broadway school, James A. Butterfield, I dare say you've never heard of him.

SCHOOLMASTER: Never did, doctor. What's his claim to fame?

DOCTOR: He wrote a song while he was teaching music here. Jim Butterfield is dead and gone, but his song still lives on. You've heard it more than once, perhaps sang it yourself, "When You and I Were Young, Maggie."

SCHOOLMASTER: I might have missed that one, doctor, because I'm not any too familiar with music, especially the popular brand. But I'm on the trail of some of your literary lights of days gone by. Norwich doesn't show up half bad.

DOCTOR: No, we've had writers of national fame since very early days. That's about all I can say about them. On that subject, I'll have to listen to you, professor.

SCHOOLMASTER: Well, there's Lydia Huntley Sigourney, to begin with, Another school teacher, doctor. Born in Norwich in 1791. Taught school on Broadway, the Broadway of Norwich. She was a very prolific writer, the author of 53 volumes of verses and prose.

DOCTOR: That's more than a five-foot shelf!

SCHOOLMASTER: Her first book was published in 1815, when she was 24 years old. In her time, she was called the "American Hemans," and her work achieved a nation-wide popularity. Doctor, you ought to read her "Letters of Life." It gives some very charming pictures of Norwich in the years 1793 to 1815.

DOCTOR: "Letters of Life." I'll see whether they have the book at the Otis library.

SCHOOLMASTER: And of course, there was Ik Marvel. Ever heard of him? Otherwise Donald Grant Mitchell, author of "Dream Life" and "Reveries of a Bachelor." Great books in their day, doctor, and still being read. Ik Marvel was born in Norwich. As for journalists, there was Isaac H. Bromley.

DOCTOR: Wasn't he on the Norwich Morning Bulletin?

SCHOOLMASTER: The same. Chauncey Depew called him a most conscientious journalist, with whom no personal relations interfered with what he felt to be a public duty. He was also on the New York Sun and the New York Tribune. Bromley was born in Norwich.

DOCTOR: And if I'm not mistaken, there was one man who was both an author and a journalist.

SCHOOLMASTER: You're thinking of Edmund Clarence Stedman, who spent his boyhood in Norwich. Yes, he ranked high as a poet and an essayist. When the Civil war broke out, he was at the front with the Army of the Potomac, as war correspondent for the New York World. An odd thing about Stedman, doctor, was the fact that he was a member of the New York stock exchange.

DOCTOR: Not an active member!

SCHOOLMASTER: As active as any! Much of his best literary work was done between sessions of the exchange, not all of them light ones, by any means. His father was a business man; his mother a writer of poetry. That explains it. In later years he gave himself entirely to literary work, and if you don't own a copy of "The Inland City, Norwich" by Edmund Clarence Stedman, you're a mighty poor citizen of the "Rose of New England!"

DOCTOR: Why read about Norwich when I can live in it! But I guess you're right, professor. It's a fortunate thing old Philip can't read that book. It would have broken his heart.

SCHOOLMASTER: Philip? Philip who?

DOCTOR: An Indian chief by the name of Metacom, sometimes called King Philip. He was the Indian who staged the famous protest against the aggressions of the white race, back in Colonial days, in 1675, one hundred years before the Revolution, if you're fond of dates.

SCHOOLMASTER: Was that war fought in this part of the country?

DOCTOR: Well, the Narragansetts took part, incognito, you know, and their sachem was executed down at Stonington. King Philip, the moving spirit, didn't organize a league of Indians. There was no great Indian conspiracy against the English. But all of the Indians had been regarding with anger and bewilderment the way the white race was spreading over their land.

SCHOOLMASTER: You can't blame them, can you?

DOCTOR: From the Indians viewpoint, it was a war for freedom and existence, but it rapidly degenerated into a war for revenge. When the trouble broke out, the chief in this section, Uncas, sachem of the Mohegans, was ordered to report at Boston and give up the firearms of his tribe, as a token of neutrality.

SCHOOLMASTER: Giving up firearms would make anyone neutral.

DOCTOR: A treaty of friendship was also effected with the large tribe of Narragansetts, but not in a friendly way.

SCHOOLMASTER: A treaty of friendship, in an unfriendly way! That's a new one on me, doctor.

DOCTOR: The treaty was kept in the same way. Young men would steal out of the Narragansett fort by night, weeks later they would return, wounded. The English settlers near them concluded the young men were assisting King Philip.

SCHOOLMASTER: Circumstantial evidence, but it would pass in a court of law.

DOCTOR: One thousand men were collected, and 150 Pequots and Mohegans. In the dead of winter, they marched against the fort of the Narragansetts, to wipe out the nest which hatched so many warriors for King Philip's army.

SCHOOLMASTER: In other words, why let the young men go away to fight! Bring the fight to them!

DOCTOR: Exactly, smoke 'em out. The fort of the Narragansetts was burned to the ground, the Indians driven out of the country, homeless. But not defeated. Their sachem Canonchet, refused to surrender, and he led his tribe to the aid of King Philip.

SCHOOLMASTER: Rather unusual Indian!

DOCTOR: Most of the disasters which followed, and there were many, can be chalked up to Canonchet. He maintained the conflict in a style worthy of Napoleon. Village after village was burned, the inhabitants massacred or driven miles through the deep snow. But there's always a waterloo!

SCHOOLMASTER: Quite so, doctor, although that may not be its name.

DOCTOR: Even Indians must eat. And with the coming of spring, Canonchet marched south into his old country, to plant corn for the next harvest. He reached a place called Seaconk, and there ran into a party of English and Indians, Pequot and Mohegan warriors. Canonchet and his band were discovered and the chase was on!

SCHOOLMASTER: They got him, I presume.

DOCTOR: Yes, by accident. He was leaping across a brook and the lock of his gun was drenched, useless, a swift runner among the Pequots came up with him. Canonchet surrendered.

SCHOOLMASTER: The brook, of course, was his waterloo.

DOCTOR: The death-sentence was decided upon. Canonchet was told of it, and asked if he had anything to say. He shook his head. Then he told them: "I shall die before my heart is soft, before I have said anything unworthy of Canonchet. The Indians executed him at Stonington.

SCHOOLMASTER: That's near here, somewhere, isn't it?

DOCTOR: Down on Long Island Sound. There's country you ought to see. Stonington, Mystic, West Mystic and Noank. All of it steeped in history, browse around there for a week!

SCHOOLMASTER: But, doctor, what's the connection between this Canonchet and Norwich?

DOCTOR: Do you remember the monument to Miantonomoh? in our city on Sachem's Plain? He was the father of Canonchet.

SCHOOLMASTER: Picked up an odd fact yesterday, doctor. The little village up here named Pachaug, you've been there? well, the name means turning-place.

DOCTOR: What's odd about that? It's an Indian name!

SCHOOLMASTER: Only this, Andrew Huntington, a blacksmith who used to live there, invented the little screw-tip on the end of all screw-augers. Holds the auger to the turning-place. It's a bit far-fetched, but maybe you can get it.

DOCTOR: If you'd looked around while you were in Jewett City, you'd have found out they used to make their own iron, out of bogore they dug out of swamps. No home complete without a smelter. Laugh that off!

SCHOOLMASTER: Do we play 18 holes of golf this afternoon, or not?

DOCTOR: We do, if you're equal to our 18-hole course. We began golf in Norwich with six or eight members. An old Scotchman taught us the game, with equipment imported from the old country. We played in a cow pasture, on a links of six-holes. Ah, well, even our golf course has grown since those days, almost forty years ago.

SCHOOLMASTER: Let's make a drive for the dining room.

ANNOUCER: We are concluding another program ladies and gentlemen, sponsored by the Merchants Bureau, Chamber of Commerce, of Norwich, Conn., the "Rose of New England." In 1851, the following words were written of Norwich: "The streets skirting the water form a city of business, the streets upon the hill, a city of residences, a mile or two back is the old town, a veritable life-like picture of a secluded country village of the old New England days. An hour's ride brings you to the seaside, to boats, fishing, lounging, looking, whether in storm or calm."

"If there were none of these rare conjunctions of hill, rock and plain, river and sea, Norwich would still be a beautiful place by virtue of its trees. No considerable street is destitute of them, and several streets are prolonged avenues of elms which might give a twitch of jealousy to Old New Haven herself, elm-famous."

These words, ladies and gentlemen, were written by Henry Ward Beecher, in his famous "Star Papers." The Chamber of Commerce of Norwich, Conn., invites its listeners to visit the city and the country surrounding. The Doctor and the Schoolmaster will continue the program at the same time next week. Until then, they bid you "good-night."

COLUMBIAN MINSTRELS IN FINE MUSICAL EVENING

The Columbian minstrels, under the auspices of White Cross council, No. 13, Knights of Columbus, gave an evening of unusual pleasure for an audience of between 300 and 400 Friday evening in the parish hall at St. Patrick's church with their program of fine solo numbers and witty work by the end men and the interlucutor. The two premiers, William Shannon and John Kelly, were in comical costume, and the four other ends, James Brassill, Maurice Buckley, Louis Grover, and Angus McDonald, were in tuxedos and black-face. Richard Enright did fine work as interlocutor.

In the first part of the program the following numbers were given:

Opening chorus, the entire company; When Irish Eyes Are Smiling, Dan Donahue; Minnie the Mermaid, Louis Grover; Watching My Dreams Go By, Thomas Dingavin; Happy Days Are Here Again, Angus McDonald; If I'm Dreaming, Raymond Cote; St. James' Infirmary, Morris Buckley; Molly, Joseph Tighe; St. Louis Blues, William Shannon; 'Tain't No Sin, John Kelly; finale, the entire company.

GIBBS LEADS ACADEMY BATTERS WITH FINE MARK OF .558; TEAM AVERAGE .330

Capt. Ralph (Chubby) Gibbs, veteran Academy shortstop, is seriously threatening to make an all-time batting mark at the school with his big 1930 bat. Chubby's deeds with the stick are making the fans forget even Lloyd Jarvis, Johnny Greene, Hal Cummings and Buck LaCroix, all .400 hitters of recent years.

For Gibbs has, in the first ten games, clubbed for the remarkable average of .558, made up of 24 hits in 43 times at bat, and is showing no signs of ceasing. He was tied with Art Breen at .500 up to Wednesday's game but in that tilt broke loose with five out of five and gained 58 points, while Breen had only one in five and lost ground. Breen, however, is second with the fine mark of .459 and Butsy Weisgraber has .385, with ten hits in 26 trips. Breen has 17 hits in 37.

Bud Fontaine is fourth with .355 and Henry (Speed) Reardon finishes up the first five with .333. The team is hitting for the grand average of .330, showing a real punch.

Gibbs has the most hits and is tied with Alec Arico for the most runs, 20. Chubby has also the most total bases and runs batted in, 36 and 22, respectively. Breen leads in doubles with five, Gibbs has the only triple made, and Pepin and Gibbs are tied for the home run leadership with two each. Weisgraber is leading in stolen bases with nine and Gibbs and Butsy each have two sacrifices.

PUTNAM SUFFERS DEFEAT AT HANDS OF KILLINGLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 9.—Today was another bad day for Putnam high school, not because the school nine dropped its second successive ball game of the week and its third of the season, but because the Noyesmen were taken over by Killingly high, ancient rivals from Danielson, whom they have fought on the diamond for nearly a quarter of a century. A three-run rally by Killingly in the seventh inning gave them a one-run lead, which they increased with two runs in the two succeeding innings to clinch the game by a 6-5 score.

Until the seventh inning the game was a pitching duel between Louie Weiss of Putnam and Dascoli of Danielson. Weiss succeeded in striking out 15 men but poor support cost him the game. The only extra-base hits were two-baggers by Reynolds of Putnam and Gladu of Killingly. A large crowd of Putnam and Danielson rooters saw the game, which was played at Adams field.

GRIMES OUSTED FROM GAME, WAS TOO POLITE

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 9—(AP)—"Wee Willie" Sherdel pitched effectively today after Sylvester Johnson had been driven from the mound and the Cardinals defeated the Boston Braves, 10 to 6, in the first game of the series.

Burleigh Grimes, who started for the visitors, was ejected from the game by Umpire Mike Donohue because he was too polite. After Donohue had called Wilson out on strikes in the third inning, Grimes took off his hat and ostentatiously thanked him, but the umpire, unlike most of the fans, saw no humor in it. Grimes had been protesting bitterly about Donohue's decisions. Grimes was charged with the defeat and Sherdel with the victory.

Orsatti of the Cardinals and Berger of the Braves hit for the circuit.

CHICAGO DEFEATS GIANTS TO LEA DTHE LEAGUE

CHICAGO, May 9—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs, National league champions last season, reached the top for the first time this year today by beating the New York Giants, 6 to 5, in the opening game of their series. The Giants dropped to second place.

A three run rally in the eighth inning enabled the Cubs to win after they had trailed almost from the start. With two out, Hub Pruett suddenly blew up and gave three successive hits, two of them doubles by Hartnett and Stephenson, for three runs. The Giants had taken the lead in the second when they nicked Hal Carlson for three runs.

Extra base hitting featured the game. Ten of the 25 hits made by the two teams were doubles and one was a triple. Hack Wilson led the sluggers with three hits in four times at bat.

WORCESTER, May 9.—(AP)—Lou Brouillard, Danielson, Conn., southpaw, won every round from Clyde Hull, of South Dakota, in their ten-round main bout here tonight.

Hull never got started against the left-handed style of Brouillard and was clearly outclassed all the way. Hull at 150 was 2 1-2 pounds heavier than Brouillard.

NEGRO WINS WORLD'S WELTERWEIGHT TITLE FROM FIELDS BY DECISION

(By Charles W. Dunkley, Associated Press Sports Writer)

OLYMPIA ARENA, Detroit, May 9—(AP)—There is a new welterweight champion of the world, a dark skinned Negro lad of Oakland, Calif., named Young Jack Thompson.

In one of the most startling upsets in years, Thompson with the heart of a lion and the boxing skill of a Joe Gans, decisively defeated Jackie Fields, the titleholder, in a blistering 15-round battle in the Olympia arena tonight. When Elmer "Slim" McClelland, the referee, unhestitatingly raised the Negro's hand in victory at the end of the bout the crowd of 15,000 roared its approval. Fields, champion of less than a year, buried his head in his hands as he sat in his corner, crushed in defeat and cried like a baby. It was the first time that he had defended the title since he won it July 25 last year, when he defeated the tottering Joe Dundee on a foul in two rounds.

Thompson, the new champion, is the first Negro to win the world's welterweight title in 29 years, since Joe Walcott won the honor from Rube Ferns by knocking him out in five rounds in Toronto, Ont., in 1901.

Thompson won the fight decisively and cleanly. He won ten of the 15 rounds with Fields taking three, and two—the ninth and 12th—being even. Thompson, a master boxer, with the ring craftiness of the old master Gans, fought a smart, cagey battle. He had Fields so tired and leg-weary after the tenth round that the champion hardly had sufficient strength to fight back.

Thompson himself came dangerously near being knocked out in the second round, but after that he swarmed all over the champion, scoring repeatedly with vicious right uppercuts to the chin and left hooks to the body. In the second round the crowd was on its feet with excitement as Fields cracked Thompson with a sharp right cross to the chin that staggered him and made his knees buckle for an instant. Fields tore into his injured foe and whipped three more rights to the same spot and then hooked a left to the head. Thompson sagged for a moment and then covered up to escape. After wrestling Fields in a clinch, the Negro suddenly lashed out with his favorite punch, right uppercut to the jaw, and his danger was over.

This was Fields' big opportunity and he made the most of it, but could not knock the courageous Negro fighter off his feet.

After the sensational second round, Thompson began to give a marvelous exhibition of his ring cunning and boxing skill. He ducked and weaved, bobbing under Fields' punches and countered with deadly effect.

The new champion is 25 years old and has participated in more than 200 ring battles. Under the peculiarities of the financial arrangements for tonight's contest he will get only $2,500, while Fields, the dethroned champion, guaranteed $37,500 also will get a share of the purse that was to have gone to Thompson. This was the agreement, provided Fields lost.

The battle fell short of attracting a capacity house, and while the gate receipts were not immediately available it was estimated that the receipts amounted to between $60,000 and $70,000.

BROOKLYN RALLIES BEAT PIRATES IN FIRST GAME

PITTSBURGH, May 9—(AP)—The Brooklyn Robins opened their visit to Pittsburgh today by defeating the Pirates 7 to 4 in a game marked by late rallies.

Jess Petty of Pitsburgh and Bill Clark of Brooklyn staged a great duel through the first seven innings, Clark holding the Pirates to four hits. Brooklyn broke through for two runs in the sixth and drove Petty from the mound with four more in the eighth. The Pirates equalled the rally in the same inning as Clark weakened for the first time but could not score again while Johnny Frederick added a home run to Brooklyn's total. The score:

COMPSTON BEATS SMITH TO WIN PRO TOURNEY

SOUTHPORT, England, May 9.—(AP)—Playing superb golf in a gale of wind and rain from the Irish sea, Horton Smith, the lone American in the British Northern professional championship, scored a 72 and a 71 today to tie for second money with a 289 aggregate.

This figure held the lead until Archie Compston, Britain's iron man of the links, hammered a 285 out of the storm to win the title. Young Henry Cotton then came along with a 289 to tie the tall Missourian for runner-up honors in this 72-hole medal play competition.

WELLS DRIVEN TO SHOWERS, DETROIT BEATS YANKS

NEW YORK, May 9—(AP)—The Yankees dropped into seventh place in the American league standing today as the Detroit Tigers won the opening game of the series by a 5 to 4 count.

George Uhle held the Yankee batters under control most of the time, striking out eight of them, while the Tigers got off to an early start against Ed Wells and drove him from the box with three runs in the first three innings. Henry Johnson was a little better but Pipgras had to pitch the last two innings.

Earl Combs was the only Yankee batter to hit Uhle. He drove in all the New York runs with a double and a home run. Charley Gehringer led the Tigers with three hits, including a homer. The score:

A'S STRENGTHEN HOLD ON 1ST BY TROUNCING INDIANS

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—(AP)—Clubbing Ken Holloway almost at will the Philadelphia Athletics strengthened their hold on first place today by taking the opening game with the Cleveland Indians by a score of 9 to 4. Lefty Grove, who went the distance for the champions, won his fourth game of the year against no defeats.

Jimmy Foxx wiped out Cleveland's 2 to 0 lead and sent the Mackmen ahead for the balance of the game when he hit his sixth home run of the season off Holloway with two men on base in the third inning.

Eddie Morgan, of the Indians, hit a home run with Goldman on base in the seventh inning after the Athletics had bunched five more runs off Holloway and Harder in the fifth and sixth stanzas.

GALLANT FOX WON RACE AT PIMLICO

BALTIMORE, Md., May 9.—(AP)—Gallant Fox, heaviest favorite ever to go to the post in the Preakness, carried the silks of the Belair stud to victory in the 40th running of the historic stake at Pimlico today and also carried Earle Sande, America's best-known jockey to his first win in the $50,000 racing classic.

The Son of Sir Gallahad III defeated Thomas M. Cassidy's Crack Brigade in a stretch duel by three-quarters of a length, with W. J. Salmon's Snowflake another length back and Michigan Boy fourth. Seven others of the best three-year-olds in training trailed.

N. F. A. PLAYS WINDHAM IN IMPORTANT GAME

The Academy is going up to Willimantic today to play its eleventh game of the year with Windham high and a mighty important game it promises to be.

It will be the first start for the Wildcats since their disastrous defeat by Westerly here Wednesday, when they tossed away a six-run lead in the ninth inning to lose their first game 12 to 11 and the fans will all be watching the boys to see whether they can hit the come-back trail successfully.

On this game hangs the league leadership, for Windham this morning tops the circuit with two victories and no defeats and the Academy and Chapman Tech are in second place with two wins and one loss, apiece. Tech is playing Bulkeley today and should both N. F. A. and Chapman win, they would go into a first place tie, replacing Windham. They will be the favorites in their games but should Windham spring a surprise and topple the Wildcats, then the former outfit would be in a favorable position for the pennant, and the Academy would find itself in just the opposite fix. If Chapman loses in New London, it, too, will find its chances considerably blighted.

GRIMES OUSTED FROM GAME, WAS TOO POLITE

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 9—(AP)—"Wee Willie" Sherdel pitched effectively today after Sylvester Johnson had been driven from the mound and the Cardinals defeated the Boston Braves, 10 to 6, in the first game of the series.

Burleigh Grimes, who started for the visitors, was ejected from the game by Umpire Mike Donohue because he was too polite. After Donohue had called Wilson out on strikes in the third inning, Grimes took off his hat and ostentatiously thanked him, but the umpire, unlike most of the fans, saw no humor in it. Grimes had been protesting bitterly about Donohue's decisions. Grimes was charged with the defeat and Sherdel with the victory.

Orsatti of the Cardinals and Berger of the Braves hit for the circuit.

NEGRO WINS WORLD'S WELTERWEIGHT TITLE FROM FIELDS BY DECISION

[illegible] W. Dunkley, Associated [illegible] Sports Writer)

[illegible] ARENA, Detroit, May 9—There is a new welterweight [illegible] of the world, a dark skinned [illegible] of Oakland, Calif., named [illegible] Thompson.

[illegible] of the most startling upsets [illegible] Thompson with the heart of [illegible] the boxing skill of a Joe [illegible] defeated Jackie Fields, [illegible] in a blistering 15-round [illegible] Olympia arena tonight. [illegible] "Slim" McClelland, the [illegible] unhesitatingly raised the Negro's hand in victory at the end of [illegible] the crowd of 15,000 roared its [illegible] Fields, champion of less [illegible] buried his head in his [illegible] sat in his corner, crushed [illegible] and cried like a baby. It [illegible] the first time that he had defended [illegible] since he won it July 25 [illegible] when he defeated the tottering Joe Dundee on a foul in two [illegible]

Thompson, the new champion, is the [illegible] Negro to win the world's welterweight title in 29 years, since Joe Walcott won the honor from Rube Ferns [illegible] him out in five rounds in [illegible] Ont., in 1901.

Thompson won the fight decisively [illegible]. He won ten of the 15 [illegible] with Fields taking three, and [illegible] ninth and 12th—being even. [illegible] a master boxer, with the [illegible] of the old master Gans [illegible] smart cagey battle. He had Fields [illegible] tired and leg-weary after [illegible] that the champion [illegible] sufficient strength to fight [illegible]

Thompson himself came dangerously near being knocked out in the second round, but after that he swarmed all over the champion, scoring repeatly with vicious right uppercuts to the chin and left hooks to the body. In the second round the crowd was on its feet with excitement as Fields cracked Thompson with a sharp right cross to the chin that staggered him and made his knees buckle for an instant. Fields tore into his injured foe and whipped three more rights to the same spot and then hooked a left to the head. Thompson sagged for a moment and then covered up to escape. After wrestling Fields in a clinch, the Negro suddenly lashed out with his favorite punch, right uppercut to the jaw, and his danger was over.

This was Fields' big opportunity and he made the most of it, but could not knock the courageous Negro fighter off his feet.

After the sensational second round, Thompson began to give a marvelous exhibition of his ring cunning and boxing skill. He ducked and weaved, bobbing under Fields' punches and countered with deadly effect.

The new champion is 25 years old and has participated in more than 200 ring battles. Under the peculiarities of the financial arrangements for tonight's contest he will get only $2,500, while Fields, the dethroned champion, guaranteed $37,500 also will get a share of the purse that was to have gone to Thompson. This was the agreement, provided Fields lost.

The battle fell short of attracting a capacity house, and while the gate receipts were not immediately available it was estimated that the receipts amounted to between $60,000 and $70,000.

Jess Petty of Pitsburgh and Bill Clark of Brooklyn staged a great duel through the first seven innings, Clark holding the Pirates to four hits. Brooklyn broke through for two runs in the sixth and drove Petty from the mound with four more in the eighth. The Pirates equalled the rally in the same inning as Clark weakened for the first time but could not score again while Johnny Frederick added a home run to Brooklyn's total. The score:

COMPSTON BEATS SMITH TO WIN PRO TOURNEY

SOUTHPORT, England, May 9.—(AP)—Playing superb golf in a gale of wind and rain from the Irish sea, Horton Smith, the lone American in the British Northern professional championship, scored a 72 and a 71 today to tie for second money with a 289 aggregate.

This figure held the lead until Archie Compston, Britain's iron man of the links, hammered a 285 out of the storm to win the title. Young Henry Cotton then came along with a 289 to tie the tall Missourian for runner-up honors in this 72-hole medal play competition.

They will present the same formidable lineup, which in the past has always given the local team plenty of opposition and the Velvetmen will have no easy task today to come out on the long end of the score. Antol and H. Brown will share the pitching duties with Cappelli on the receiving end.

NEW YORK, May 9—(AP)—The Yankees dropped into seventh place in the American league standing today as the Detroit Tigers won the opening game of the series by a 5 to 4 count.

Henry Johnson was a little better but Pipgras had to pitch the last two innings.

Earl Combs was the only Yankee batter to hit Uhle. He drove in all the New York runs with a double and a home run. Charley Gehringer led the Tigers with three hits, including a homer. The score:

A'S STRENGTHEN HOLD ON 1ST BY TROUNCING INDIANS

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—(AP)—Clubbing Ken Holloway almost at will the Philadelphia Athletics strengthened their hold on first place today by taking the opening game with the Cleveland Indians by a score of 9 to 4. Lefty Grove, who went the distance for the champions, won his fourth game of the year against no defeats.

Jimmy Foxx wiped out Cleveland's 2 to 0 lead and sent the Mackmen ahead for the balance of the game when he hit his sixth home run of the season off Holloway with two men on base in the third inning.

Eddie Morgan, of the Indians, hit a home run with Goldman on base in the seventh inning after the Athletics had bunched five more runs off Holloway and Harder in the fifth and sixth stanzas.

BOSTON, May 9.—(AP)—Danny MacFayden, Boston's bespectacled pitcher, held the St. Louis Browns to six hits here today and the Red Sox won the first game of the series from the westerners, 5 to 2. One of the hits off MacFayden was a homer by Manion over the left field fence in the sixth. It was the third win in a row for the Bostonians. GALLANT FOX WON RACE AT PIMLICO

BALTIMORE, Md., May 9.—(AP)—Gallant Fox, heaviest favorite ever to go to the post in the Preakness, carried the silks of the Belair stud to victory in the 40th running of the historic stake at Pimlico today and also carried Earle Sande, America's best-known jockey to his first win in the $50,000 racing classic.

The Son of Sir Gallahad III defeated Thomas M. Cassidy's Crack Brigade in a stretch duel by three-quarters of a length, with W. J. Salmon's Snowflake another length back and Michigan Boy fourth. Seven others of the best three-year-olds in training trailed.

After a poor star due to the behavior of Armageddon, Gallant Fox was always well up in front, though the pace was set by one of the last minute entries, Tetrachal of the Howe stable, and Crack Brigade.

N. F. A. PLAYS WINDHAM IN IMPORTANT GAME

The Academy is going up to Willimantic today to play its eleventh game of the year with Windham high and a mighty important game it promises to be.

It will be the first start for the Wildcats since their disastrous defeat by Westerly here Wednesday, when they tossed away a six-run lead in the ninth inning to lose their first game 12 to 11 and the fans will all be watching the boys to see whether they can hit the come-back trail successfully.

On this game hangs the league leadership, for Windham this morning tops the circuit with two victories and no defeats and the Academy and Chapman Tech are in second place with two wins and one loss apiece. Tech is playing Bulkeley today and should both N. F. A. and Chapman win, they would go into a first place tie, replacing Windham. They will be the favorites in their games but should Windham spring a surprise and topple the Wildcats, then the former outfit would be in a favorable position for the pennant and the Academy would find itself in just the opposite fix. If Chapman loses in New London, it, too, will find its chances considerably blighted.

A SELF-MADE CINDERELLA STARTS OUT TO PLAY THE LADY OF LEISURE ALL ALONE, BUT ALONG COMES PRINCE CHARMING, ROMANCE AND LOVE

TWO hours ago the big limousine had taken Alice Van Dyne to the railroad station, on her way to spend a month at Hot Springs. Mary Lowe had helped to pack her handsomely fitted bags with the overflow of feminine things which filled half a dozen trunks. Now the other servants had gone—off on a ten-day holiday—and Mary was alone in the big Park avenue apartment.

Gazing out over New York's skyline from the windows of Alice Van Dyne's boudoir, Mary smiled to herself. It was just a little difficult for her to realize that for the last half year she had been a lady's maid. She certainly never dreamed of such a situation when she first glimpsed Manhattan. An orphan in a small [illegible] town she had at first taught primary school after her own graduation. Then her maiden aunt had died [illegible] a tiny sum. With her eyes [illegible] independence and some sort of [illegible] career, she had resigned [illegible] position and come on to New York.

[illegible] she had been confident that [illegible] of opportunities would present themselves. She had read of [illegible] who were making fortunes in [illegible] shops, as private secretaries and various other vocations not connected with the stage. For Mary had [illegible] as to her histrionic talent. [illegible] her gentle breeding rebelled [illegible] she had heard of life behind the scenes. Mary, perhaps, was a little [illegible] to hope to find her future in the world of make-believe. But in spite [illegible] sensible attitude, she had [illegible] it as difficult to break into the [illegible] of commerce as other girls had [illegible] to get into the footlights. Nevertheless, she made up her [illegible] that she would not go back to [illegible]ville.

It was then that want ad put an [illegible] in her mind. It was signed by [illegible] agency—one which made a specialty of obtaining ladies' maids.

Alone in the apartment now, Mary came up with a sudden jolt to something she had not realized in the [illegible] she had been there. Week in, week out she had moved in an atmosphere of opulence that seemed like fairyland. As she laid out gorgeous evening gowns and simple but [illegible] frocks, shoes and hats and [illegible] togs—and helped her mistress into them—she had not been really conscious that she envied her employer. Nor had she grumbled when she must sit up until dawn began to streak the sky, waiting until Miss Van Dyne came home.

NOW the fact suddenly dawned upon her. With it came the realization that she was in that apartment with no one to know or care what she did for ten full days at least!

"Why not?" Mary asked herself, and a mischievous smile lighted up her pretty dark-brown eyes.

With a gay little laugh she began to pretend that the boudoir was her own. So she gave herself to the sheer delight of dressing. She selected dainty silken underthings, shimmery stockings and buckled shoes, a black velvet gown that fitted as though it had been designed especially for her. She carefully penciled her eyebrows and touched at the red of her lips. Then she stood still as she heard a noise from the corridor. The boudoir door was open and the sound came from the foyer—a sound like a bag dumped on the floor and a muttered oath.

"Where in blazes is that light [illegible]" a masculine voice complained.

Frightened but calm, Mary turned off the lamp on the dressing table [illegible] open a drawer, her fingers found the tiny automatic her mistress always kept there. Who the man was and how he got in she had no idea, but she thought that burglars always carried flashlamps with them. In any event, she told herself, she must not lose her nerve. Alone in the apartment, high above the street, there would be no one to hear her call and her only hope of summoning help would be the telephone. Even then her own position would be somewhat difficult to explain to the police.

Edging silently toward the door, she peered along the hallway. As she did so it was flooded with a rosy glow. At the far end of the passage she plainly saw a tall, good-looking man in light hat and overcoat. On the rug in front of him was a modest kit bag. Having found the switch he sought, he was looking about perplexedly. As she caught a glimpse of his face, Mary lost some of her fear. At least he was not a thug. However, she took no chances. She had read that many racketeers dress like gentlemen.

Acting on impulse, she walked through the door. Pointing the automatic directly at the intruder, she spoke as he heard her step. "What do you want—and who are you?" she asked. Mary's calm tone surprised her and apparently startled the man.

"I—I beg your pardon!" He took off his hat. "You see, I wasn't expecting—that anyone would be here."

"Obviously," said Mary, observing his confusion.

"Please don't misunderstand me," he hastened to explain. "You see, I'm a friend of Jack Van Dyne's. Met him at the club this afternoon, and [illegible] Alice were going away [illegible] gave me this latchkey. Suggested that I bunk here—use his diggings and make myself at home while he is gone."

Mary's heart sank as she realized that he no doubt spoke the truth. What would be more natural and what a mess she had made of things by remaining there herself! As a chum of her mistress' brother, what would he think of finding a strange girl in the [illegible]? If only she had on her uniform [illegible] not be so bad. Then she could have changed and hurried off.

"I'M TERRIBLY sorry—really—and I promise not to shoot you." She balanced the miniature gun in her hand and he grinned at her. "You see, I'm—a friend of Alice's—and she [illegible] me to camp here—while I am in [illegible]. Of course, she had no idea [illegible] Jack—"

"Naturally." He nodded. "I'm Tommy Moore—but I don't suppose you've ever heard of me."

That was a relief to Mary. If she wasn't supposed to know Tommy Moore, he wouldn't know Alice's friends. At least she would have to chance it.

"I'm Mary Lowe," she told him. There was no chance to invent a name. Even if she tried, she thought, she wouldn't remember it. It really didn't matter. She could never explain to the Van Dynes anyway. As soon as she could get away she would leave her job behind. "I hardly know just what to say," she added honestly.

"Don't give it a thought." He picked up his bag. "I'll run off to a [illegible]."

"But you mustn't!" she protested. "You see—I was going—away myself. Only I missed my train."

"I'm sorry—and yet, you know, I'm glad." He smiled at her boyishly. "Suppose I run off and change my duds—and then, if you've nothing else to do—won't you have dinner with me?"

To consent would be nothing short of insane, yet Mary wanted to. "Why not?" she asked herself. She couldn't make matters any worse and she never would see him again.

"But I feel like a wretched criminal—turning you out like this." She meant that literally.

"Don't," he answered earnestly. "Think how much nicer it is for me. Much nicer than finding no one here and going to dinner all alone. Can you give me, say, all hour? Will you meet me downstairs at the entrance? I can be there at 7.15."

"Why, yes," stammered Mary, perplexedly. There seemed nothing else she could say.

"Fair enough! It's awfully good of you. I won't keep you waiting." He stepped into the elevator, shut the door and pressed the button.

As Mary watched the lift sink with Jack Van Dyne's departing guest, her terrified heart sank with it. Now she was certainly in for it—if she met him as she promised. What if they should meet friends of his or of the Van Dyne's? Just suppose they ran into one of the girls who often had seen Mary in Miss Van Dyne's boudoir. She felt like changing while she might, packing her bag and running off.

Aainst that possibility, Mary shrugged her shoulders. Whatever she had to lose by it, all was already lost.

So at 7.15 she put on a fur wrap and observed its effect in the mirror. The ensemble pleased her. Summoning all her courage, she went down in the elevator to the apartment's street door. Tommy Moore was waiting. He had changed to a dinner coat, but something seemed to tell her that he had walked from his hotel. At least no cab was waiting, and now he looked about for one. Three were cruising by—one with black and silver trimmings, one a dark maroon and another yellow and green.

"Oh, please!" She put her hand on his arm. "Call the yellow one!"

"Why?" he asked as she smiled at him enigmatically.

"Because it suggests a pumpkin coach—and I feel like Cinderella."

"Do you mean that I'm supposed to be Prince Charming or something like that?"

Naturally, he imagined that she was not serious. Yet she felt that he was embarrassed as a yellow taxi carried them through traffic to the exclusive restaurant that he had proposed. Perhaps that gave her courage, for as they entered the dinner club Mary walked with the air of one who was quite accustomed to places of the sort. She was conscious of the eye of an obsequious captain. Her manner, her gown and the fact that she wore no jewels convinced him at once that this lovely girl must be some one worthy of his best attention.

HE SEATED them at a table directly on the dance floor. Not so good, thought Mary. But as her companion ordered, she felt more at ease. Although she felt that he was proud of her, she felt a trifle awkward as she declined a cigarette from his proffered case. She was quite aware that other girls at surrounding tables were observing them. She also noted that a number of men evinced a guarded interest. Thus far she had seen no one who might recognize her.

Then began a sort of fencing match which served as conversation while their meal progressed. Just what he said and what she answered Mary was not quite sure. The music and the atmosphere of the smart cafe made her feel as though she lived through some rosy dream. Now and then he would ask some question which she found difficult. She would parry with the suggestion that she wished to dance. And when they did she quite forgot that she was not what she seemed. As they glided in perfect rhythm with the syncopated music Mary forgot completely that she was masquerading. In their sheer enjoyment both of them began to feel that they'd know each other always. Befors either of them knew it the evening had slipped away. Mary heard a girl nearby say it was 12.30.

"I'm afraid we must go," she protested when he begged another dance. "Cinderella's time's most up—I must make an early train—"

"Not tomorrow—please!" he begged but Mary shrugged her shoulders.

"It doesn't seem fair," he regretted when they were in another cab. "Now that I've just found you, you're going away so soon."

She felt him very close to her—knew that he wished to take her hand—yet was sure she would resent it. If only he hadn't been so sure! She'd have told him everything! But she must leave town next morning. The faintest dawn of common sense warned her that she had to no other course.

"I'm sorry," she said and turned away. She dared not meet his eyes. "And I'll never, never forgive myself—"

"For making me very happy—by going to dinner with me?"

As he said that he helped her out of the cab and she ran across the sidewalk. In that moment she hated herself—first for her deception— and for wanting to see him again—even if that meant going on with her acting of a lie. Now he stood on the stoop beside her.

"You're not afraid to go up alone?" His tone was solicitous.

"Oh, no!" she assured him hastily. She was more afraid she'd betray herself if she stayed there talking with him. "Thank you so much—and forgive me—"

"For turning me out?" He laughed. "I will if you'll promise to meet me for breakfast in the morning. Shall I phone or will you call me at the Bellaire hotel?"

She was going to say, "Oh, but I couldn't." Instead she said, "I'd love to."

"That's great!" he smiled as she unlocked and partly opened the door. "Now, I'm going down the street—on the corner over there. When you get upstairs switch on the lights and wave to me from the window. If I don't get your signal that everything's all right, I'll do a human fly stunt and climb to your rescue."

LONG after Mary had signaled as Tom Moore had proposed, she courted sleep in vain. When she had reached the apartment she had flooded it with light, hastened to the window and peered down at the street. Rows of motors still moved in lines up and down Park avenue, but there were few pedestrians, and she plainly distinguished Tom on the corner far below. She watched him raise his hat to her when he saw her silhouette against the glow behind her. She saw him linger and then turn away with evident reluctance.

At last she made sure of the bolt on the door and went with hesitating steps to her mistress' bedroom. Amid utterly alone. She had imagined that the silence of the apartment she felt this adventure would only prove diverting—to reverse her role of lady's maid and play at debutanting. But now she found that the taste of it left a bitter pang. If it hadn't been for Tommy Moore, it wouldn't have been so bad. When she had planned it her prank had seemed innocent enough. Now she felt a sense of guilt because of what had happened.

What should she do in the morning? Through it all she remembered a tall, fair-haired figure, blue-eyed and boyish. She lived through again the ecstasy of dancing in his arms. Mary recalled his courtesy, his almost bashful thoughtfulness every single moment they had been together. Hardly knowing that she did so, she caressed the hand he had touched. She knew she was in love with him—absurd as that might seem—and intuition told her that he was attracted to her. Yet what was the use of deceiving herself? Once Tommy Moore should learn that she was a maid in the Van Dyne household, pride alone would make him furious with her. He never would forgive for for taking him in like this.

At last, when drowsiness overcame her, she drifted off with the memory that Tommy had asked her to breakfast. But she hardly seemed to have closed her eyes when she awakened and sat up in bed with a sudden start. It was not the familiar alarm clock that summoned her this time. Instead, it was the telephone that tinkled with soft persistence close to her tousled head.

For a moment she stared about the room with a dawning realization of her unaccustomed surroundings and her presence there. Half hesitant, her hand went out to the black-and-gilt receiver of the foreign telephone. Gingerly she touched it, her slowly returning consciousness struggling to decide for her what she ought to do. That Tommy Moore was calling she had not the slightest doubt. If she chose to bluff it through, the chances were that she could keep up her role of the previous evening. If she should keep on for a day or two, those days could be glorious! She could go about with Tommy Moore, posing as Alice's friend, wearing her clothes and living the life of the girl in whose bed she found herself in the midst of this dilemma.

The gentle call of the telephone grew more and more impatient. With a yawn and a shrug of her shoulders, she put the instrument to her ear and softly said: "Hello!"

"Have you any idea what time it is?" a voice that thrilled her asked. "I've been waiting for hours for you to call—and they've seemed like ages."

Mary flushed and her heart beat faster. She was glad that no television device enabled her caller to catch a glimpse of the light that showed in her eyes. Those eyes would have told her secret. She could see them in the mirror.

"I—I guess I must have overslept." She could have bitten off her tongue for that. The very suggestion betrayed her for precisely what she was—an impudent little impostor, indulging in vain dreams.

"Oh, well!" came Tommy's cheery voice. "We can make our breakfast luncheon. Let me know when you'll be ready and I'll drop around for you."

FOR a moment she hesitated. Then she spoke very slowly, her conscience prompting her: "I'm afraid that I can't see you—that we'd better say good-by."

In the brief pause that followed, Mary sensed his consternation and his disappointment. She wanted to tell him the truth right then, but, of course, she could not. The best thing to do was to end it before she made matters worse. She felt that she could not face him and confess what she had done.

"Please don't say that!" she heard him plead. "There is something I must say to you—something I must explain. You can send me away at once if you like—but, honestly, I can't go like this. Let me see you, won't you?"

"If you like," Mary agreed, against her better judgment. "There's something I want to tell you, too. Then it must be good-by."

"As long as you give me a chance to make you understand!" His tone was eager, grateful. Mary closed her eyes and sighed, not quite understanding him, buttermbling at his words. "Can't we go somewhere where we can talk—where there won't be a mob?"

She was thoughtful for a moment. Mary felt that she could not go through this scene in a public restaurant. To ask him to come to the apartment would be no more than Alice Van Dyne would have done herself. She knew that a man like Tommy Moore would not think it strange. So, in view of her own feelings and Tommy's attitude, she made up her mind at once.

"Suppose you come here in an hour," she said. "You still have the key, haven't you? Well, come up in the elevator and I'll let you in."

"NOW you've done it!" Mary thought as she hung up the phone. But just exactly what she had done and what she meant to do she was not quite sure. The half-open door of a closet offered its suggestion. Alice Van Dyne's adornments beckoned alluringly. All she need do was avail herself of these costumes and this setting. In the next few days she felt she could make Tommy Moore her slave. That he was infatuated was plainly evident.

That her own emotion was serious only complicated matters. A girl who was calculating would know how to act at once. In books and in the movies the girls behind the counter or the office desk were always winning husbands as wealthy as they were handsome. So why shouldn't a lady's maid win her mistress' brother's friend? Suppose she kept the truth from Tommy until he proposed! Lots of matchmaking mothers and lots of debutantes resorted to feminine strategy no less dishonorable. There were several girls in the Van Dyne set who were showing themselves like mannequins in an effort to land a title or a millionaire.

"I'm afraid I'm too darned genuine!" Mary answered that. Yet she knew that she wanted Tommy Moore and wanted him for himself. If only he wanted her that way—but how could he when all that he had seen was her outward sham! She knew that she could never bear his contempt if she took advantage of the situation. She could readily imagine the sneers of the Van Dynes' friends. She fancied headlines in the papers, sensational and cutting. No, it would not be fair to herself—let alone to him! But in spite of that she wanted Tom—loved him as though she had known him for all of her twenty-four years, instead of the few hours of their chance acquaintance.

Then, in spite of the heaviness of her heart, her youthful spirit of mischief got the better of her. She couldn't help wondering what he would say, what he had to tell her. At least, she thought, she might take her cue from his attitude. So before she knew it she was dressed in a saucy little morning suit which became her wonderfully. Nevertheless, she hurried off to her own plain bedroom. There she laid out a dress of her own, a new pair of oxfords and a plain green felt hat. She hastily packed her belongings into her traveling bag. When the comedy was over she would be ready for her exit.

As she finished the doorbell rang. For a moment she was too frightened to attempt to answer it. Then, pulling herself together, she took a last glimpse at the mirror and hurried down the hall.

"How lovely you are!" Tommy exclaimed as he stepped into the foyer. Then, in mutual embarrassment, they walked to the living room. The sun streamed in and tinted her hair a burnished golden chestnut. Mary sank into the nearest chair and studied the tip of a dainty pump which she realized was not hers. A Cinderella's slipper, if there ever was one!

In spite of her invitation, Tommy did not sit down. Instead, he began to pace the floor, apparently seeking vainly for words to express himself. At last he paused and faced her with an air of desperation.

"I suppose you think I'm crazy!" he blurted out abruptly. "And I guess I am."

"Perhaps we both are," Mary said, more to herself than to him.

"I know I am!" Tommy went on. "Simply crazy over you!"

"That's flattering," she smiled.

"Don't tease me!" he begged. "Can you imagine anything more absurd than my falling in love with the only daughter of Silas Rowe?"

MARY'S heart took a flipflop. When she had told him her name was Mary Lowe he had not caught it clearly. The answer was evident. He had mistaken her for Mary Rowe, one of the richest and most haughty of the Van Dynes' friends. That was really too delicious! Now her hesitation vanished. She knew that she was going to enjoy what was sure to follow. Of course, the man was sure to follow. Of course, the man was going to propose—to a million-dollar dowry—which he naturally thought she would bring him. He was surely a fast worker and a clever one at that.

"I know you won't—you can't believe me when I say I love you—but I mean it just the same."

"Have I asked you to prove it—by jumping out the window?" Mary simply could not resist that impudent little dig.

"Of course, I've no right to tell you." He ignored her cut. "Jack Van Dyne would be simply furious. What's more, I wouldn't blame him. He gave me his key and told me to stay here—to save me a hotel bill. Aside from the cash in my pocket, I haven't a cent in the world. Tomorrow I'm sailing to take a job—a job that Jack has given me—on a plantation that he owns down in Colonia." He paused and faced her pathetically. "Mary, I had to tell you. If I thought there was even a Chinaman's chance—that you could ever care—"

"Suppose I do?" She stopped him with the faintest whisper.

"It would be—too glorious!" Before she knew it, Mary was in Tommy's arms. She could feel the beating of his heart as she nestled her head on his shoulder and he kissed her cheek. In another instant he had found her lips. Only her secret sense of guilt marred Mary's ecstacy. Oh, he must—she was sure he must love her! And she knew that she loved him. Yet because of the girl he thought her to be, she was tortured with a doubt.

Gently she pushed him away from her. Her eyes dropped under his gaze—eager, yet hardly believing that she could care for him.

"I'm a fool!" he said after a moment. "I don't know what you must think of me. But I hope you believe I'd never touch a cent of your father's money."

Mary shrugged as though money was something that did not matter at all.

"I'll never make what you spend on clothes!" Tommy hung his head. "And you'd find Colonia different from Park avenue."

"Perhaps I'd like it," said Mary very quietly. "But Tom, we've got to be practical. We'll have to talk things over."

"You mean," he asked, "that you want to? Oh, Mary, you're perfectly splendid! But there isn't any reason why you should starve just yet. Shall we go and eat?"

"Well, at least you're considerate." She threw back her head and laughed. Something told her the next few moments might be the most important she had ever known. "We're not going out and we're going to eat," she announced decisively. "I'm going to get some sort of luncheon here—just to show you that I can."

Tommy took a step toward her, adoration in his eyes, but she eluded him. "You stay where you are—smoke two cigarettes—and don't you dare to leave this room until you hear me call!"

* * * * * * * * *

It was more than fifteen minutes before Tommy heard her voice. In the meantime, he had nervously consumed four cigarettes. He turned abruptly as she said, "If you please, sir, luncheon is served."

Tommy stared at her in amazement. She was standing in the doorway, dressed in her uniform—a most appealing figure. His gaze wandered from her high-heeled pumps to the white-frilled cap she wore. As he stared she made him a most respectful curtesy.

"Waht a perfectly stunning maid you'd make!" His intonation convinced her that he had no suspicion that the costume was her own.

"Think so?" she asked with twinkling eyes. "Would you give me a situation? I'm sure Miss Van Dyne will tell you that I'm reliable."

He smiled, but his expression grew bitter instantly. "Please don't rub it in!" he exclaimed. "I wish to the devil you were a maid instead of Mary Rowe!"

"But I am—and I'm not," she said softly.

"You are—and you're not! Not what?"

"Not Mary Rowe," she told him. "I'm Mary Lowe, lady's maid—at your service, sir."

"Do you mean it?" he gasped and caught her hands. Tommy regarded her hungrily as a dawning intimation of the whole situation came to him. "Am I awake or am I dreaming?" he breathed as he drew her to him. "If you're not the other Mary, dear, tell me that you're you!"

"I'm not sure!" She shook her head. "If you want me, I guess I'm—yours!"

POETRY

A Boy's Mother.

My mother she's so good to me,
Ef I was good as I could be,
I couldn't be as good—no, sir!—
Can't any boy be good as her!

She loves me when I'm glad er sad;
She loves me when I'm good er bad;
An', what's a funniest thing, she says
She loves me when she punishes.

I don't like her to punish me—
That don't hurt—but it hurts to see
Her cryin'—Nen I cry; an' nen
We both cry an' be good again.

She loves me when she cuts an' sews
My little cloak an' Sunday clothes;
An' when my Pa comes home to tea,
She loves him most as much as me.

She laughs an' tells him all I said,
An' grabs me up an' pats my head;
An' I hug her, an' hug my Pa
An' love him purt'nigh much as Ma.

EXPECTS MERRY CROWD ON 13TH.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Just a little reminder, next Tuesday, the 13th, is meeting day of Club No. 2 and we hope to have a nice day and a merry crowd.

And be sure to plan to spend the afternoon with another right there in the hall. I guess Red Rose will tell you all about it when you get there.

Calla Lily: We feel that the least any of us can do is serve once in ten months. It should not be hard to get hostesses from the large crowd that generally comes.

And, as Scottie says, we always give good service, well that is what we aim to do. We like to see every one satisfied—but if they don't bring the food we certainly can't give it to them for we always put everything on the table. No reservation is our motto. The service was so good one year that we two had just one roll and a lettuce leaf from the salad bowls each for our dinners. But we have another scheme that we will try out this year and perhaps it will work better. We will explain it at the meeting. Hope it won't be so hot next week. THE HOSTESS.

MOTHER.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Next Sunday is Mother's day again. How many of us will be glad that we still have our mothers to love and help and make things as pleasant as we can for them. Many there are that will be sad with the thought of the dear one that has passed on during the year.

The older we grow the more we appreciate what our mother means to us and what a debt we owe her, a debt that can never, never be cancelled, for all that we are and all that we ever hope to be we owe to our beloved mother, for it was her good example and her good Christian training that made us what we are.

Mother watched over us and nursed us from the earliest hour of our existence; she has been up early and late working for us and caring for us to make us happy.

She is the only one that never shrinks from us or never forgets us no matter what we do, always giving, never demanding the least little thing for herself.

There is no love like a mother's love. There never was and there never will be, for no matter what you may do you may always be sure that mother loves you.

M—is for the many things she gave me.
O—is only that she's growing old.
T—is for the tears she shed to save me.
H—is for her heart as pure as gold;
E—is for her eyes with love light shining.
R—is right, and right she'll always be.
Put them all together they spell mother.
The word that means the whole wide world to me. BACK EYED SUSIE.

THE HAVOC FOUR FOREST FIRES

Dear Sisters: It is two weeks since I have written so think I had better be busy. What lovely warm days we have been having. We can believe now that summer is on the way. It is cooler tonight though and from all appearances we are about to have a thunder shower. The rain would be just as acceptable without the thunder, but to those in the districts threatened by forest fires it will be welcome the way it comes. It is sad to think of the many left homeless and the thousands of dollar of valuable timber that has been sacrificed to the dreaded menace. When we think of the many years it takes for the trees to grow and the few minutes of fire and they are worthless, we can't help but wonder why it has to be. A good deal of credit should go to those men who worked so hard and fought so bravely in a losing fight to save homes and property. We were surrounded by fire but stil none came near to us.

I thought some more of the sisters were going to tell us of their experiences in driving. Surely Chauffeur and Bay State must have some to tell us about.

This letter is rather a piece-meal affair and I had a rest spell since starting it. The thunder shower is over and gone with hardly enough rain to dampen the ground, and this morning is as hot as yesterday. I don't mind the hot weather though as much as I do the cold.

This morning Kitty Lou and I saw the fleet of airplanes, 28 of them, go over. They were in formation flight, three in a group and didn't seem to move out of line a particle while they were in sight. I don't think I'll ever get over running to the door to see a plane.

Jane of R. I.'s experience in cutting back potatoes makes me think of the time I weed a bed of marigolds. After spending a whole morning in weeding and transplanting I found I had pulled out all the marigolds and carefully left bitter-weed.

Brown Eyes: Did the fire come any where near you?

Hoot Owl and Pyrethrum: You have my sympathy in your trouble.

Best wishes to everybody.

WHAT DO HOMEMAKERS DO?

Dear Corner Sisters: "U. S. Wants To Know What Home Makers Do All Day Long." That's the headliner to an article that appeared in the New York Evening Post a few days ago. I'm sure the sisters who are homemakers and so "ungainfully" occupied will be interested. That "ungainfully" is the government's idea not mine. I can't say there's ever been much "gain" in home making for me. As far as I could see the other fellow was always the gainer. But maybe it's all in the way you interpret it. Anyway here is the article as it appeared in the Post:

"It's entirely inelegant, of course, but there just isn't any other way to put it: The government is certainly a glutton for punishment.

"One might reasonably suppose that the taking of the census with all its difficulties, would be enough to satisfy Uncle Sam's thirst for gathering information about his boys and girls. But not at all.

"So far from being satisfied, that thirst seems only to have been whetted, and the good uncle is all wound up for another go at collecting statistics.

"This time, however, men go scot free. It's the women who are under investigation. And how:

"What the folks in Washington want to know is what the married ladies are doing with their time.

"So they have sent around blanks, upon which these ladies, who are assumed to have taken on the management of a home when they undertook a husband, are to keep an exhaustive record, down to the last detail, of what they do around the house every minute for a week, from the time they get up in the morning till they drop in their tracks at night.

"There are several blanks under the headings 'Daily Time Record of Home-maker,' one for each day of the week. The time schedule, so it is explained, is to be taken 'from midnight to midnight.'

"Upon each of these blanks the home-maker is to enter in an assigned space every activity in which she engages during the day. Not an occupation is too brief or too humble to have its space on the schedule. For instance, in the sample blank which is included for the guidance of the worker a typical morning's activities appears as following:

"Slept.
"Dressed.
"Prepared breakfast.
"Ate breakfast.
"Cleared table and washed dishes.
"Made bed and straightened room.
"Dressed.
"Wrapped gift for friend.
"Went to post office.
"Mailed gift.
"Went to store.
"Shopped for dress for self.
"Returned home.
"Prepared lunch.
"Ate lunch.

"After each entry, the lady is instructed to put down the number of minutes it took her to perform each duty.

"On the reverse side of the sheet she is to keep a similar schedule for each person helping in housekeeping and care of members of household, whether the individual be husband, son, aunt, hired girl, hired man, neighbor's daughter, etc., etc.

"On another kind of blank, called 'Home-maker's Time Schedule', the woman in the home is to amuse herself with the following little items:

"Keep a record of your time expenditures for one week.

"Make a list of all your activities which are done regularly, putting first those which come every day and then those coming several times a week, once a week, once in two weeks, and so on.

"Before each item indicate how often it is done.

"After each item put an estimate of the amount of time it required.

"Revise your list, considering whether there are any items which should be added: which should be dropped or transferred to some other member of the household: which might be done less frequently: which might be simplified so as to require less time.

"And so on.

"Stil another blank consists of four pages, headed 'Supplementary Information.'

"Upon this one is to pour out one's soul in regard to whether or not the waste water from the kitchen sink is carried out of the kitchen, and if so, how many feet has it to go: whether or not one has a bath tub, and if so, is there both hot and cold water? Whether laundry is sent out or done at home: if not, why not? How many loaves of bread were used during the week and was it home-made or bought? How many days has the home-maker spent away from home during the last year? Where did she go on each occasion and why? What are her husbands reactions to all this?

"These things are only several of the 350 questions which are described under the caption 'Supplementary.'

The main purpose of this series of questionnaires, according to a letter accompanying the mass of blanks, is to find out whether the modern home-maker in the United States has too much or too little to do.

"Obviously, the government believes she has too little."

There, sisters, you have it! I'm wondering how many of you have already received the blanks, and how you are making out with them. I'm breathlessly awaiting mine.

FULFIL SOME OF MOTHER'S HOPES

Dear Corner Sisters: Mother's day, and what a day that should be!

Who has done more for humanity than mothers?

She risked her life to give us life. Every day, in every way, she sacrificed herself for us, to ease our aches, to feed us, to make us comfortable, to give us every advantage, and to give us as much happiness as possible.

Drums beat; symbals clash; sumptuous celebrations are given; we uproariously cheer, and pin medals on people for deeds of heroism—deeds that called for the bravery of a moment. Were mother's deeds the sacrifice of a moment? Indeed not! Her's was a bravery of years and years' endurance! Not even sumptuous celebrations and medals are adequate rewards for her. No one can ever pay his debt in full to mother for the devotion, the tenderness, the sacrifice, and the unselfishness of her love. The best return we can make is to fulfill some of the hopes she held for us. We can get the best out of ourselves, live clean, and try hard to accomplish something worthwhile, and make her feel that all she gave was well worth the giving. That holds for all of us no matter how old we are, even if we ourselves are mothers. Indeed only after we become mothers do we get an idea what the word "mother" means.

If mother has left us and joined those in the Great Beyond, the memory of her should be sufficient to make us want to do our best to live up to her expectations of us. We'd be pretty good now, wouldn't me, if we were half as good as mother hoped we'd be?

CURIOUS TO KNOW MEMBERS

Dear Social Corner Members: Some of the older members are not writing in as much as they used to do. They say they are giving the space to the new members, so I'll try and fill up some of the empty space, but I don't think any of us new members can write the interesting letters that the older members can.

I suppose everyone but me is through cleaning house by now. I surely ought to be, but there's one room left to do yet. Everytime I get all set to do it there comes such a lovely day that I just run the car out and start some where, but I hope to be all through by the time this letter is printed.

Do all you Corner folks realize how very popular the Social Corner is, and how very many members it has? Dozens of my friends belong and most of them grab the paper on Saturday morning and read every word of the Social Corner news before they can get on with their work with an easy mind, they tell me. I'm no exception to the rule. I do it, too. Lately I've heard so many remarks about belonging that I am curious to know more of the members. I think I know who "Firefly" is, after White Chrysanthemum's tip, but I'm not sure yet. If she is the little lady who drives a blue car with silver wings on the radiator cap through our village so often, then I know her only as an expert automobile driver.

And who is White Chrysanthemum? Are your real initials D. S., or is my guess wrong? Will someone write in the care and food for a Japanese robin. I've had a present of one and I'm not sure about his diet, but he is doing fine so far.

E PLURIBUS UNUM

CLUB 2 MEETS

Corner Folks: On Tuesday, May 13, Club No 2 meets in Buckingham Memorial. Red Rose is putting on a program suitable for Mother's day, called "A Visit with Mother." She also has music planned, including piano and vocal solos. Bring your patch work, crocheting, etc. and visit with mother. Red Rose has also arranged for the table decorations as is her regular yearly work for the Corner. I, for one, think it is mighty nice of her to put in her time at home as well as at the Memorial to plan and fix the tables as she does. It surely takes a load off of each hostess not to have to do the work Red Rose does for the tables.

With the warm spell coming the first of May it surely makes one think of the outdoor picnics. Well, it will soon be here as our June meeting will be the last indoor one, so make the most of our May anad June meetings.

Isadore: Can you bring the banjo for Tuesday's meeting and help in music?

J. J. B.: Glad you sold your house, but sorry to know you are going away to your new home. Club will welcome you, I know, but don't forget the bus runs to Club 2's home, so be sure and be with us often.

Aunt Rosa: How goes the new bungalow?—Hope gang is feeling better.

Bumble Bee: Glad you are able to get out and will soon be with the Corner again.

Sorry to see so few letters in the Corner page. Write something. I heard several say June brides are coming. Why not keep the household hints and good cooking recipes coming. We find new ideas in food and other helps. It seems as if our page has got away from the old ideas and helps to the new housekeeper.

Here is a recipe that I have found to be very good.

Old Fashioned Rich Jumbles: 1 1-4 cup granulated sugar, 3-4 cup shortening, 3 eggs, 3½ cups flour (either kind), 3 teaspoons (level) baking powder, ½ teaspoon mace, 2-3 teaspoon salt, juice 1 orange and 1 lemon, 1 cup chopped nuts. Mix as written, roll thin, cut with jumbler. (Jumbles are cookies with holes in center like a doughnut has.) Place on greased pans and leave space between cakes and bake in slow oven about 20 minutes. Can sprinkle sugar on top before baking or caraway seed and sugar. After you brush over with egg. Wask calls for 1 egg, yolk, ½ cup evaporated milk or cream. Brush over top of pastry or rolls. Keeps good on ice as a left-over for future use. CALLA LILY

HAPPY HOUR GARDEN

Dear Social Corner Readers: Can you guess who was my guest the last week end in April? You are right, it was Pernickety herself. How our tongues did fly! We had not seen each other since Christmas. Now that she is on the farm for the summer we expect to meet often. We talked about many things but the chief topic was gardening. Youngest sister came with her so while she was keeping my children busy playing, Pernickety and I visited.

She said that her back was lame from working in her garden but that did not keep her from helping me with mine. I showed her my new hot bed and she sowed seed in one-half of it. I am trying a glass substitute in place of the usual hot bed sash and we are both interested in how it will work. We moved some perennial plants and set out the pansy and delphinium plants that she brought over for me.

Last summer I had 70 hollyhocks blooming in my garden. About one-third of them winter killed so we replaced the dead ones with young plants that I had grown for that purpose. Then Pernickety prepared a place for me to set my gladiolus bulbs. I dug up some gypsophila plants for her garden. She will find this useful for mixing with her other flowers for bouquets.

Sunday afternoon we went riding and called on a friend. I gave her mother a box of plants. She asked us to see her garden and the result was that I brought home a larger box of plants than I carried away. Our next stop was at Pernickety's home. As it was getting late I had only a brief glimpse of her enlarged garden. In a few days I shall spend an afternoon at Pernickety's and see all the fine plants that she has growing in the hot beds. Since she was here, the seeds that she planted for me have begun to come up. The weather has been so very warm that everything is growing fast. And so the happy hours speed on. SISTER RHODY.

MOTHER'S DAY

Dear Social Corner Editor: I was surprised and pleased when I saw in Saturday's paper that I had won a prize, for which I thank you.

What a wonderful time the spring is and how well every thing knows when to grow and blossom. Oh the wonderful color of the violets, the fruit trees and in fact every thing seems so thankful and bursts forth in all their glory for the new life. Everything seems so fresh, clean and new. Life, beautiful life, how grand it is.

Sunday will be Mother's day and how every thing seems to point to her loving memory. My dear mother passed to the higher life 14 years ago March 12, but the memory is fresh in my mind of a dear soul. After her transition, I kept having what I called a picture shown me, and it kept coming every day, until I wrote it down in the form of a poem. I called it My Mother's Spirit Home and she seemed satisfied after that, because she knew I had received the impression and was glad.

What a wonderful thing it is, to have a mother. Other folks can love you, but only a mother can understand. Love and best wishes to all.

SUGGESTS CARDS FOR AUNT SARAH

Dear Social Corner Sisters: The Social Corner page looked rather slim the past two weeks, suppose everyone is busy cleaning house, so can not spend time to write.

How beautiful everything looks this time of year, it seems as if God intended to make a perfect world for his people to enjoy, but through carelessness how much is destroyed. The terrible forest fires are raging around us, destroying property. If only everyone would stop to think what the result might be, perhaps there would not be so many careless smokers.

Another faithful Social Corner member has gone from our circle—Rhody Louise, Mrs. Alive Bill—who passed away April 22. Although not situated so she could attend the meetings, yet she never lost interest in the Corner.

One day last week Wee Wifie and I called to see Bumble Bee and had a very pleasant call, found her cheerful and able to get around with the use of crutches, but can not realize what a trial it must be to one as active as she, to be shut in for so many weeks.

I wonder how many of the sisters know that Aunt Sarah is confined to her home by illness, as she is known to many personally and to others by her good letters, I know all will be glad to send her a card or letter. She has opened her home in Lebanon several times for a meeting or picnic and has always been so interested in the Corner. It was through her that the last meeting of Club No. 2 was held, coming from Hartford to assist in the meeting. Address Mrs. Ella Foster, 123 Zion street, Hartford, Conn.

As one can always find help in the Social Corner I am asking if any one can send in the poem beginning, "I can not say and I will not say, that she 's dead, she is just away." It was read at the funeral of a friend and I thought it beautiful.

Best wishes to all sisters and readers of the Social Corner.

DORINDA

MY GARDEN

Dear Social Corner Members: Do you really wish you could see my garden? I am afraid that you would be very much disappointed in it. You see, a garden reflects its owner's personality and character to a certain degree and therefore mine is a distinctly haphazard affair. It isn't so very large—I just went out and measured it with a yard stick so I could tell you—about 90 feet long and 30 feet wide and a great deal of that space is taken up, not by plants by paths and rocks.

You would probably get a shock at the very beginning of your stroll up my central path, for in defiance of all the rules of symmetry and color schemes I have placed a clump of scarlet Monarda on either side of the entrance. Why? Because the humming-birds love these red flowers and if I plant them closer to the house instead of in the background we can see these brilliant little birds oftener. Last summer they came almost constantly to get honey from the blooms, from the time they opened till the last bit of scarlet faded away.

Then, away up in the northwest corner there is a tangle of grape vines, hazel bushes and raspberry canes. I dare say the garden's appearance would be improved if I cleared them out but—. During the summer that small jungle has many visitors. There are wrens and catbirds and brown thrashers and towhees scratching about in the shelter the vines afford. Last summer a yellow-throated vireo built its nest in the apple tree over head and the male entertained us with his beautiful singing. In the late summer a small wild bunny made this tangle his headquarters. He must have been a true flower lover for though we often saw him hopping leisurely about the paths, I did not find any plants that he had hurt.

My rock garden stil looks bare and deserted in spite of the grape hyacinths, daffodils and violas blooming there. The flowers seem to be much later there because it is not sheltered. The wallflowers are growing slowly and should be sending up bud stalks but I have not seen any yet.

The 15 peonies I bought last fall have all come up and there are a number of Chinese forget-me-not seedlings in the bed which have come up from seed. Do you think they will make good bed-fellows? I shall leave them for a while and if the forget-me-nots thrive and annoy the peonies they will have to come out.

One of the prettiest plants in my garden now is pink beauty or sidaleea. It is a compact ball of glossy green leaves perfectly symmetrical in shape. The plant and leaves are fully as pretty as the flowers which are pink and bloom in June and July.

Experience is a great teacher. I thought that I was smart enough to move oriental poppy seedlings from the cold frame to their place under the wall. I watered them well and took up huge masses of dirt with each plant and not one of their little white toes was exposed to the air and light. In spite of all my precautions they are wilting and turning yellow and I am afraid that in a day or two I shall have a dozen dead poppies to dispose of. They were supposed to be all shades common to poppies from white to the black red. I think that I shall cry!

PERNICKETY

HOUSECLEANING

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Brothers: Look's who's here! Old man Whyle! Just a few lines to let you know I'm alive. I have been pretty busy cleaning house. I wonder why in time every one should clean house. Every spring (some time in the fall, too, if they didn't get enough in the spring) they take everything down, off, up and out of the house. Just what good does putting one's bed outdoors for one day do? Why not put it out several days or better yet, leave it out? And carpets! How I hate 'em. Rugs are just as bad. Oilcloth is worse. Ever tried laying oilcloth? It's just awful. Everything has to be taken from the room first, then you begin to wrestle with the thing. Sometimes it gets you and other times you get it. Sometimes you find you have to lift that and yourself at the same time. It just can't be did for Josh Billings tried to. He stood in a tub and tried to lift the tub and himself.

Well at any rate we have forced the dirt from two rooms. We ain't through yet. I'd never know where my things are again. Biddy Ann does upset things so. I'm glad we have no attic. I don't believe in 'em, they hold too much sentiment an old doll carriage not old enough to be sent to a museum but alright with a little mending to send to some little girl, a chair with part of one rocker gone (alright for some one's porch), picture frames, a sled may be and maybe a hobby horse, his tail and mane eaten up by bugs.

Sisters, look your attics over and part with what you can't use of the accumulation. I've been looking through some old papers. Some of these papers are the Norwich Aurora, dated 1858 others are the Norwich Bulletin, dated 1868. The Hartford Weekly Post, 1861. From one paper I find this item: Sad accident at Danielsonville, on Monday, about 2 o'clock p. m. George Capron, a boy about seven year's old, youngest son of Capt. O. M. Capron was killed by the accidental discharge of a gun in his own hands, with which he was at play. The charge entered one eye penetrating the brain and killing him instantly. The Bulletin was $5 a year, banks were giving 3 per cent interest. A sale in Voluntown, March 25, 1858, of buildings, a cotton factory, dwelling houses, valuable waterpower lately owned by John E. Lindley. Noss, established 1868, ladies and gents dining rooms, Water street. Dinner from 12 m. to 2 p. m., 25 cents, (says I, pretty cheap). This same place advertised liquors of all kinds, best sherry wines, per gal. $1.75; men's fine dress shirts, 45 cents, men's and boys' hats, 29 to 39c. At A. R. Gladwin, you buy cloth in color, red, white and blue and make your own flags. Joseph H. Huntington's advertisement states he has just received a new line of kerosene hand lamps. Another is the Connecticut Bonnet store, W. R. Hitchcock proprietor, 500 white and colored straw bonnets for sale at a bargain. Williams & Grosvenor have bargains in balmoral shirts (what ever they may be) also the finest hoopskirts money can buy for sale cheap. Reid &Hughes, The Boston Store, have a sale on parasols, some of white lace also a sale of plain satin coaching (whatever that is, I don't know). Hislop, Porteous & Mitchell are having a sale, the first in the city, of Henrietta sateens, two grades, 25 and 37 cents, also more parasols. There must have been a great business done along the line of parasols. The ladies never went outdoor without a sunshade. Biddy Ann has a very small one used while riding in an open carriage.

This letter isn't much, but will try and do better next time. I am sending a few verses taken from an old paper. The writer is unknown to me. Maybe some one of our Social Corner friends will know who wrote them and will write in and let us know. Best wishes for all as ever.

LULAR WYLIE.

CLUB NO. 4 TO ENTERTAIN MAY 22

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: I am still alive and hoping to see all the sisters soon. I have as you all know by experience house cleaning to do and other things on my mind so have not had time to write but hope you are all well and happy. Just now the weather is lovely and makes one feel like doing a lot of work.

I have just been talking with other Social Corner sisters of Club No. 4 and I would like to invite the sisters of all clubs to come to the Jolly Social club in East Killingly, May 22. I hope to be able to give you all a good time. I am sure we can as Skinny, Pep and Killingly Bud will be right on the job to help me. So be sure and all come. We will be all prepared to have a good dinner and to spend a social afternoon.

With best wishes to all.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BROADWAY PATRONS TO FLY AS GUESTS

Through arrangement with Lieut. Charles F. Arnold of the Reliable Flying Service at Gallows field, Manager Fitz of the Broadway theatre will present eight of his adult patrons with tickets good for a 50-mile jaunt in the big five-passenger plane piloted by Lieutenant Arnold over Norwich and for miles over the surrounding territory. With the fruit trees just blossoming, Norwich's environs are charming when viewed from the air and the Broadway's "guest trips" should prove most enjoyable. The first adult ticket sold Monday evening will receive the first award, and the others will be decided according to a plan made by the theatre management.

Palace Theatre

"The Rogue Song," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's latest production with Lawrence Tibbett, famous Metropolitan baritone as the star, opens today at the Palace theatre where it will be shown through Tuesday of next week. Tibbett is supported by a tremendous cast among whom are Catherine Dale Owen, Nance O'Neil and the team of Laurel and Hardy.

"The Rogue Song" was directed by Lionel Barrymore who is recognized as a ranking musician and composer. The music for the picture is the work of Franz Lehar and Herbert Stothart. The picture has been filmed entirely in technicolor and the setting is laid in the Caucasus mountains the scenery of which lends itself to reproduction in color charmingly.

The songs in "The Rogue Song" are exceptionally beautiful and Tibbett's voice is heard in compositions, which range from those of operatic caliber, with a symphony orchestra accompaniment, to simple love ballads. But he does other things besides sing and as the chief of a band of gypsies he rides at breakneck pace through various adventures while attempting to win the love of a Russian princess.

Color and spectacle are introduced in the scenes in the great castle hall by the Albertina Rasch ballet of a hundred girls dancing to the modernistic music of Dimitri Tiomkin under batteries of kaleidoscopic colored lights. Several hundred people appear in the elaborate court scenes, the picturesque gypsy village episodes, and all are clad in gay costumes. Laurel and Hardy were borrowed to inject side-splitting comedy to relieve the tense dramatic situations and as bandits they are a complete success.

Catherine Dale Owen who made her talking-picture debut with John Gilbert in "His Glorious Night" reaps a triumph as the princess and Wallace McDonald as chief lieutenant is especially interesting. Other splendid choices for their roles are Judith Voselli, Lionel Belmore, James Bradbury, Jr. and Burr McIntosh.

Mayme—How's your husband this morning, Myrt?

Myrt—The poor boy's delirious again.

Mayme—Heavens! Is it serious?

Myrt—Gracious, no! It's the silliest stuff you ever heard. — Brooklyn Eagle.

POETRY

Mother

Mother! That name revered above
All other human names of love,
Lying so close to God's own heart,
No lip can half its power impart.
Name that speaks God's love—for He Gave its blessing to you and me,
A gift of tenderness bestowed
To all who journey down life's road,
And those who cherish it shall grow
The richer as years come and go—
For none can heed the Mother's prayer
But look to see God standing there.

To the world's Mothers—faithful—true
God gave His noblest work to do.
Teaching them how to show the way
That leads to Him—as day by day
They walk with patient feet; they know
Each painful step that we must go—
Did not Saint Mary from His birth
Bless all the days of Christ on earth?
Sharing with Him the joys He found
In home—in friends—in daily round?
Did He not find a solace rare
When His great heart was torn with care
As then He claimed her love to bless
His lonely hours of bitterness?

Mother!
Forever in my heart enshrined—
Thy name I keep with love entwined.

—By Gertrude B. Walker, in Boston Transcript.

The Bird With A Broken Wing

I walked through the woodland meadows,
Where sweet the thrushes sing,
And found on a bed of mosses,
A bird with a broken wing.
I healed its wound, and each morning
It sang its old sweet strain;
But the bird with a broken pinion
Never soared as high again.

I found a young life broken
By sin's seductive art;
And touched with a Christlike pity
I took him to my heart.
He lived with a noble purpose
And struggled not in vain;
But the life that sin had stricken
Never soared as high again.

But the bird with a broken pinion
Kept another from the snare;
And the life that sin had stricken
Raised another from despair.
Each loss has its compensation,
There is healing for every pain
But the bird with a broken pinion
Never soars as high again.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

He—Thirty-five, did you say? Then she carries her years badly.

She—She does. She's always dropping a few.—Nottingham News.

Flora—It's rumored that you're engaged to Mr. Allfront. Are you marrying him for his money?

Fauna—There's nothing in the rumor. I shall never marry—especially a man I don't love—unless he has a lot more money that Mr. Allfront.—Detroit News.

Diner—Waiter, do you call this an oyster stew?

Waiter—Yes, sir.

Diner—Why, the oyster in this stew isn't big enough to flavor it.

Waiter—It wasn't put in to flavor the stew, sir, but just to christen it. —The Pathfinder.

Mrs. Inquisitive—But what would you do if your parachute refused to open while you were falling?

Parachute jumper (bored)—Take it back and exchange it, of course.—Rock Island Magazine.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Spring hit Norwich with a venegance fifty years ago this week. According to The Bulletin of those days, men, who evidently were still wearing the old red flannels, little known in these days, "panted as they pushed along." Ladies looked languid and in dresses, The Bulletin says. Interesting extracts taken from the Bulletin of May, 1880, follow:

Monday, May 3, 1880—The officers of the New London County Agricultural society have held several meetings lately to make provisions for their annual fair which takes place in September. It is understood that they anticipate an unusually attractive show and that the trotting will be equal to the best ever witnessed in this city.

The Chelsea Savings bank is contemplating the introduction of a winding staircase at the north end of the bank building on Shetucket street, which will increase the office room, on the upper floors as it will leave a large amount of the hall room to be utilised. A new roof is also to be put on the building.

The floating remains of canines on the Thames river reveal the effect of the dog law.

Tuesday, May 4, 1880—Mr. Charles Rogers, who so long and efficiently has acted as a prescription clerk for Lanman & Sevin of this city, has gone to New London, to serve in the same capacity at Lippitt's drug store. On Saturday evening he was given a complimentary supper by his friends here.

The health committee of the city seems to have its hands full of business. It has received not less than 15 complaints against parties who are turning their sink drainings into the public gutters and endangering the health of the community. Several of the cases are in the heart of the city, and the remainder in Greeneville.

Mrs. Mattie Balch recited a select programme in the Central M. E. church last evening, before a respectable audience. She merits good audiences wherever she may announce herself.

Wednesday, May 5, 1880—The telephone is occasionally used between this city and New London and conversations are as easily carried on between the two cities as on the local circuits, the voices being distinctly heard and recognizable to those familiar with the speakers.

Mr. George A. Rudd has an evening art school in the Bill block on Shetucket street, that is quite a novelty for the place. He is teaching a new and rapid system of sketching from models and from life. He has four pupils at work on the portrait of a sitter who show remarkable talent in that line. It is a curiosity to witness this work which certainly deserves encouragement and patronage from all lovers of art.

The first hot breath of spring reached the city yesterday and the throngs on our thoroughfares showed signs of spring fever. Men panted as they pushed along, fretted at the heavy clothing they still carried, wiped their faces and exclaimed against the heat. Ladies looked languid and in distress and hung their parasols over their shoulders as though summer had suddenly come and caught them half dressed for winter.

Norwich hose company elected the following officers for the ensuing year: For foreman, J. N. Duchette, Sr.; first assistant, John Coffee; second assistant, William Tripp; secretary, George H. Wilbur; treasurer, William Noss.

Thursday, May 6, 1880—The annual meeting of the New London association is with the Rev. C. T. Weitzel, Norwich Town, Tuesday, May 11th. Delegates are to be chosen to the General association which meets in June.

Miss Alice L. Hopkins, eldest daughter of our enterprising manufacturer, Mr. S. S. Hopkins of the firm of Hopkins, Allen & Co., was married yesterday noon, to Mr. Henry R. Wood of Boston, Mass., at the residence of her parents on Williams street. About sixty guests were present and all went as merry as a wedding bell. It is seldom that a couple enter the married state with such good prospects for long life and happiness.

Mr. W. R. Burnham, after an absence of eleven weeks, returned from the Pacific coast on Monday evening looking much beter for his trip.

Friday, May 7, 1880—Mr. T. F. McCurdy has a magnificent magnolia tree in full bloom at his place on Huntington avenue, Norwich Town, which is well worth seeing. It is about 15 feet in height and 53 in circumference and has not less than 2,000 showy pink and white magnolia flowers upon it, which in the absence of all leaves, make it a bank of floral beauty seldom equalled in this latitude.

The ancient building on the premises of Mrs. Laura S. Thurston, on East Town street, Norwich Town, in which Benedict Arnold is said to have dispensed drugs and medicines in his youth, has been rescued from destruction by the elements by the carpenters and now stands on a new underpinning, and promises to stand the winds and storms of another century as a relic of by-gone days.

The shad fishermen at the Greeneville dam, caught 550 pounds of shad, yesterday, which makes nearly half a ton in two days. That is old fashioned work.

Saturday, May 8, 1880—The steamer Bay Queen, of Providence, R. I., arrived in this city, yesterday morning, under a charter to carry an invalid lady, residing at Norwich Town, from this place to Newport, R. I.

The Broadway Sunday school has been changed to immediately follow the morning service, instead of meeting at 3 o'clock p. m., as heretofore.

A stereopticon, advertising the great London circus, threw a lot of interesting and amusing views, upon a large canvass in Franklin square, last night, which attracted an immense crowd of people.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

"Not So Dumb," an all-taking adaptation of the successful stage comedy, "Dulcy," directed by King Vidor with Marion Davies as the star and with a supporting cast which includes Elliott Nugent, Raymond Hackett, Julia Faye, Sally Starr and Donald Ogden Stewart will open tomorrow night at the Breed theatre for four days.

The plot concerns a young woman, more beautiful than she is wise, whose every good intention results in a blunder. Those who have seen Miss Davies in her last two comedies, "The Patsy" and "Show People," will understand her fitness for just such a characterization.

One of the most hilarious scenes in the comedy is that in which the guests play bridge. In this episode, Miss Davies sounds a warning note to women bridge-partners who try to out-bid, out-trump and out-talk everyone else. This scene, which Vidor filmed with intimate detail, attains a high mark in comedy and will be particularly intriguing to those who enjoy burlesques of everyday happenings.

Today will be shown for the last times "The Big Party," Sue Carol's latest all talking success and Bob Steele in "Cowboys and Outlaws," also 5th chapter of "King of the Kongo," latest Fox Movietone Newsreel.

Tickets for free prizes will be distributed to every boy and girl at today's matinee.

STOCK MARKET PROFESSIONAL, WITH SALES BARELY OVER 3,000,000 SHARES

NEW YORK, May 9.—(AP) — The stock market slithered along on slippered feet today, content to plod in a narrow rut by finding itself on generally higher ground at the end of its uneventful five-hour journey.

In sharp contrast to last Monday's 5,000,000 share turnover, the volume for the day barely exceeded 3,000,000 shares, the smallest total in two months.

Trading was almost entirely in the hands of the professionals. Bears took pot shots at a few stocks, notably United Aircraft and Warner Brothers Pictures, but their ammunition was propelled by light powder charges. Pool operations by the bulls in the food, farm implement and some of the amusement shares, as well as in a few rails, met with moderate success, although there was little effort to extend the moves beyond a couple of points and profit-taking in the final hour cut closing prices from the day's top levels. A half dozen issues, including Standard Oil of New York, Studebaker, General Motors, Consolidated Gas, Kroger Grocery and American Tobacco, selling ex-dividend, more than made up the amount automatically pared from their quotation.

Steel executives attending the regular meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute reported general satisfaction with the current trend of their industry and view the immediate future optimistically. James A. Farrell, president of U. S. Steel, described current business as "very good," while Charles O. Schwab, Bethlehem's chairman, predicted an improvement in the second quarter over the first, as well as a marked upturn in the last half of the year.

Financial circles anticipate a rather larger reduction in the unfilled tonnage of U. S. Steel, to be announced at noon tomorrow.

Weekly business reviews said the general business picture was still [illegible].

The money markets eased. Demand loans were firm at 3 per cent and there was less money available outside at concessions from the stock exchange rate, presumably because lenders were becoming discouraged with current levels. Time money drifted lower and there was a cut of 1-8 of one per cent in long term bankers' [illegible]

Stocks featured in the day's dealings included Loew's which touched a new 1930 high of 94 1-4; Borden's up 3 points to a new high; Goodyear Tire up 4; and Southern Railway, up 2 5-8 net to 115 which contrasted with its recent low of 101 1-8. United Aircraft, whose earnings statement is expected soon, sank 4 points, recovering slightly. Motor, copper and oil shares were well supported. United States Steel, after dipping below yesterday's close, finished with a net gain of 1 1-2. American Tobacco B rose 9. Advances of one to three appeared in American Smelting, At[illegible] Electric Power and Light, Westinghouse Electric, General Electric, Yellow Truck, General Motors, [illegible] Carbon, Hudson Motors, International Harvester, New York Central, Public Service of New Jersey, Standard Oil of Kansas, Sun Oil, Standard Oil of New York, and Granby Copper. Manhattan Electric Supply, whose recent market action is being investigated by state authorities, dropped 5 points to another new low.

Commodities were irregular. Wheat closed fractionally higher. Cotton was [illegible] 2 to 7 points lower, sugar eased but coffee was firm. Corn [illegible].

Foreign currencies showed an easy [illegible].

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, May 9.— (AP) —Wheat went up and corn down today, with all deliveries of corn breaking the season's low price record. Predictions were current in some quarters, notably at Liverpool, that the United States government crop report this afternoon would prove bullish as to wheat. Besides, indications pointed to enlarged export business in wheat today with premiums the best yet this year for overseas shipments from the United States. On the other hand, corn planting was reported as making rapid progress, and bigger marketing of corn from rural sources was being looked for as soon as planting of the new crop has been finished.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1-4 to 7-8c a bushel net higher. Corn closed 1-2 to 1 1-8c down, oats 1-8 to 5-8c off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 10c.

Provisions eased down on account of scattered selling notwithstanding upturns in hogs values.

MONEY

NEW YORK, May 9.—(AP)— Call money steady, 3 per cent all day. Time loans easier; 30-60 days 3 1-4a3 1-2a3 3-4; 4-6 months 3 3-4a4. Prime commercial paper 3 1-2a3 3-4. Bankers' acceptances easier; 30 days 2 5-8a 2 1-2; 60-90 days 2 5-8a2 1-2; 4 months 2 5-8a2 1-2; 5 to 6 months 2 3-4a 5-8.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, May 9—(AP)—The curb market closed firm today, with a wide assortment of utilities, industrials and specialties showing substantial gains, although trading was again at the low levels of early March, and price movements were hesitant and uncertain during much of the day. Total sales were only 809,300 shares.

Electric Bond and Share accounted for a substantial slice of the day's business, moving up 2 1-2 points to 100 in active trading. The United Gas issues, American Light new and American Gas and Electric sold up 2 to 4 points. Niagara Hudson and St. Regis new sold up slightly in fairly active trading, in contrast to dullness elsewhere.

Dresser Manufacturing B was a firm feature of the industrials, moving up nearly 4 points to a new high at 44. This issue, recently listed, has practically eclipsed the class A stock in trading, and has sold substantially above its recent over the counter quotations. Sponsors of the stock point out that the company is doing an unusual volume of business, owing to many gas line projects. Another firm spot was Bellanca Aircraft, which mounted 3 points to 14, a new 1930 high. Fokker also moved ahead moderately. Deere was firm in sympathy with strength of the farm implements on the big board. In the amusements, Loew's warrants reached a new high, in sympathy with the stock. Technicolor sold up about 4 points, then encountered profit taking.

Oils were highly irregular. Gulf lost 2 points, possibly reflecting the $3,000,000 fire at its Bayonne refinery, while Humble sold up a couple of points. Indiana was fairly active, moving up a point, then sagging. Cities Service gained fractionally. In the coppers, Newmont and Noranda were again in fair demand, reflecting the increased red metal buying.

NEW YORK, May 9. — Business failures reported for the week by R. G. Dun & Co., totaled 525, compared with 472 last week and 428 defaults in the corresponding week last year. More failures occurred this week than was the case last week in each geographical section, with marked increases in all parts of the country. In each section the total was in excess of that for the corresponding week of 1929.

Sinclair Consolidated Oil Co., and Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, increased the tank wagon price of gasoline 1-2 cents a gallon to 9 cents. The advance in the New York harbor area followed the advance by other companies recently, the current market ranging from 9 to 10 cents, with probably the great bulk moving at the lower quotation.

Sale of a New York cotton exchange seat for $20,000, a decrease of $1,800 from the previous sale, was reported today. The sale was the membership of George H. Hutzler and was made to Alvan L. Wachsman for another.

COTTON

NEW YORK, May 9.—(AP)—Cotton futures closed steady, 3 to 7 points lower; spot quiet; middling 16.55.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, May 9.— (AP)— The bond market moved slightly higher today under the leadership of the foreign issues and the domestic rails.

Several carrier liens registered the highest prices of the year as time money again eased. Another favorable credit development was a further reduction in the rates on longer term bankers' acceptances. Share feature bonds, particularly the convertibles, strengthened under the influence of a stronger stock market.

The foreign list showed definite signs of pulling up from the base to which it had been anchored for several days.

Many European loans displayed the best activity of the week on reports that the terms of the German annuities loan had been completed. The United States is expected to take about $80,000,000 of the $300,000,000 total, which will probably be offered at 93. The coupon rate, according to unofficial reports, is to be 5 1-2 per cent.

Several of the high grade rails moved up more than one point, and new highs were established in the secondary group. Frisco 4 1-2s, the most active rail bond, gained 1-8, and Oregon. Warren 4s, Southern Railway General 4s, Texas Pacific 1st 5s, and Wabash 2nd 5s gained from one to two points. Missouri Pacific convertible 5 1-2s climbed into new high ground at 99 1-2, up 1 1-2. Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington 5s, and Texas and Pacific 5s, also established new highs for the year. Several others equalled the high mark for 1930, notably Pennsylvania 4 1-2s.

Northern States Power 5s advanced 7-8 to 102 1-2, equalling the 1930 high. Fluctuations in the industrial group ranged from one to five points. Havana Electric 5 1-2s dropped 3 points to a new low at 54; Porto Rico American Tobacco 6s fell off 4 points and Wickwire 7s lost 5.

In sympathy with the stock market American Telephone 4 1-2s, Atchison 4 1-2s and Baltimore and Ohio 4 1-2s moved upward. Loews 6s with warrants gained 2 points. Warner Brothers Pictures 6s ended the day fractionally lower.

Japanese bonds were active in anticipation of the offering of a new low expected next week. French 7s were in good demand, close to their year's high. German and Belgian governments also advanced.

Sale of Mill Property

James L. Case, Realtor, has sold part of the premises occupied by the Tidewater Paperboard Co. at Thamesville, formerly the Uncas Paperboard Co., which has not been active for about a year. This includes only one building and land and not the machinery, it was revealed with the filing of documents with Town Clerk Harold S. Burt.

One of the documents is a warranty deed, whereby the Tidewater Paperboard Co., acting through J. G. G. Kerry, transfers its property for "one dollar and other valuable consideration" to Harold C. and Thure W. Dahl, of Boswell avenue, this city.

The entire property has a frontage of about 185 feet on the Thames river and includes all the land and buildings from the river front as far back as the railroad tracks. There are certain restrictions, such as right of way.

In order to make this transfer, the Norwich Savings society has released a part of their $185,000 mortgage on the premises sold only. The local bank still maintains a large portion of the original mortgage, dated March 1, 1916.

Hi-test TYDOL

"YOU'RE joking!" . . . said motorists who heard the performance stories told by the first Hi-test TYDOL buyers, 18 months ago.

And then they tried Hi-test TYDOL . . . Millions of them . . . And they kept right on trying it! . . . And they have made this great, green gasoline the greatest success in gasoline history.

For Hi-test TYDOL has earned its place. It pays its own way. It lifted its quality to new peaks, and kept its price way down in the valleys. And the price is still the regular price . . . no extras to pay. And the thrill is the same old thrill of power, speed, silence, and smoothness. "Go on the Green." And make the price saving pay for your VEEDOL Motor Oil!

HOTEL WINTHROP RAID, NEW LONDON, BY FEDERAL AND LOCAL OFFICERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 9—The Hotel Winthrop, State street, was raided this afternoon by federal officers, assisted by members of the New London police department. The raiders made a search only of the hotel bar, not attempting a search of the upper floors of the building. Arthur May, one of the proprietors, was arrested on a charge of violation of the liquor law and was presented before United States Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran. Next Monday was assigned as the time for a hearing and May furnished a surety on his bond of $1,000.

The raiders found a small quantity of home brew beer and this was destroyed, excepting four bottles, which were taken to Hartford for analysis and if the alcoholic content is greater than one-half of one per cent, it will be used as evidence against May. The beer not taken to Hartford was destroyed on the premises, the raiders uncapping the beer and pouring it into a [illegible], a new method employed by raiding forces. Heretofore all the liquor found in a place raided has been seized and with the conviction of the proprietor or employe, the seized beverages were destroyed. The warrant for the raid was issued by United States Commissioner Robert H. Alcorn of Hartford upon information supplied by Federal Agent Ralph Johnson. The warrant was given to Federal Agent [illegible] Sengle, who came to New London this afternoon at 2 o'clock and accompanied by Detective Sergeant [illegible] Cavanaugh and Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey and Patrolman Frank Linehan went to the hotel where the warrant was served [illegible] A search of the bar revealed [illegible]. The allegation in the warrant is that on April 22nd, last, Johnson entered the bar and purchased [illegible] bottles of beer, paying 25 cents a bottle and that the agent was told that the beverage contained alcoholic strength sufficient to produce intoxication. Johnson, however, did not take any of the beer away from the premises for purpose of analysis. May was arrested about six weeks ago by the police when the hotel was raided, the next day in the police court he was fined $400 and costs.

Arbor Day Tree Gifts

[illegible] Arbor day, the Mariners Savings bank distributed 950 small trees, which were planted today. The trees were distributed among depositors of the bank and to the schools, [illegible] being given 15 trees each.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Heineman, of Howard street, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Gladys Heineman, to [illegible] J. Dalton, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Dalton, of Brooklyn. The wedding will take place in [illegible]

Christine Dzromba, of Norwich; Mrs. Esther Lambert, 302 North Bank street; Mrs. Roy Wilcox and infant; [illegible] John Nijosanki, Saybrook; Mrs. Robert Hunter and infant, [illegible], patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

FUNERAL

Mrs. James H. Haynes

The funeral of Mrs. Harriet E. Haynes, wife of James H. Haynes, of Niantic, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Niantic Baptist church and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. A. E. Darby. The bearers were Edward Congdon, Everett Stark, William Treat, Henry Barnes and Milton Peabody. Burial was in Union cemetery, Niantic.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the suspension of the driver's license of Carl Y. Fredberg, submarine base.

Patrolman Henry Sylvia discovered a rear window of the fruit store of Joseph Gentilella, 693 Bank street, open late last night. The officer secured the window for the remainder of the night.

Patrolman Anthony Turello found the front entrance of the store of the New London Awning & Canvas company, 693 Bank street, unlocked last night and with the key in the door. The officer locked the entrance and left the key at police headquarters, where it was delivered to a member of the firm today.

There was a fire scare this afternoon when a cloud of steam was mistaken for smoke in the cellar of the residence of Charles Gasson, 162 Green street. A still alarm was sent to fire headquarters and was responded to by Chief Thomas Shipman and Nameaug Engine company. There was no need of the services of the department for no fire existed, the volume of steam being produced because of an overheated water heater. No damage resulted.

Parted With Their $2

Another array of cases of violation of the city's traffic ordinances came up in the police court today and as a result the city treasurer was again enriched because none of the drivers appeared, hence respective bonds of $2 were declared forfeited. Most of the violations were for parking overtime on State street. The drivers were Michael DiBiasi, 413 Bank street; Morris O. Horan, 15 Pequot avenue; John Damon, 149 Monument street, Groton; Meyer Rosenholtz, 462 Bank street; Charles Nelson, New Haven; G. B. Rainer, 973 Ocean avenue; Frank R. Danesi, 4 Franklin street, Norwich; Sally Kehrman, 1187 Holland avenue, New York; John McDermott, 35 Perry street; George Silner, 331 Huntington street; Michael Toupasz, Lyme; Isadore Goodman, 123 Blydenburg avenue; James Telford, Hotel Mohican.

Edward J. Murray, 21 Lincoln street, Hartford, was charged with speeding, but the case was continued to Friday next. Murray was arrested on Broad street Sunday, May 4, by Sergeant John Courtney and Automobile Patrol Officer George Cockell when the officers declared Murray was driving at an estimated speed of 50 miles an hour. The next day the case was continued until today and is now postponed for another week.

The only other case tried was for intoxication. The offender is a sailor from the U. S. S. Camden and he was given suspension of judgment.

One hundred and thirty-one garments were completed this year by the garment committee of the New London branch of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women it was announced at the final sewing session of the season held yesterday afternoon in the rooms at the headquarters of the Diocesan Bureau of Social Service. Mrs. Julius Koch is chairman of the committee. At the close of the meeting ice cream was served by Mrs. Frank E. G. Douglas, chairman of the council. Those who compose the sewing committee are: Mrs. Koch, chairman; Miss Mary Coffey, Miss Elizabeth Drea, Miss Kate Wall, Mrs. Mary Harrigan, Mrs. Michael Elwood, Mrs. John McLoughlin, Mrs. George Cleary, Mrs. Joseph Coppo and Mrs. Douglas.

The city's highway department is causing most of the important arteries of travel to receive their annual coating of tar and sand. The first of such treatments has been applied this week to Montauk avenue and intersecting highways. Other streets will be given like treatment within the next few days.

Disregard Auto Laws

Although there has been over 100 motor driver arrests within a week, the drivers fail to heed the city's regulations. As a result, there will be another batch of such cases called in the police court tomorrow for officers tonight are maintaining a strict check-up of all parked cars. F. R. Davis, submarine base; John Damon Eaton, 149 Monument street, Groton; Sidney C. Wood, Elm Tree Inn, Pawcatuck, and Charles E. Hancock, 13 Alger street, were ordered into court for parking overtime on State and Meridian streets.

Never Had A License

Andrew Nichols, R. F. D. No. 2, Waterford, was arrested by Motorcycle Officer Carlos Stone this afternoon, charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in driving without a license. He was released in the custody of his father and will be in court tomorrow. The youth has never been issued a license to drive.

Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray, who has been confined to his home, Fitch avenue ever since injured a week ago when he was struck by an automobile at the corner of Meridian and Church streets, will report for duty within a few days. The driver of the colliding automobile will be in court the latter part of this month, charged with reckless driving.

Evidence—But No Conviction

Joseph Naples and his wife, Elizabeth, who conduct the Venice restaurant, Bank street, will be in the police court tomorrow, charged with conducting a disorderly house, but although the restaurant was recently raided by a squad of police a conviction of the couple will only be established with the aid of evidence which will be introduced by the prosecution and which will be furnished by members of the United States coast guard. When officers raided the premises earlier in the week Naples and his wife were alone in the building and no liquor was found there. However, it is the claim of the state that a few nights before conditions existed in the restaurant that warranted the charge being made that brought about the arrest of Mr. and Mrs. Naples.

The highways in the fifth ward, the lower end of the city, are being oiled so that the street watering carts will be without occupation this summer. The oiling process keeps the dust from rising and entering homes more effectually than does the sprinkling of the streets.

The fire hydrants of the city have been painted yellow the past week and the fire alarm boxes have taken on the familiar red.

The 12th annual banquet of the Italian Ladies' Aid society was held at the Mohican hotel this week with more than 50 members and guests in attendance.

ANTI-PROHIBS ARGUE AGAINST RECENT SEIZURES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 9—The movement on the part of the prohibition enforcement agents in the seizure of bottling paraphernalia in various sections of the country, the agents acting on the ruling of the courts that such articles were in violation of the prohibition laws, has not had the effect of putting out of business any dealer in this city. Some of these declared that the law under which the seizures have been made is not constitutional, for if it was, the seizure of bottles and the caps of the same for the purpose of bottling root beer might be just as legally attempted. They also hold that wheat and barley are ingredients of intoxicating beverages and that those, also, might be seized under the same law that permits the confiscation of bottling paraphernalia.

FORMER MAYOR H. M. LEROU, OF NORWICH, IS TO SPEAK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 9.—The meeting of the New London Taxpayers' league will be held next week, probably the latter part, and at that time ex-Mayor Herbert M. Prentis, president pro tem. of the New London league, is arranging for Mr. Lerou's attendance at the next meeting of the league.

ENGINEER GEO. K. CRANDALL GIVES UP ACTIVE WORK

George K. Crandall, 37 Granite street, formerly of Norwich, a member of the firm of Daboll & Crandall, civil engineers, has abandoned active labor because of ill health. Messrs Crandall and Daboll have been identified with the engineering profession since they formed a partnership in 1893. Mr. Crandall, who suffered a severe illness some time ago, has never fully regained his strength. He was for several years employed by the city, as engineer.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Fuller, Hempstead street, have returned home, concluding a several weeks' stay in St. Petersburg, Fla.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY

The regular meeting of the Robert O. Fletcher post auxiliary was held at the armory Monday evening. The meeting opened in regular form with the salute to the flag. Secretary's report was read and accepted. The welfare committee reported the gift of $10 to an ex-service man's wife. The girls' work committee reported that they made May baskets. The auxiliary planned to send sunshine cards to one of the members who is in the hospital in Washington, D. C. Sixteen caps were knitted by one of the members to be given to Uncas-on-Thames. Thanks were expressed to the member by the auxiliary. Several bulletins were read by the secretary. Several members bought a book of chances gotten out by the Bridgeport auxiliary to defray their expenses at the state convention. A card party was planned to be held at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Bogue. A rummage sale was planned but later postponed. It was voted that the members selling poppies should wear their uniforms. The returns on the quilt were very satisfactory, but as the books are not all in the award was left until later. The auxiliary expects to have the department president, Mrs. Clemency H. Schall, present at its next meeting, May 19, at which time there will be an entertainment and refreshments. As the auxiliary is looking forward to a pleasant time with the department they are hoping there will be a record attendance.

Elaborate plans are being made to handle one of the largest classes of candidates ever to receive the highest honors that can be given to a Knight of Columbus. In New Haven, Sunday afternoon, May 25, more than 250 third degree members will present themselves to State Master Thomas J. McCloskey of Danbury, for advancement in the order. The John Barry assembly of the Fourth degree, K. of C., has been elected by the master as host assembly to these candidates. The Fourth degree, which propounds the principles of patriotism, was first conferred in New York city in 1900. This year marks the 30th anniversary of the first exemplification of this degree. This Cabot province, composed of the New England states, is under the supervision of the Vice-Supreme Master Timothy Hanrahan of Brighton, Mass., who is to be one of the principal speakers at the banquet in the Hotel Taft, following the exemplification. After receiving the degree the candidates and members present at the degree, in full regalia, headed by a platoon of police and a band, will march from the Moose hall to the Hotel Taft.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Chevalier's in town! Yes, indeed, that big "personality and pep gentleman from Paris" is opening at the cool Broadway today in his greatest success "The Big Pond," that riotous comedy drama of romance and big business which is still standing 'em up in New York at $2.00 per! The frisky Maurice, with his dimples and grin, his talkative shoulders and hands, and his thrilling singing voice, has never had a chance to show his real self before, even though his "Innocents of Paris" and his "Love Parade" were tremendous hits, for in "The Big Pond," he is just a typical Frenchman, bubbling with youth and the joy of living, madly in love—and who wouldn't be, please?—with lovely, alluring Claudette Colbert, and, offered the chance, as madly determined to come to America and "make good in beeg business" to win her hand. Her daddy, by the way, is a millionaire chewing-gum manufacturer, and conceives the plan of bringing the lad to his factory to "give him his chance," and then instructs his hard-boiled foreman to "give him the works." Chevalier's factory experiences are a scream in themselves, and when, through an accident while sharing a "wee nip" with his new pal the foreman, he stumbles on a formula for improving the gum, the fun becomes hilarious. Two lively songs are offered by the gay Maurice, "You've Brought a New Kind of Love," and "Livin' in the Sunlight," and with his voice never better he puts them across —and how! Big business, however, seems to put a crimp in romance for the lovely American girl, for the boy is kept too busy to make love, but when he convinces her that love is a business, too, and that "he knows his business"— well, you can imagine! Take all Chevalier's former successes, roll 'em into one, and multiply by a million—and that's "The Big Pond," at once the most joyous and enjoyable picture that has ever played Norwich, and with a climax that will leave you breathless from laughing and hollering for more! The surrounding program includes Louise Fazenda and Bert Roach in "So This is Paris Green," an exciting comedy of errors among the Paris apaches, "Hello Thar" with Eddie Buzzell, a howling comedy in the snowdrifts and dance-halls of the frozen Klondike, and the latest Paramount Sound news. This afternoon, the youngsters will enjoy another chapter of "Tarzan, the Tiger." The Broadway's giant cooling fans and the fountain of correctly chilled water make this theatre a pleasant place during the hot weather.

ENTHUSIASM MARKS CAUCUS WHEN REPUBLICANS NOMINATE CITY TICKET

At one of the most enthusiastic caucuses in years, Friday evening, at the town hall, Mayor Lee Roy Robbins was unanimously nominated for re-election on the republican ticket. There was an attendance of between 250 and 300 men and women at the caucus which was called to order at 8 o'clock by George M. Charbonneau, chairman of the republican town committee. Mr. Charbonneau called for the selection of a moderator for the evening and on motion of Ebenezer Learned, Judge Henry H. Pettis was selected for the chairmanship. Judge Pettis was greeted with enthusiastic applause as he took the chair. On motion of John R. Bowman, Edmund Hindle was selected as the clerk, and read the call.

"I had the pleasure of being here two years ago when our present mayor was nominated," said Judge Pettis. "We had had at that time six years of democratic rule and the citizens were sick and tired of extravagance and incompetentcy."

After speaking of the nomination and election of Mayor Robbins two years ago, Judge Pettis spoke of the record of the present administration as fair and equal to all. Mayor Robbins has been mayor of all the people at all the time, said Judge Pettis. He went on to state that he was proud of the fact that the citizens of the community had shown their appreciation at the polls, two years ago and last year.

"Our democratic brothers, realizing that defeat stares them in the face, don't know what to do," said Judge Pettis. He said that the republicans will show the democratic brothers what to do at the city election next month. He concluded his remarks by predicting victory for the republican ticket. Nominations were then called for.

Adelard Morin said that it was his pleasure two years ago, to nominate the present mayor, Lee Roy Robbins. Mr. Morin spoke of the mayor's splendid record. "We should feel indebted to our mayor that he has consented to run again," said Mr. Morin. He characterized the present administration as "conscientious, fair, economical and efficient." The mayor has sacrificed much of his time in the work he loves, trying to give Norwich the finest administration it has ever had, Mr. Morin said, and he concluded by stating that it gave him great pleasure to nominate Mayor Robbins for re-election. Hearty applause greeted the nomination which was quickly made unanimous.

The other nominations were made as follows:

Aldermen, Paul H. Zahn, nominated by William R. Stevens; F. Russell Smith, nominated by Charles W. Cassidy.

Councilmen, Peter Sellas, nominated by Kenneth Fox; John H. Sherman, nominated by Harold S. Burt; Daniel C. Leone, nominated by Joseph Tomaino; Edward M. Hanks, nominated by Howard A. Spalding.

City treasurer, Charles Coit, nominated by Arthur L. Peale.

City sheriffs, Charles R. Raynes, nominated by Josiah Greenstein; V. Roath Allen, nominated by John H. Barnes.

Water commissioner, John M. Swahn, nominated by John H. Barnes. The town committee was authorized to fill any vacancies that may occur on the ticket before election day after which adjournment was taken, the caucus having been in session a little less than a half hour.

FEDERAL OFFICERS MAKE TWO ARRESTS IN CITY

Three federal prohibition men, armed with warrants drawn up in New Haven, raided The German club, in the Germania hall building, No. 32 Market street, about 5 o'clock, Friday afternoon. The agents found, it is understood, a quantity of alleged whiskey and home brew in bottles. A man who was in charge of the club was arrested and was immediately presented before U. S. Commissioner Earl Mathewson who set bonds at $500. The bonds were quickly furnished. The accused will be tried in the U. S. district court.

The raiding party also visited the Royal club on Ferry street where they found some alleged liquor and beer. A man named Lamphere was arrested as the proprietor and shortly afterwards released on bonds of $500 set by U. S. Commissioner Mathewson. The agents paid a visit to a West Side place where liquor was alleged to have been sold but no liquor was found there and no arrest made. The raiding squad comprised Harry Avery, and William S. Congdon of Willimantic and William Bassett of Springfield, Mass.

KEHOE IS ACQUITTED ON MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

It took the jury in the superior court, criminal side, in New London, Friday afternoon only about ten minutes to return a verdict of "not guilty" in the case of John T. Kehoe, a former employe of the Norwich state hospital, who was on trial on a statutory manslaughter charge for the death of Mrs. Lavallee Riley of this city when the automobile Kehoe was driving went through a fence and down a bank at Dead Man's curve on the Military highway on the night of April 1. There were six people in the automobile, which was a roadster, at the time of the accident.

Edmund W. Perkins, as public defender, conducted Kehoe's case in court.

HAS OLD TIME PICTURE OF FRANKLIN SQUARE

Reading of the old time picture owned by George Dufner, showing a view of Franklin square before the days of the Shannon building, Howard A. Spalding of No. 400 Hamilton avenue recalled that his father, the late Harvey A. Spalding, owned a copy of the same picture which is now in Mr. Spalding's possession. The picture is a part of the late Mr. Spalding's certificate of service with the old volunteer fire department of the city. The certificate is signed by R. S. Bartlett, A. J. Adams and J. Dawson, fire commissioners, and is dated May 7, 1890.

LIONS CLUB VOTED CONTRIBUTION FOR NASHUA

With President Charles W. Cassidy in the chair, the weekly meeting of the Norwich Lions club was held this week at the Wauregan hotel. Abner Schwartz was the song leader and Frederick Geer presided at the piano. In response to a telegraphic appeal from the district governor of the 23rd Lions International the local club voted a contribution to the Nashua, N. H., fire relief fund.

R. D. Butler, of Boston, who is here in connection with the Salvation Army drive for funds, addressed the club, speaking of the work of the army here and saying that he hoped it would always merit the approval of the people of Norwich.

Home chapter of the King's Daughters has planned its May meeting for Monday afternoon the 12th, at Johnson home. There will be but one more meeting this season, the meetings to be discontinued through July and August.

At several locations in Norwich Town Monday and Tuesday thermometers registered 90 and 94. The sweltering heat brought out an exceptional number of motorists, the state highway having almost as heavy traffic as is the case each Sunday throughout the summer.

Just before noon Thursday three distinct groups of airplane squadrons, about 100 in all, were observed flying so high they appeared like birds in the sky. This was a section of the big navy planes which are participating in the big air show on a tour through New England from Jamaica, L. I., as explained in The Bulletin Wednesday. Although airplanes are familiar sights in these days, many exclaimed at the remarkable sight. Long before they appeared in the sky, the rumbling of the motors could be heard, announcing that they were approaching. The same squadron returned late Thursday afternoon.

Willards Welcomed

Norwich Town friends were pleased to greet Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Willard of Elizabeth, N. J., who for several days have been on a motor tour through the New England states, returning home Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. Willard have a summer home, with excellent bathing facilities where they spend much of their time. He is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Willard (Annie Hyde), the last of his family.

The summer coating of tarvia which was sanded over and scraped, was spread on Upper Washington and a part of Town streets, over the state highway Wednesday, under the general supervision of Henry T. Gorman, supervisor of the state highway department, in this section of Connecticut.

A long-time resident of Norwich Town was interviewed Wednesday by Town Clerk Harold S. Burt, in an endeavor to locate a family named Perron, reputed to have been residing at 36 Town street, about fifteen years ago. Information was sought in the interests of the daughter, Miss Rose Alma Perron; the father, Louis Perron, having died during these years. Many inquiries and telephone calls revealed no information. Either a fictitious address or the wrong street was given. The present address of the young woman is being sought by Worcester relatives. No such family ever lived at 36 Town street, and the same number on East Town and West Town streets, are open lots.

Y M. C. A. AUXILIARY MAKES $300 PLEDGE; ELECTS OFFICERS

Following the monthly meeting of the board of the Y. M. C. A. auxiliary at which a delicious luncheon was served by Mrs. Wm. H. Dawley and Mrs. John Parke, the annual meeting of the auxiliary was held this week in the Y parlours, the president, Mrs. William H. Dawley presiding. After the reading of the minutes of the preceding meeting by Miss Alif Stevens, secretary pro tem, and their approval, Mrs. John E. Hawkins, the treasurer, read her report, showing a very profitable year, with a balance in the treasury of nearly $100. Reports from the various committees followed, after which the election of officers for the ensuing year was held, resulting as follows: President, Mrs. William H. Dawley; vice president, Mrs. Leslie L. Brewer; treasurer, Mrs. John Parke; secretary, Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, Jr. The board will consist of the same members as last year, there being no resignations.

It was voted to pledge $300 towards the Y. M. C. A. expenses, the same as in previous years, also to help pay for the Hi-Y boys' suppers and furnish three loaves of cake per week for the same.

Following the business meeting instructive talks were given by the acting officers of the Y, showing that a much larger number of boys are being reached through the Y agencies than ever before. Mr. Davis stressed the fact that the Hi-Y had never had so large nor so enthusiastic an attendance as during this past year, the boys voting for additional meetings. Physical Director Howard Demarest in his talk spoke principally of the extra curricula work among boys, such as sponsoring athletic contests, furnishing paraphernalia for church and club sporting events and in all ways fostering a spirit of brotherly helpfulness.

The meeting concluded with an address by General Secretary Edwin Hill in which he showed how many of the problems confronting mothers of wayward boys were met and overcome through the agencies of the Y. He also called the attention of the meeting to the fact that educational films were shown every Sunday afternoon at the Y parlors, these meetings being very largely attended.
